EDSON WHITE KILLED IN FALL

16 ENTER RACE FOR MAYOR AS LIMIT EXPIRES

10 Republicans and Six Democrats.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Sixteen candidates for mayor of Chicago—ten Republicans and six Democrats—were enrolled at the city hall last night when the stroke of midnight marked the deadline for the filing of nominating petitions.

No names of new major candidates were added to either party list. George E. Schmidt, who resigned as controller in the Thompson cabinet to make the race, was the last to file on the Republican side. Directly ahead of him was the one surprise on this list. A petition was filed in the name of Congressman Oscar De Priest, Negro representative at Washington for the First district. But this was believed a political maneuver and nothing more.

Boxing Promoter Enters.

On the Democratic side no opponent of interest appeared against A. J. Cermak, the regular organization man, until late in the evening when James C. Mullen, boxing promoter, was named in a big petition. There were suspicions voiced at the time that Mr. Mullen was seeking personal advertisement.

The Republican list as finally completed and in the order of filing with the city clerk is:

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON.
CHARLES V. BARRETT.
JOHN H. LYLE.
ARTHUR F. ALBERT.
JOHN P. WALSH.
THOMAS J. HOUSTON.
EUGENE M'CAFFREY.
NEWTON JENKINS.
OSCAR DE PRIEST.
GEORGE E. SCHMIDT.

As the last of the filings were being made one of the four major Republican candidates, Charles V. Barrett, sent letters to all his competitors, except Mayor Thompson, challenging them to meet with him tomorrow morning in an elimination conference for the purpose of concentrating all the anti-city hall forces behind a single contestant.

Lyle Will Not Respond.

It was said on behalf of Judge Lyle, now backed by a strong organization and shown to be the leader in city-wide straw vote tests, that he would not go into such a meet. It is understood that the same position will be taken by Ald. Arthur F. Albert, the Democratic choice. It is possible that former Controller Schmidt might accept, but without Lyle or Albert the general prediction last night was that the Barrett effort will meet with failure.

Except for those candidates mentioned the entries in the Republican primary are considered of little political importance.

Text of Barrett Proposal.

The concluding paragraphs of the Barrett invitation to all other Republican candidates except Thompson read as follows:

"The people of Chicago are now confronted with the fact that there are seven or eight or perhaps more candidates for the Republican nomination for mayor who actually or ostensibly are seeking to defeat the present incumbent and his city hall machine. It must be apparent to every one, and particularly to each of the candidates, that division of the opposition to Thompson among that many candidates helps assure his renomination and that each of us will be charged with a measure of responsibility for that if an honest effort is not made to eliminate this division and to solidify the anti-Thompson vote behind the most available candidate.

Calls It Duty to City.

"I feel it is my duty as well as yours to bring about the certain defeat of Thompson in the primary; and, with that thought in mind, I urge you, in behalf of the city of Chicago and the Republican party, to give this your careful consideration and to meet with me on Saturday, Jan. 17, 1931, at 10:30 a. m. in suite 109, Hotel Sherman, for the purpose of deciding this question or of selecting a group of commercial, industrial and civic representatives to whom the question may be submitted.

"The welfare of Chicago is infinitely more important than the ambitions of any of us, and I believe it is our duty to solve this question so the defeat of Thompson may be assured."

Swanson Indorses Albert.

Headquarters of Ald. Albert, Deneen candidate, attached great importance to an indorsement of Albert by State's Attorney Swanson, a Deneen supporter. Speaking at a luncheon at the

Youthful Strangler Kills Woman

BREAKS WINDOW, ESCAPES AS HER FRIENDS ARRIVE

Mrs. Eppie Moss, 41 years old, a divorcée, and department manager for a wholesale jewelry concern, was strangled to death with a rope late yesterday in a private garage in the rear of 1143 Cornelia avenue. Her murderer, a youth of 20 years, attired in a sheepskin-lined leather coat, smashed his way through a small window and wriggled to escape as the victim's friends pounded on the garage door.

The slain woman was found on the garage floor, with an eight foot length of rope doubled and wound tightly around her throat. Rape or robbery was the probable motive, detectives said, although investigation revealed that Mrs. Moss had not been raped and her purse containing a small amount of money and a $10 check was found near the body.

Witnesses Describe Killer.

Three witnesses, one the victim's roommate; another, a boy 9 years old, and the third, a woman whose home overlooks the garage, saw the killer escape, and furnished accurate descriptions. He was about 20 years old, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall, weighed around 140 pounds, and had a ruddy complexion, they said.

One mysterious circumstance which was being investigated was the appearance in front of Mrs. Moss' apartment at 1156 Cornelia avenue about 9:30 o'clock last night, several hours after the murder, of a taxicab containing four men. One of the men left the cab and entered the apartment, later reappearing with a dog, a bird cage and a suitcase, according to witnesses. He drove off with the other men in the taxicab.

The number of the cab was traced and it was found to be a taxicab in the service of the Chicago Athletic association, owned and driven by Michael Wall of Evanston. The taxicab record book at the athletic association showed that Wall had been sent to 1242 Lake Shore drive shortly after 8 p. m. to pick up a passenger whose name was given as Mr. Swissler of River Forest. Wall refused to say whether he had driven the passenger or passengers obtained on Lake Shore drive to the Cornelia avenue address. Investigators were searching for Mr. Swissler to question him.

Story of the Murder.

Mrs. Moss left her offices in the Spies Brothers jewelry factory at 1140 Cornelia avenue at the usual hour yesterday, and walked to her apartment, where she met her roommate, Miss Belleta D. Morse. A chance request by the latter led Mrs. Moss to her death. Miss Morse, planning to visit a chiropodist, and feeling unable to walk to the nearby garage to get her automobile, asked Mrs. Moss to do it for her, and the latter agreed.

Ordinarily such a task required four or five minutes, and when Mrs. Moss failed to return within that time Miss Morse became alarmed, dressed, and walked to the garage, which abuts on an alley.

Sees Victim on Floor.

"I tried to open the sliding door, but it was fast," related Miss Morse to Capt. Hugh McCarthy of the Town Hall station later. "The side door was locked, too. I stood on my toes and looked through a side window and I saw Mrs. Moss lying on the floor. I thought perhaps she had been overcome by gasoline fumes, for my car was still there, with its door open. I ran to her offices and called for help."

Returning to the garage, Miss Morse was accompanied by Gus Seastrom, an employé of the jewelry house, who took along a crowbar to force open the doors. Neither suspected that the object of their rescue effort had been slain, or that the strangler was still inside.

Seastrom inserted the crowbar between the doors, but failed to budge them. He tried the side doors with equal success, and then devoted his attention again to the other doors. Within all was quiet. Twenty feet down the alley, which curves "L" wise toward spur tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, stood William Huey, 9 years old, 1146 Newport avenue, watching them.

Miss Morse walked to a side window

CUBA TO DEPORT U.S. PUBLISHER; SHUTS HIS PAPER

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—John T. Wilford, editor and publisher of the English language newspaper Havana American, was ordered deported tonight by a decree signed by President Machado. Up to a late hour tonight Wilford had not been arrested. His whereabouts are unknown. The decree also ordered the newspaper closed permanently.

Wilford, a resident of Havana for twenty years, is a native of Floyala, Ala. He worked as a printer in Jacksonville, Fla., before coming here as a printer and linotype operator on the Havana Post. He became editor and general manager of the Post and held that position until two years ago, when he resigned to go into business for himself.

Since the first issue of the Havana American, Wilford has devoted much editorial space to attacking the Machado administration, the last two issues of his paper demanding the resignation of the chief executive. The paper was suspended by the government on Jan. 9 following an attack on Machado and has since been idle.

In addition to the American, nine other newspapers and magazines have been suppressed here recently. The Cuban Press association announced today that an appeal would be made to the Supreme court in an effort to nullify the suppression.

LONDON REPORTS MISS BANKHEAD WAS 'DEPORTED'

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Reports that the American actress, Tallulah Bankhead, was virtually asked to depart from England by the home office met with this comment by a home office official today:

"We are in a position neither to confirm nor deny such a report."

Miss Bankhead left recently for Hollywood, where, it was stated, she had a contract for at least three years of film work. Rumors, however, that there was more behind her somewhat sudden departure have been current in London theatrical circles recently. It was pointed out at the home office today that no information is ever given out in cases where an individual is asked to leave.

Miss Bankhead came to England some years ago a practically unknown actress with a little experience in minor rôles and quickly rose to stardom.

During December $12,109,196 worth of federal aid highway projects were contracted for by state highway departments.

Bok Estate Pays $2,824,000 in State Inheritance Tax

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—A check for $2,824,115.91 for state inheritance taxes on the estate of Edward W. Bok, editor and philanthropist, was received by the department of revenue at Harrisburg today. Based on this tax the net estate has been estimated at from $16,000,000 to $18,000,000. Mr. Bok, who died on Jan. 9, 1930, bequeathed most of his estate to his widow and his sons, besides $2,000,000 to the American Foundation.

Doug at Sea Phones Mary on Shore 7,000 Miles Away

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Conversation over the longest radio-wire circuit in ship-to-shore service ever used was effected this afternoon when Douglas Fairbanks, aboard the Red Star liner Belgenland, four days out of Honolulu, sailing west, talked to his wife, Mary Pickford, in her room at the Sherry Netherland hotel here. The distance covered by the combined radio and wire circuits was about 7,000 miles.

A Swell Kid, Says Clara of Daisy, but—

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Failing in repeated efforts to have Judge William Doran strike Daisy De Boe's thirty page confession statement from the record of Miss De Boe's embezzlement case, attorneys for Clara Bow's ex-secretary devoted most of the day to a systematic prodding of prosecution witnesses.

All attempts, however, failed to secure admission from the district attorney's representative or Policewoman Marjorie Fairchild that Miss De Boe was harassed, misled, or induced by promises to give the lengthy statement which now lies in its entirety before the middle aged jury which will decide the ex-hairdresser's guilt or innocence of thirty-seven charges of tapping Miss Bow's bank account.

Policewoman Fairchild gave Daisy credit for one novel explanation for holding a diamond studded vanity case belonging to Clara in Daisy's safety vault when arrested.

"Daisy said," the policewoman testified, "that Clara let her dogs play with the diamond vanity until it was sadly mauled. Then Daisy said she took it away from the dogs and placed it in her vault until she would have time to get it repaired."

Canceled Checks Missing.

In between the spirited counter attacks of Attorney Nathan Freedman, defending Miss De Boe, upon Operative Blayney Matthews and other ace witnesses for Miss Bow, the prosecution managed to insert a few revelations in addition to its damaging evidence of yesterday.

Chief in importance was the revelation that 146 bank checks from Miss Bow's account, totaling in all $48,845.12, had disappeared. These checks, which would have showed whether the withdrawals were made by Miss De Boe, as was the case with most other withdrawals in the two years of Miss De Boe's financial stewardship, or made by Miss Bow herself, suddenly vanished a few days before the actress parted with Miss De Boe last October.

Prosecutor David Clark said he would try to prove that Miss De Boe made away with the checks because they would have made the sum of her asserted money diversions considerably more than the $35,000 which the state charges.

How Clara Looks at It.

Clara and Daisy exchanged hot confidential asides about each other during recesses of court.

Said Clara: "Lord knows I didn't want to do all this. I got feelin's. Gosh, I'm tired. This court stuff makes me sick. Gimme a cigaret, somebody."

Between puffs Clara spun her chair so that Daisy could have a good view of the Bow back and continued:

"It makes me feel like hell, honest. But what's a girl gonna do? Let a little blonde do her out of a lot of dough? Let her get away with it? You can't let them get away with it.

"But it's tough. You take Daisy. She was a swell kid. We were pals. And then this happened. I came home one night. I yelled, 'Daisy,' but couldn't find her at all. Then in a day or two W. I. Gilbert—he's my attorney—tells me 'Daisy wants $125,000 for those telegrams and that letter of yours!' Well, you could have knocked me down with a feather."

And, Says Daisy.

Said Daisy, with scorn in her voice: "Say, I couldn't break down and cry and sniffle in court like that"—indicating Clara—"if I had to do it to save myself from prison. I have never been that way. If I should have to be convicted in this case, I won't turn a hair. I can take things without thinking it necessary to make any dramatic scenes."

Miss De Boe may get on the witness stand tomorrow.

"I'm not scared," she said. "Wait until I get on the stand, I'll give them an earful."

WEAR NECKTIE? NO, SIR, NOT EVEN AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Joseph W. Tolbert never wears a necktie—not even to a White House reception.

The Republican national committeeman for South Carolina appeared tonight at President Hoover's reception to senators true to his tieless custom.

In addition, he was in regular business attire while the other guests were in formal dress.

Tolbert does not believe in "putting on the dog," and as for ties, he has asserted over a period of years they are "useless."

TRAGEDY TAKES PRESIDENT OF ARMOUR & CO.

F. Edson White, 57 years old, president of Armour & Co., was killed last evening in a fall from a bedroom window of his seventh floor apartment at 70 East Scott street. There were no witnesses. The last person to see him alive was Philip L. Reed, treasurer of the company, a friend of Mr. White for 30 years.

Mr. Reed, who had just returned from a trip to Boston, had been sitting with Mr. White in the bedroom discussing business and personal matters. He had remembered another engagement and had gone to get his hat and coat and say good-by to Mrs. White and her sister, Miss Kathleen Pearson, in the living room.

Sister-in-Law Discovers Tragedy.

The first intimation of the tragedy came when Miss Pearson, going down the hall to answer the telephone, glanced into the bedroom and noticed the French windows were open. She stepped in, saw the room was empty, and screamed. Mr. Reed and Mrs. White hurried in. The women collapsed. Mr. Reed descended in the elevator and found the body lying on that side of the apartment building fronting Stone street.

Mr. Reed and Lieut. T. M. Rohan of the Hudson avenue police agreed that the death was accidental. The body lay almost against the building on a strip of ground about five feet wide between the building and the cement sidewalk. If Mr. White had jumped, they pointed out, he would have struck the sidewalk.

Reed Speaks for Family.

In a statement issued in behalf of the family, Mr. Reed explained that on Wednesday night the Armour Plant Executives club had held its annual dinner at the company restaurant in the stockyards. The club is composed of foremen, superintendents and other executives. The toastmaster was Harry G. Eller, director of personnel.

"The speakers' table," said Mr. Reed, "was on a platform elevated 18 inches above the floor. The dinner had proceeded to the point where Mr. Eller was announcing Mr. White as the next and chief speaker of the evening. He concluded with "Mr. White, our president."

"The diners rose, cheering. Mr. White, still sitting in his chair, half pushed it back to rise. Its rear legs slipped off the platform, Mr. White lost his balance and turned a somersault backwards, falling on the back of his head and shoulders.

Accident Halts Dinner.

"Dr. Volney S. Cheney examined him. He found a slight bump at the base of the skull. Mr. White seemed slightly dazed. He rested for half an hour, and then asked that the dinner proceed. But he was urged to go home. He did, and the dinner ended there, with no talk from Mr. White.

'It was Mr. White's daily custom to take an early morning horseback ride in Lincoln park before breakfast, and then get to his office by 9:30. He had always enjoyed vigorous health. This [Thursday] morning he canceled his horseback ride. He complained of a headache, and decided to remain home for the day. About 5 in the afternoon, however, he went for a stroll with Miss Pearson.

"I arrived at the apartment at 5:40. Mr. White and Miss Pearson returned a few minutes later. With Mrs. White we chatted for a while in the living room. Then, as we had started to discuss business affairs, Mrs. White suggested we could talk better in the master chamber occupied by Mr. White.

They Go to Bedroom.

"We went in there. The French windows on the Stone street side are in a spacious bay, with a bench seat concealing a radiator. Mr. White, who had been complaining that the apartment was too warm, sat on this seat and opened the French windows. He sat there, swinging his feet, and laughing as I made some reference to a recent trip we had made together to New York City.

"I wanted him and Mrs. White and Miss Pearson to accompany me and Mrs. Reed to the hockey match at the Chicago Stadium, but Mr. White said he thought he should rest. So I told him good-by and left the room to get my coat and hat. It was while I was talking to Mrs. White in the living room that Miss Pearson went to answer the telephone and discovered Mr. White was gone.

"My theory is that he either may have leaned from the window to get a breath of fresh air or that, sitting on the bench, he may have suddenly become faint and toppled out.

"There was absolutely no reason for Mr. White to end his life. He not only had been in the best of health and spirits but he had had one of his most successful years as an executive, allowing, of course, for the depression that all industry has experienced. In fact, Mr. White had received congratulations from all his associates and from bankers and other business heads on the way he had conducted the affairs of Armour & Co."

Dr. Thomas Dwyer, coroner's physician, examined the body and said death was due to multiple skull fracture. A circumstance that puzzled investigators was that, while the body lay practically against the building, the earth about a sapling two feet away was bloodstained.

Inquest to Be Held Today.

Coroner Bundesen announced last night that two members of the jury had already been chosen for the inquest, which will be held today at 200 East Erie street. They are A. Watson Armour, 289 Lake Shore drive, and Arthur Meeker, 1100 Lake Shore drive.

Besides his widow Mr. White leaves two daughters, Mrs. William M. Spencer and Mrs. Allan Kempe. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Frank White, and his twin brother, Willard C. White. His son, F. Edson White Jr., was accidentally killed in September of 1923 by the discharge of a shotgun which he was using to drive off an infuriated bull.

Mr. and Mrs. Kempe, who reside in Lake Forest, were notified by telephone of Mr. White's death, and immediately motored to Chicago. Mrs. Spencer, who has a winter home at 1420 Lake Shore drive, also went at once to the White apartment.

According to Mrs. Kempe, Mr. White had been saddened by the death of Robert Henry Hunter, vice president of the Chicago crime commission, a lifelong friend. Mr. Hunter died suddenly in the La Salle street station on Jan. 7.

AS TO HIS SUCCESSOR

Mr. White's death immediately caused speculation as to his successor as president of Armour & Co. The opinion prevailed among financiers familiar with the company's affairs that the choice lay between Mr. Reed and Phillip D. Armour III., senior vice president, a grandson of the company's founder. Neither Mr. Reed nor Mr. Armour would comment. Lester Armour, Philip's brother, resigned his vice presidency a month ago. Both are nephews of the late J. Ogden Armour.

The company's net earnings for 1930 were $4,741,026, as against $9,810,518 in 1929. The earnings were less than the dividends on the stock of the subsidiary companies, Armour & Co. of Delaware and the North American Provision company. These dividends are guaranteed by the parent company, Armour & Co. of Illinois. To pay them and the dividends on its own preferred stock the parent company had to take $4,060,576 from its surplus.

P. D. Armour Makes Statement.

In behalf of the company, Philip D. Armour last night issued the following statement:

"It is with sincere and deep regret that I announce the death of our president, F. Edson White. No man could be more loved or respected by an organization, from the laborer in the plant to his closest associates, than was Mr. White. His life was Armour & Co., and he gave himself unstintedly to that service. I am sure that the 50,000 co-workers of Mr. White join me in expressing to his family our sincerest sympathy."

Other friends of Mr. White expressed sorrow.

"Mr. White's death is a distinct loss to the community and a profound shock to his business associates," said Alfred Cowles, director of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

Wallace Winter of Farnum-Winter Co. said: "Mr. White was one of the outstanding men of Chicago and his tragic death is an event that will shock his hundreds of friends."

James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, who directed the readjustment of the affairs of Armour & Co., following the retirement of J. Ogden Armour, said that "the financial condition of the company is the best it has been for several years."

35 YEARS WITH ARMOUR

Mr. White had been with Armour & Co. for 35 years. Born in Peoria on Sept. 9, 1873, he was educated in the public schools there. He chose the packing industry as a career. His first position was with the firm of Godel & Sons of Peoria. In 1890 he went to San Francisco, remaining until the spring of 1895 in the employ of the Western Meat company.

It was in May of that year that he came to Chicago to enter the employ of Armour & Co. as a car checker at $18 a week. Six months later he became a clerk in the dressed beef department. In 1905 he was made head of the sheep department.

In 1912 he was elected to the board of directors, having previously served as assistant to Arthur Meeker, vice president. His rise then was rapid. In 1914 he was elected a vice president and in 1923, when J. Ogden Armour became chairman of the board, Mr. White succeeded him to the presidency.

Head of Huge Business.

Mr. White was regarded as one of the ablest packing executives in the country. As head of Armour & Co. he was in charge of a business amounting to nearly a thousand million dollars annually, the products of which were shipped to almost every civilized country in the world.

Besides that he found time to serve as a director of Montgomery Ward & Co., the Continental Bank and Trust company, the Stockyards National Bank of Chicago, the Chase National Bank of New York, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis [Nickel Plate] railroad, the American Surety company, the Institute of Meat Packers, the American Manufacturers' Export association, and many other enterprises.

Member of Several Clubs.

His club memberships included the Chicago, Racquet, Old Elm Country, Onwentsia and Knollwood clubs, the Chicago Athletic association, and the Industrial Commercial club. He enjoyed golf almost as much as horseback riding, his friends said.

Mr. and Mrs. White were married in 1900. She was Miss Lillian Pearson of Collingwood, Ontario, daughter of the late Rev. Marmaduke Pearson, widely known throughout Canada.

Mr. White formerly owned a home on Telegraph road, just west of Lake Forest. He sold the place six years ago. For five months last year he and his family lived in a leased residence at 697 Washington road, Lake Forest, the property of F. M. Underwood. In October Mr. White gave up his lease, at the time indicating that in the future he would maintain his home in Chicago.

FORTY HOODLUMS BEFORE JUDGE; 2 WIN FREEDOM

CRIMINAL COURT.
Willie Brown and Willie Johnson, larceny, sentenced to one year each in the Bridewell by Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Loitering in hotel lobbies is not vagrancy, even when the loiterer is a reputed gangster, and 30 days in the Bridewell for disorderly conduct does not constitute a criminal record.

Those contentions Judge Justin F. McCarthy, sitting in the jury branch of the Municipal court, yesterday impressed upon crime fighters who hope to harry hoodlums out of Chicago by prosecuting them for vagrancy.

The immediate result was that Joe Fiore and Phil Lasso, both of whom waived jury trials and submitted their cases for trial by Judge McCarthy, were discharged by him.

Within 20 minutes after the hearing of testimony in their cases had begun they cheerfully left the scene with their lawyers.

Lawyer Raps Judge Lyle.

Simon Herr, counsel for Fiore, made the thick air of the crowded courtroom crackle with an anti-Lyle speech in the course of which he said:

"Many of these prosecutions were conceived in the mad desire of an individual who wished to build up his success on the ruin of others. They were based on personal and political ambition and should never have been brought."

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Klenha, who was wielding the vagrancy weapon against gangdom, granted that some of the cases had been, as he put it, "initiated hurriedly and without opportunity for adequate preparation."

When George Bieber, counsel for Lasso, made a motion for the discharge of his client on the ground of lack of evidence, Judge McCarthy, turning to Mr. Klenha, asked, "What do you say, Mr. State's Attorney?"

"No Evidence," State Admits.

"I can't," Mr. Klenha replied, "see anything here. There is no evidence of vagrancy."

Thereat Mr. Bieber beamed benevolence upon the young prosecutor and said, "I don't want to throw any bouquets, but the state's attorney is right. He is honest, and I will add that if we had a few more judges like Judge David there would be no vagrancy warrants."

Amid these amenities the feathers of other lawyers representing reputed gangsters rose and counsel for burly Joe Saltis, beer runner, and for Hymie ["Loud Mouth"] Levine, collector for the Capone gang, became solicitous for the dignity of their clients.

Levine's Case Is Called.

When Clerk Stalzer, who has a diction so precise and clear that it permits no syllable of an epithet to be blurred, called out "People of the state of Illinois versus Hymie Loud Mouth Levine," Attorney Harry Weisbrod winced on behalf of his client.

"The words 'loud mouth,'" he said, "are in this connection scandalous and impertinent, and they are not in the warrant. My client has been in a legitimate business for 15 years."

Thereupon Assistant State's Attorney Ditchburne withdrew "loud mouth" on behalf of the people of the state of Illinois and consideration of Mr. Weisbrod's motion to quash the charge against "Mister Levine"—as counsel punctilliously called the accused—was postponed to Jan. 30.

Then the dignity of Joe Saltis was looked to.

Until he was ordered to the bar of justice Saltis sat close beside his bodyguard, Paddy Sullivan, in the corner of the courtroom farthest from the door, and he left that safe nook without enthusiasm when his name was called. The only bright spot on his huge bulk was a diamond as big as a hickory nut which glistened in a spacious setting of gold on his right hand.

Lawyer James Burke described the charge of vagrancy against Saltis as "so preposterous as to be beyond words" and asked for a postponement in order that he might bring witnesses "from outside the state" to testify as to the exact width of the chasm separating the business status of his client from vagrancy.

To that Mr. Ditchburne replied with rather desolating sarcasm, "The people of the state of Illinois are not interested in what the accused does outside their state or in what his status beyond their boundaries is."

Further consideration of the matter was sent for Jan. 30, when the vagrancy charge against Paddy the Bodyguard will also be taken up.

Calls Maxie Eisen.

Maxie Eisen, racketeer who has angled among fish peddlers and hooked many of them, is hard of hearing and for many minutes was unreached by the shouting of his name.

"Afflicted my client is," said Lawyer Krestke, "but no vagrant. He has been in business for twelve years." Further consideration of Eisen's fish and finance was postponed to Feb. 4.

Among other notorious hoodlums whose cases were called was Mike de Pike Heitler. He was not present and his case was set for Feb. 3.

In all two score men of hoodlumdom appeared before Judge McCarthy on the vagrancy charges of which the purpose is to make Chicago too hot to hold them. They were mostly small fry and not a frightening looking lot.

Assistant State's Attorney Ditchburne, indeed, took occasion to say that he was not afraid of the batch, taken singly or as a whole, whereupon the court remarked blandly:

"Yes, Mr. State's Attorney, we are still young, but we are too old to start getting afraid of anybody."

Notorious Hoodlums Worried.

It was the more notorious hoodlums rather than the small fry that seemed most irked by the menace of a Bridewell sentence for vagrancy, and the reason for their anxiety was given by Mr. Weisbrod when he said:

"Despite the fact that my client ["Loud Mouth"] has been in a legitimate business for fifteen years, this charge hanging over him isn't doing him any good."

The proceedings brought out diverting hoodlum nomenclature. Sam Jacobson, reputed bootlegger and known as "Sammy the Greener," was one of the accused. He is not so known because he greens things. "Greener" stands for greenhorn, and in hoodlumdom a foreigner is a "greener."

Throughout the long, tedious, and ill-ventilated hours of the hearings Judge McCarthy was solicitous for the expedition of business.

"So many of these vagrancy cases," he said from the bench, "have been sent to this court that the court's judgment is that they should be tried as quickly as possible. When no element of guilt appears they should be nonsuited. If there is evidence sufficient to warrant their submission to a jury, that should be done quickly. I hope counsel will make an honest effort to cooperate with the court in the dispatch of business. The court finds on its call fifty-seven cases classified as vagrancy cases and I want to find out what's what."

Speaking in his chambers after adjournment Judge McCarthy said:

"These vagrancy cases must not be allowed to clutter the court and delay the trials of hoodlums on more serious charges. Vagrancy charges must not stand between justice and real crimes. We must expedite justice by clearing away the chicken feed and getting to the serious business."

Result of Lyle Warrants.

The vagrancy charges which have accumulated in Judge McCarthy's court are the result of warrants issued by Judge John H. Lyle, in whose court there are no jury trials. Demand for jury trials by the accused and the granting of changes of venue from Judge Lyle's court thus have crowded Judge McCarthy's court with what he calls "chicken feed."

The small fry in yesterday's vagrancy catch got off lightly, Joe Battaglia being fined $25 for worrying policemen by seeming—as they testified—"always to be getting on or off street cars" when they saw him, and Morris Quirk receiving the same punishment for having been convicted five times for disorderly conduct.

"Better than getting life from Lyle" was the comment of waiting hoodlums in the corridors.

REPORT AL CAPONE HAS SOLD HOME AND IS QUITTING MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Miami Herald says "Scarface" Al Capone today completed the sale of his elaborate Palm island residence at Miami Beach for $100,000 cash and will leave Miami and Florida for good.

The paper says its information was received from an authenic source. Vincent C. Giblin, Capone attorney here, said he was unable to confirm or deny the report.

The Capone estate is one of the most palatial on an island filled with the home estates of wealthy winter residents at Miami Beach. Capone bought it in 1928, in the name of his wife, Mae Capone, for a reported $40,000 consideration.

He has beautified the property and made several additions, including an elaborate swimming pool at the rear of the estate.

The residence was mentioned in padlock proceedings inaugurated last summer during a community attempt to drive Capone from metropolitan Miami.

Crime Board Attacks Judges in Report; Re-elects Loesch

The twelve years of accomplishment of the Chicago crime commission were listed yesterday at its annual meeting during which Frank J. Loesch was re-elected president. The veteran crime fighter consented to serve another year in the capacity in which he achieved national recognition and appointment to President Hoover's crime study commission.

The report of Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director, dealt with the work of the commission since its organization, and particularly with its warfare against "public enemies" during the last year.

Report Hits Judges.

Difficulties were described in the following statement:

"Some judges appear to be more concerned with administrative ritual than common sense; more concerned with the importance of statutory enactment than human rectitude. Omissions of form are to them far more heinous than normal offenses. Too many judges love the letter of the law and disregard the spirit. They rely on ritual rather than righteousness. They imagine they can organize morality and truth. They become so involved in organization that they lose sight of the objective; the means becomes more important than the end."

The establishment of a bail bond department of the state's attorney's office and the enactment of a new bail act and the grand jury investigation of bail evils are credited to the efforts of the commission. Other listed "improvements" in the crime situation are the Supreme court ruling that a jury may be waived by the defendant in a felony case, an aroused public conscience, and better methods of selecting jurors in criminal cases. The commission has acquired an invaluable criminal information file at a cost of $300,000. It has also sponsored the special grand jury investigation of police departments.

Report on Public Enemies.

Regarding the 28 public enemies, the Chamberlin report says "2 are dead at the hands of their own kind; 3 are serving penitentiary sentences; 2 have been sentenced to a federal penitentiary; 3 are in jail, one for contempt of court, one awaiting trial for the murder of another public enemy, and the third for the murder of a policeman; 1 is in the hospital of the house of correction as the result of wounds inflicted by a wound-be assassin; 1 has disappeared completely and is supposed to have been murdered; 1 is about to be deported; 7 are awaiting disposition of their own cases on charges of vagrancy; 8, including Capone himself, are fugitives."

During the last year the commission prepared 1,417 reports to the pardon and parole board, Col. Chamberlin reported. Reports to the adult probation office he listed at 923, and said 1,142 persons called at the offices of the commission and obtained information and help regarding criminal prosecutions. He added that more than 5,000 postal cards were sent to complaining witnesses advising them of cases in which they were interested.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the 26th [Yankee] division, is critically ill in Massachusetts general hospital. He underwent a serious operation for abdominal trouble last night.

Surgeons said the 71-year-old veteran's progress in the next twenty-four hours would determine whether another operation would be necessary. Last night local anesthesia was used because of his advanced age.

Gen. Edwards awakened this afternoon from sleep "apparently refreshed."

PREDICT COUNTY WILL VOTE POLICE QUIZ CASH TODAY

Prosecutors Explain Jury Stand on Dry Law.

It was indicated last night that the county board's finance committee will give approval today to a request for $50,000 appropriation for the special grand jury investigation of police conditions in the county. The money is to be used to hire civilian investigators and the inquiry is expected to get under way at full speed next Monday.

County Commissioner Charles Weber said last night that from discussions of his fellow members he felt sure the $50,000 would be voted, subject to concurrence by the whole membership on Monday. Previously the finance committee had "taken the request under advisement" after listening to an appeal by State's Attorney Swanson, Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court and a committee of the special grand jury.

Explain Dry Law Stand.

President Cermak of the county board said he would vote for the appropriation, but he didn't think the money should be spent in a hunt for speakeasies. This statement brought answers from Mr. Swanson and Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, who will direct the investigation, that, although they were not making evidence of prohibition violations, they would be interested in finding out if police protection is being paid for by prohibition violators.

"I have no bones to pick with any one who wants to take a drink," Mr. Swanson said, "but I do object to any one paying protection to the police for that purpose. Where protection is involved we'll investigate. If liquor and the attending evils of gambling and vice are corrupting the police department we intend to find it out."

Mr. Mueller added, outside the finance committee rooms, that the investigation had nothing to do with liquor law enforcement except as to the general charges that the police are in collusion with organized crime and organized bootlegging.

"No Political Significance."

"This investigation will not go off at any tangent," he said. "It is not aimed at any one. No one will be permitted to use the grand jury for ulterior purposes and it has no political significance. The grand jurors are imbued with a desire to ferret out crooked policemen and rid the city of them."

Chief Justice McGoorty in a short statement to the committee said:

"The investigation is not for the purpose of carrying on an inquiry into prohibition enforcement. But if incidentally violation of the prohibition law is found to be part of a system whereby millions are made and police protection and promotions in the police department paid thereby, then the matter cannot be ignored.

"We feel most reluctant to impose additional financial burdens on the county board, but if the investigation results in laying bare the situation which we know exists, it will go far in the prevention of crime and the saving of an untold amount of money, and in addition the restoring of Chicago's good name."

Commissioners Ask Questions.

The statements were in answers to questions of the county commissioners. President Cermak, a wet leader, asked if it was not true that at least part of the inquiry would be regarding speakeasies. Cermak's final remark was that nevertheless if the state's attorney feels that the investigation is necessary, he is for it.

Commissioner Emmett J. Whealan, chairman of the finance committee, asked what assurance there was that $50,000 would be enough. He said he didn't know where the money would come from and whether it is going to be wasted. Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, a commissioner, asked why the investigation couldn't be conducted through regular channels and with Swanson's present staff and appropriation. Swanson said if he thought so he wouldn't be asking for anything else.

Questions on Loesch Inquiry.

Commissioner Daniel Ryan asked how much the recent investigation conducted by Frank J. Loesch as an assistant attorney general and assistant state's attorney had cost. He was told the total was $238,000, and that Mr. Loesch was on the roll for $27,000 for personal services, a petty cash fund, and incidentals, and that his pay was $125 a day. When he asked the results he was told there was collected $8,400 in fines, but that no jail sentences had been obtained.

President Cermak said the county is $7,000,000 short in its new budget as compared with last year, and that the taxpayers are protesting their taxes. He added that whereas last year the taxpayers paid 80 cents on the dollar, this year they will probably pay only 50 cents. J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency engineer, said Prosecutor Swanson's regular departmental request for 1931 is $100,000 above last year's appropriation. He suggested that the police inquiry costs come out of Swanson's contingent fund and Swanson's reply was, "I say no."

Object to Donated Funds.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly asked if it wouldn't be possible for citizens to advance funds with the understanding they would be reimbursed later by the county board. Cermak objected to this and so did Swanson.

"I am not in favor of having outside citizens come in and try to run my office because they supplied the money," Mr. Swanson declared.

James P. Haynes, vice president of the Association of Commerce, said he expected the county board to appropriate for the police inquiry, but if it didn't the association would then consider financing it. He said the cooperation of Alexander G. Jamie, chief investigator for the "Secret Six" committee of the association, has been promised the prosecutor for the police inquiry and that other help would be discussed at a meeting Monday.

County's Welfare Budget Is $1,069,593 Short, Board Told

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Joseph L. Moss, chief of the bureau of public welfare, used the better part of two hours yesterday explaining to the county commissioners that Cook county's prospective benevolence and its budget for 1931 are not within speaking distance of each other. Director Moss advised the commissioners, sitting as a finance committee to bring the budget items within the indicated revenue, that the discrepancy is $1,069,593.

As head of the department that has borne the brunt of the industrial and economic depression, Director Moss had some charts and figures to demonstrate the situation. It took him but a moment to show that, whereas in normal times 12,000 families are cared for by the public and private social service agencies in the county, at present 47,000 families are receiving relief—of which 20,000 are dependent on Cook county.

Tells Need of Expansion.

It took a good deal longer than that to inform the board members of the work of the departments in the bureau, and to advance reasons why they should be expanded rather than curtailed. He cited the $100,000 collected by the welfare bureau from relatives of county charges who were discovered to be able to afford the care of these wards; the $175,000 collected by the alimony bureau and dispensed to divorced wives for the support of their children, without a single complaint having been received from the husbands who would not have paid the money without this supervision; and the investigating staff which last year interviewed 130,000 patients admitted to Cook County hospital, and collected social histories of delinquent youths.

"There has to be some method of determining who is eligible for the hospital service and who is not," Mr. Moss explained. "Our County hospital is rated so highly, medically, that many people who can afford to go elsewhere try to enter there for treatment. These investigations save the county a great deal of money. At Oak Forest, for instance, we have 4,000 inmates, at a cost of about $350 a year each. Additional investigators would mean that some of the 4,000 would be weeded out."

"Mr. Chairman," spoke up Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, "I believe one of our first duties is to see that the hungry are fed. Why not take care of that first, and use the rest of the money for other charitable purposes?"

"You'd find, in that case," replied Chairman Emmett Whealan, "that there wouldn't be any money left over for the courts or anything else."

Ald. John Toman, a spectator, spoke up from the sidelines.

"There isn't a city anywhere that's advertised for its charity as Chicago is," he complained. "We do so much that we attract people here who expect the county to take care of them. We'd better begin to ship some of them back home."

"We spent $5,000 last year for deporting such cases," commented Director Moss.

Charity Leaders Speak.

Wilfred S. Reynolds of the Chicago council of social agencies; Louis M. Cahn of the Jewish Charities, and the Rev. Frederick Seidenberg of the Catholic Charities, spoke briefly. J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert, was appointed to confer with Director Moss on curtailing the welfare bureau estimates.

President Anton Cermak acquainted the board at the morning session with the fact that Cook county was 100 years old yesterday. He produced a small book, "The Laws of Illinois," passed at the seventh general assembly at Vandalia, containing "an act to create and organize the counties herein named, in force Jan. 15, 1831."

SUSPENDS POLICE LIEUTENANTS FOR 'USELESS' ARREST

Rum Case Fails for Lack of Warrant.

Acting Police Comissioner Alcock yesterday announced the first suspension of policemen for violation of his recent order to the force not to make "useless" arrests. Those suspended were Lieuts. Thomas O'Hara and Harry O'Donnell of the Cragin station, who arrested a soft drink parlor proprietor on charges of possession and sale of intoxicating liquor.

The two lieutenants were walking in Grand avenue after 1 a. m. several days ago when they noticed lights and a number of men in the soft drink parlor of Mathias Steger at 4753 Grand avenue. Although the place is listed in the telephone book as a restaurant, Steger has only a soft drink license, which requires him to close at 1 a. m., according to Capt. John Stege, commander of the Cragin district.

Policemen Enter Place.

Noticing the violation of the city ordinance, O'Hara and O'Donnell walked in and inquired of Steger, "Why are you open?" Steger did not answer, according to Capt. Stege's report to Alcock.

While paying no attention to the policemen, Steger, according to the lieutenants' report, asked the men present if they would have a drink on the house. During the ensuing argument the two policemen walked behind the bar and confiscated several pints of liquor and took samples of the beer. Steger was arrested and booked on charges of violation of the city closing ordinance and for possession and sale of intoxicating liquor.

The case came up the next day in the Shakespeare avenue court before Judge Alfred O. Erickson. On the motion of defense attorneys, Judge Erickson suppressed the liquor evidence on the ground that the policemen did not have a search warrant and freed Steger on the city ordinance charge.

Stege Reports to Alcock.

In accordance with Alcock's orders, Capt. Stege made a report of the disposition of the case. He said the policemen had not entered the place to make a search but to inquire into violation of a city ordinance. The presence of liquor was disclosed later and was followed by a recommendation to revoke the soft drink license.

LYLE TO INVESTIGATE NEW CHARGE AGAINST TWO GIVEN 'A CHANCE'

Two men, arraigned on burglary charges before Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court a week ago, were given "another chance" because of their previous good records. They are Robert Steele, 26 years old, and John Platt, 21 years old, both of 4820 West Adams street.

The two were captured through the efforts of Mortimer Sherf, 545 North Cicero avenue, who owns a store next to the shoe store at 543 North Cicero avenue, which was robbed. Early Wednesday the windows of Sherf's store were broken. He charged yesterday that the discharged men smashed them.

"I risked my life in halting that burglary," said Sherf. "They were caught with several pairs of shoes. They are discharged. Then they break my windows."

Records of the Felony court show that Judge Lyle refused to issue a warrant. It was recalled that the judge remarked that the men had never been arrested before and that the value of the property they were supposed to have taken amounted only to $18.

"If they'll promise to keep straight," said the judge, "I'll give them another chance." Steele and Platt made the promise.

Judge Lyle said last night that he had not been informed of the window breaking charge. He will make an investigation, he declared, and if Steele and Platt are shown to be guilty of breaking Sherf's windows they will be punished severely.

COALITION GAINS POINT FOR VOTE ON FOOD RELIEF

Senate Regulars Forced to Give Ground.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—A sudden sally by the Democratic-radical Republican coalition in the senate battle over a federal relief appropriation for food caught the regular Republican leaders unaware today and forced them to give ground.

When the skirmish was over the coalition had its amendment calling for $25,000,000 to be given the Red Cross for food distribution on the floor of the senate ready to be voted on as a rider to the pending interior department appropriation bill.

The obstacle the coalition had been fearing—the necessity of getting a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules in order to put the amendment out where it could be voted on—had been scaled.

Threat Brings Action.

The maneuver was successfully carried out by a threat to hold up the interior department bill still further. Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, was the victorious leader.

Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, was the vanquished. He succeeded in advancing the interior department bill he had so patiently shepherded during days of debate on other matters, but only after he had been forced to accede to the coalition's demands for action on food relief.

Senator Robinson made his move immediately after Senator Smoot, for the tenth time since congress reconvened, Jan. 5, had asked for unanimous consent to take up the interior department bill.

Robinson Asks Consent.

"I do not wish to delay or interfere with the consideration of appropriation bills," Senator Robinson began. "In fact, I always try to facilitate their passage. All I am doing is to ask the same favor that the senator from Utah is asking. He requests unanimous consent to lay aside the unfinished business and take up the interior department bill. All I ask is unanimous consent to waive the rule that, unless suspended, would require a two-thirds vote before the senate could pass on this amendment."

Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant majority leader, started to frame a protest—then subsided. Senator Robinson's uplifted right hand smacked into the palm of his left.

"The senate might as well understand," he barked, "that this amendment or one like it is going to be voted on. If the senate will not accede to my request now, I will give the same notice that I gave yesterday concerning the department of agriculture appropriation bill—that I will move to suspend the rules and get this amendment out where it can be voted up or down."

Smoot Leaves to Confer.

Senator Smoot remarked that he had no authority to accede to Senator Robinson's request. He would withdraw his request that the interior department bill be taken up. He disappeared from the chamber.

Unexpectedly a Republican regular got up. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge [Rep., Cal.], and announced: "I think the request of the senator from Utah is in order and should be acted upon."

Senator Smoot was absent for a long time. Finally he returned.

"I have conferred with the members of the subcommittee in charge of the interior bill," he announced, "and they are agreed that the request of the senator from Arkansas should be granted."

Triumphantly Senator Robinson handed up his amendment. Shortly after the senate acted President Hoover signed the act of congress appropriating $45,000,000 for loans to distressed farmers in drought areas.

Vote Is Believed Near.

The crucial vote upon the Robinson amendment will come in all probability tomorrow with predictions that it will have an excellent chance to be approved.

If it is, the fight of the senate coalition is all but won. It can sit back and wait for victory. The interior department bill, having been passed by the senate, will go to conference. The house conferees will insist that the food amendment be stricken. The senate coalition can say "no"—and wait. All it will have to do is wait until somebody cracks—or unless President Hoover promises an extra session with further and satisfactory relief measures.

There were other indications that the temper of the senate is warming up. Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], president pro tempore, was a chief actor in the debate over the Nye committee, and in a clash with Alabama's oratorical senator, Tom Heflin, a Democratic lame duck.

Senator Heflin called up his resolution to instruct the secretary of agriculture to distribute the funds of the $45,000,000 drought relief appropriation equally among all counties in the drought area. Senator McNary interposed. Senator Moses objected. Senator Heflin launched into an hour long speech which began:

"That is in keeping with the position of the senator from New Hampshire when human suffering is involved. If the senator wants a filibuster and an extra session all he has to do is keep on that way."

He continued with passages about "ballot box burglary," the "iniquitous" New York Stock exchange, Mr. Raskob, and the Democratic party—which cast him out in the campaign in which he was defeated.

STOCK WILL STARVE UNLESS FOOD COMES, RED CROSS IS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Word that thousands of mules and cattle would die of starvation in Arkansas unless feed is furnished at once came today to the Red Cross.

All but nine of the 75 counties of Arkansas and one-third the area of Kentucky were said to be receiving food from the Red Cross.

These two states were hardest hit, but the distress had extended to 353 counties in 21 states.

Chairman John Barton Payne announced that 405,000 persons are now being cared for. Cash grants, he said, have totaled $619,781.80 and total expenditures for all types of aid $1,352,827.54.

Estimates were that 5,000 families, or about 24,530 persons, were being fed in Kentucky.

Army Helps Feed Needy.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Six additional rolling kitchens and army trucks to augment efforts of the Oklahoma City Veterans of Foreign Wars to feed unemployed persons were asked today of the commander of the Eighth corps area at San Antonio by Gov. W. H. Murray.

The equipment is available at Fort Sill, Okla., the governor's office said.

Already hundreds of hungry men are being fed daily from three National Guard rolling kitchens manned by former army cooks under command of Col. L. W. Rook, retired.

Waste food is contributed daily from bakeries, hotels, restaurants, wholesale and retail houses.

PASS ARMY BILL DESPITE ATTACK FROM PACIFISTS

Senate Hears Fight Over Navy Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.] — Preparedness and pacifism warred at both ends of the capitol today.

In the house an attempt to emasculate the $4,000,000 appropriation for the R. O. T. C. went down to defeat by a vote of 271 to 59, and the war department appropriation bill carrying allotments of $446,024,000 was successfully passed.

In the senate a debate over the $30,000,000 to modernize the battleships Mississippi, New Mexico, and Idaho was transformed from a pacifist lecture by Senator Lynn N. Frazier, North Dakota radical Republican, into a critical discussion by Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Ia.], radical Republican, and Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], on the art of war as it ought to be—and is not—practiced by the general staff and army war college.

La Guardia Leads Attack.

The attack on the war department bill in the house was led by Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], who introduced an amendment to provide that none of the $3,960,000 allotted the R. O. T. C. should be used in civilian schools where military training is made compulsory by faculty rulings.

He was opposed by Representative Henry E. Barbour [Rep., Cal.]. Representative La Guardia asserted that the national defense act declared against compulsory military training in the schools.

Mr. Barbour declared such a limitation would cut off most of the land grant colleges, which now require military training as part of the course for men.

"The federal government doesn't attempt to say whether or not military training in these schools should be compulsory," he contended. "That matter is up to the schools."

The La Guardia amendment was defeated, 162 to 50, on a rising vote, and later, when the New York representative had forced a roll call, it was snowed under, 271 to 59.

The senate debate saw Senator Frazier pleading that huge sums were being spent by this country for its army and navy while its inhabitants were walking the streets jobless and hungry.

"This country, which initiated the Kellogg peace treaty and got 53 nations to sign it," he declared, "is making appropriations for the army and navy still larger than those of last year."

As to modernizing the three battleships, he declared that the battleship had been proved obsolete in the face of attack from the air and that to appropriate $30,000,000 was to throw that sum away.

"It is to give these uniformed and tinseled officers modern battleships to show their ladies as they promenade the decks," he said. "With one of these ships to be modernized at Philadelphia and the other at Norfolk, this bill become merely a private relief bill for the senators from Pennsylvania [Senator Reed] and Virginia [Senator Swanson]."

Senator Tydings, who rose through the ranks during the world war from enlisted man to lieutenant colonel and who was decorated for his service, was drawn into the discussion. He cited the need for an adequate navy if the army was to be kept small. Then Senator Brookhart entered the debate. Senator Brookhart saw service in the Spanish-American war, on the Mexican border, and during the world war was a lieutenant colonel and, as an internationally known rifleman, was instructor in marksmanship at Camps Perry and Bennings. Senator Brookhart had his opinion of the regular army.

Discusses Army Ability.

"In the world war there were twenty regular division, seventeen National Guard divisions, and seventeen national army divisions," he said.

"The national army and National Guard divisions all got across and all of them made good. Of the 20 regular divisions only eight of them got across during the war. Twelve of them were on this side still training when the armistice was signed, and in those divisions were the oldest regiments, regular stuff. The regulars always get behind the times; they will not listen to anybody like Gen. Mitchell or like the present head of the air service, Gen. Fechet. I asked Gen. Fechet when we were discussing $200,000,000 for cruisers what he could do if we would give him 200 millions for the air service. He said that in three or four years he could promise to be ready to sink all of the warships in the world before they could get within 200 miles of our coast and that would include Porto Rico, Panama, the Hawaiian islands, and the Philippines."

Senator Tydings reminded him that the world war presented an unusual situation, and one not likely to be repeated, in which America had time to prepare while the allies held the front.

Praises Citizen Soldier.

"I did not suggest that the citizen soldiers did not do their duty," said Senator Brookhart. "They won the war. If the National Guard had been under its own control instead of under the general staff control in Washington which was always seeking for some chance to can every National Guard officer and make a place, particularly in the higher ranks, for some regular officer, we would have been ready in seven instead of fourteen months.

"The best training Gen. Grant ever got was when he resigned from the army, settled on a farm, went broke and got some common sense."

"I went abroad with one of these so-called fine National Guard divisions of which he speaks," Senator Tydings replied, "and served for many months in active warfare on the other side, and, I am sorry to say, left many of my good friends and comrades over there. Where life was wasted in the war it was due to the fact that there was insufficient time to train a man so that he could rely on himself."

"The inadequacy of the training was more to blame than lack of time," Senator Brookhart maintained.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A special reserve fund of $5,000,000 on which federal land banks could draw to defer foreclosures on farms was proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Steagall of Alabama.

The house library committee expects to take action tomorrow on a bill to authorize $750,000 for the George Rogers Clark memorial at Vincennes, Ind.

Senator Glenn [Rep., Ill.] and Charles F. Drake, publicity director for the Thompson restaurants, invited President Hoover today to speak at a banquet later in the year to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the foundation of the Thompson restaurants. The President took the invitation under consideration.

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen pleaded with the house naval committee for reinstatement of the two midshipmen discharged from the naval academy for taking two girls into the mess hall.

Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] predicted his bill which would authorize an appropriation of $150,000,000 as a reserve fund for public works would be reported early next week.

WOMAN WITNESS IN MURDER CASE STABBED, BEATEN

Portland, Ore., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. W. H. Howard, important witness in the mystery slaying of Mrs. Leone Bowles, Portland society woman, was stabbed twice above the heart and beaten on the head today by a man who seized her as she stepped to the back porch of her home.

The unidentified assailant escaped. The victim's condition is critical. Several weeks ago Mrs. Howard was beaten by two men who entered her home. She said she was threatened with death if she testified in the Bowles case.

Nelson C. Bowles, millionaire, and his former secretary, Irma Loucks Paris, are charged with stabbing Mrs. Bowles, the capitalist's wife, to death. She was found dead in the apartment of Mrs. Paris. Bowles and Mrs. Paris said she took her own life after upbraiding them for their intimacies.

Woman Suing Chaplin as Plagiarist Goes on Stand

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Antionette Kopetsky, woman writer who is suing Charlie Chaplin and claiming $100,000 damages for asserted plagiarism in Chaplin's motion picture, "The Circus," was on the stand in her own behalf today. Chaplin was not in court, but probably will appear tomorrow, his attorneys stated. Miss Kopetsky said that she submitted a scenario called "Charlie of the Circus" to Chaplin in 1919. She asserts Chaplin lifted much of this scenario for his movie which was started in 1925. Chaplin's answer to her suit admitted receipt of the scenario, but stated that it was returned to the sender unopened.

FEDERAL BUREAU WIRE TAPPING TO BE LOOKED INTO

Other Dry Law Sleuthing Draws House Fire.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Wire tapping by the prohibition bureau of the department of justice is to be investigated by the house committee on expenditures in executive departments.

The inquiry was ordered today on the motion of Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.], an active wet. Attorney General W. D. Mitchell and Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock will be summoned before the committee as the first witnesses on Jan. 29.

The investigation grows out of a defense of wire tapping by prohibition agents in the testimony of Mr. Woodcock before an appropriations subcommittee considering the annual appropriation bill of the department of justice.

Representative Schafer read to the committee a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, stating that wire tapping had not been countenanced by that bureau for the last two years.

Representative Schafer will offer an amendment to prohibit wire tapping when the prohibition bureau's appropriations come up for consideration in the house. He presented a similar amendment to the prohibition bureau's item in the deficiency bill, but met defeat.

Department Funds Up Today.

Consideration of the appropriation bill, carrying funds for the departments of state, justice, commerce, and labor, will commence in the house tomorrow. Action on amendments probably will not be reached before Saturday—possibly next week. Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] is to offer various amendments, including a number aimed at the use of government money to purchase liquor and to employ "stool pigeons." Representative J. C. Linthicum [Dem., Md.] will present an amendment hitting at establishment of speakeasies by the government to trap prohibition violators. Representatives James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] is also expected to attack prohibition enforcement methods.

The Washington Crusaders, through Milton W. King, their commander, issued a protest against inclusion in the appropriation bill of an item of $250,000 for the purchase of "liquor, food, and similar expenses" of prohibition agents and $160,500 for "special employés" or "stool pigeons."

"It is outrageous that the government should spend public funds trying to entrap people into violation of the law," said Mr. King. "It puts a premium on 'entrapment,' a doctrine which is not sanctioned by the courts and which encourages the despicable stool pigeon to give false evidence."

Balk Dry Tag on Border Law.

The administration bill for a unified border patrol, to include present activities relating to prohibition, customs, and immigration, received a further setback when officials of the American Federation of Labor opposed it before the senate committee on commerce, on the ground that immigration work might be subordinated to liquor law enforcement. The committee concluded its hearings. The bill was passed by the house last spring.

"We do not want American labor to become the victim of the struggle between the wets and drys," said William C. Hushing, an organizer for the labor body, before the committee.

Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of coast guard customs, industrial alcohol, and narcotics, testified in favor of the bill, opposing the unified border patrol under either the department of labor of department of justice.

Hoover Signs Modified Dry Bill.

President Hoover today signed the bill for a modification of the drastic Jones law by making certain minor offenses misdemeanors instead of felonies. Both houses passed the bill last spring, the house concurring last week in senate amendments.

FOURTH OF 1930 PADLOCK CASES TRIED IN GOTHAM

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—More than 1,740 padlock cases, or almost one-fourth of the total number tried in the United States, were disposed of here in 1920, Earle N. Bishop, assistant United States attorney, announced today. Practically all of the trials, he said, resulted in decisions in favor of the government.

More than 190 cases, nearly a record, he said, had been put on the trial calendar for next week. Among the cases to be tried is that filed Dec. 22 against Belle Livingstone, whose "salon," known as the Fifty-eighth Street Country club, was raided Tuesday.

Uphold Auto Theft Verdict Against Police Lieutenant

The conviction of former Police Lieutenant John W. Loftus, who was sentenced to four years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $1,000 by Federal Judge Woodward for violating the Dyer act, was affirmed yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The testimony showed that Loftus was a member of a gang which engaged in stealing and selling automobiles in Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, according to the written opinion. Ted and Leo Baldwin, leaders of the auto theft gang, confessed and are now serving sentences.

HOLD UP REPORT OF WICKERSHAM ANOTHER DAY

Said to Be Exhaustive of Detailed Facts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Washington officials in a favorable position to gain advance information regarding the contents of the Wickersham report on prohibition advanced the opinion today that while it will contain a wealth of ammunition for both wets and drys, it will not advance any definite solution of the controversial liquor problem. These authorities said the bulky report would, however, be extremely exhaustive and informative on the history of the eleven years of prohibition.

As these views were being advanced, members of the Wickersham group kept their report locked up securely in the commission archives. All inquiries as to when the document is to be released to the press or the nature of its recommendations met with no response from either Chairman George W. Wickersham or the three other members who responded to the call for a session today. In the absence of a quorum the meeting was postponed until tomorrow.

Cause of Delay Unknown.

Just what is holding back the report remained a puzzle. The conclusions of the eleven members have been ready for some time, but it is believed Chairman Wickersham desires to have another meeting before delivering the report to President Hoover.

According to those who profess to have some knowledge of the contents of the commission's report, the document will present a detailed picture of the attempt to enforce prohibition, including the lawlessness that has sprung up in the wake of dry enforcement. The economic effects of prohibition are outlined, it is said, to the best of the ability of the commission.

To Disappoint Wets?

One official expressed the view that the report is certain to be disappointing to those wets who had hoped the commission would find a way to lead the nation out of the morass of present day prohibition. He added, however, that the commission's labors should clarify the atmosphere and give congress an accurate picture of just what national prohibition has and has not accomplished.

The consensus seems to be that the commission will be content to present a complete picture of prohibition to congress, recommend that enforcement of the dry law be carried on for the present and leave the ultimate solution of the liquor problem to congress.

PROHIBITION'S PATH STORMY AS EVER AS IT BEGINS TWELFTH YEAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Eleven years old at midnight, prohibition ended the first year of its second decade today with few prospects that its path would lead away from the tumult and controversy that have dogged its history.

Dry leaders tonight, although conceding few peaceful moments for prohibition in its twelfth year, nevertheless tood firm that the law would remain.

Despite "imperfect observance and enforcement," said a statement tonight from the Women's Christian Temperance union, "prohibition already has increased the national purchasing power by six billion dollars a year."

On the other side, Henry Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, stood on his recent prediction that twenty-four states now were ready to vote for repeal and that the necessary twelve more could be marshaled within two years after the question was submitted to the people by congress. At the same time he listed gains in the wet ranks from the recent congressional elections.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, said eleven years "have been sufficient to prove that the policy of prohibiting intoxicating liquor under uniform, nation-wide laws offers the best solution of the liquor problem."

Delay Inquest While Police Sift Killing of Hoodlum

The inquest into the killing on Wednesday night of Enrico Bertocchi, minor hoodlum, was continued yesterday by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel until Jan. 29, to allow the police more time for investigation. Bertocchi was shot to death at 25th street and Washtenaw avenue while riding in the automobile of Dr. William Hejna of Berwyn, a dentist, who was wounded. According to Mrs. Tillie Bertocchi, the widow, her husband had worked in Al Caponi's soup kitchen at 935 South State street. Anthony D'Andrea, manager of the place, testified Bertocchi was employed there occasionally.

LEO BROTHERS' ARRAIGNMENT IS POSTPONED

The arraignment of Leo V. Brothers, indicted as the slayer of Alfred Lingle, will take place either tomorrow morning or Monday, Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court announced yesterday when he appeared in court after an absence of several days due to illness. It was thought that the arraignment would occur yesterday, but the later date was agreed on by Judge McGoorty and State's Attorney Swanson.

At the same time Prosecutor Swanson announced that he had received a letter from Frank X. Keller, chief clerk of the circuit attorney at St. Louis requesting that Brothers be turned over to the authorities of that city in the event he should be acquitted of the Lingle murder. He is wanted in St. Louis for the killing on Aug. 2, 1929, of John De Blaza during a taxicab war.

Attorney Tyrell Krum, one of the firm of lawyers defending Brothers, said that his client will plead not guilty at the arraignment.

CHARGE FORGED WILL SIGNATURE; PROBATE HALTED

Kittie Gunn Jones Contest Waged in Court.

The charge that the signature of Mrs. Kittie Gunn Jones was forged on her will which disposes of an estate of more than $400,000 was made in a petition filed yesterday with Acting Probate Judge Harry C. Daniels. After examining the petition the judge refused to probate the will, which leaves the entire estate of the dead woman to her second husband, George W. Jones.

The petition was filed on behalf of nine relatives of Mrs. Jones, who died suddenly on Sept. 6, despite the protests of attorneys for Jones. The petition asks that Jones be removed as administrator of the estate on grounds that the will is fraudulent.

Tells of Signing Will.

The efforts of the relatives to invalidate the will began Wednesday with the testimony of Robert E. Ward, a publicity man, who said that he had signed his name as a witness to the will a year after the will was executed. He said that Mrs. Jones was not present at the time as required by law.

The petition points out that Jones asked Ward to sign the will and instructed him to say that he had signed it on Aug. 27, 1927, instead of in August, 1928.

Judge Daniels announced that he would rule on the petition tomorrow but it was learned that the hearing will be continued to await further developments in the case.

Petition Is Refused.

Failing in their efforts to have Judge Daniels approve the appointment of Jones as administrator, his attorneys went to Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner, with a petition asking that Jones be named administrator on the grounds that Mrs. Jones died intestate.

Mr. Caplan refused to accept the petition. Later he announced that Judge Horner had issued instructions that a bank only may be named to administer the estate.

From other sources it was learned that a new will is to be produced in court next Wednesday. It was not made known if this will is the one which Mrs. A. M. Simpson of the Lexington hotel had reported she found. Mrs. Simpson was to have appeared in court yesterday but it was found that she had hurriedly checked out of the hotel.

The nine relatives who are contesting the will introduced by Jones are Charles Oakley, George Parker, Fred Andrews, George Oakley, Mauda Koehler, Henry Parker, Harriet Bassett, Nina Parker, and Lee Parker.

STRANGLER KILLS WOMAN, FLEES AS FRIENDS ARRIVE

Breaks Window and Escapes.

and looked inside the garage. Suddenly there was a crash and the tinkling of shattered glass. Miss Morse screamed. She observed a leather coated youth, his face turned toward her for an instant, forcing his way through another small window 12 inches high, 24 inches wide. She stared, speechless, as he wriggled out, and then cried: "There he goes." Seastrom was at her side but not in time to glimpse the killer, who had disappeared around the bend in the alley. At that moment the slayer brushed past the Huey boy. The fugitive was clutching a light colored cap to his head. He disappeared over the tracks and toward Southport avenue as Mrs. Amy Brandenbeurger, 1144 Newport avenue, espied him from her window.

Seastrom tugged frantically at the large doors and finally forced them open. In a corner of the garage lay the body of Mrs. Moss. Around her throat was the rope. It had been used as a dog leash by Miss Morse, and had been taken from the latter's car. Mrs. Moss' face was marked, and it was evident she had put up a fierce struggle until overwhelmed by her assailant. The rope was wound about her neck several times and drawn taut, but was not knotted.

Torn Coat Is Clew.

In the center of the garage is a dividing partition extending to within three feet of the ceiling. The slayer scaled this obstruction before reaching the small window on the opposite side and escaping. Several pieces of jagged glass protruded and caught remnants of his coat. These clews were later scraped off by Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, crime expert of the Northwestern university crime laboratory, for possible use in event of the slayer's capture. The killer had torn his leather coat in squeezing through the window. Outside the garage he had also dropped a coat button.

Capt. McCarthy immediately ordered a survey of neighborhood clothiers in an effort to trace both the coat and button. He is convinced that the killer lives in the vicinity, he said. Later in the night a man in a leather coat was questioned and held for further examination, but it was said the description did not agree with that from the witnesses.

In some ways the strangler's appearance tallied with that of the ribbon murderer of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, who was strangled in her apartment at 5830 West Lake street, Austin, on April 2, last year. Although descriptions varied as to the supposed Helsing murderer, it was recalled that one pictured him as wearing a sheepskin lined leather coat.

Suspects Resident of Vicinity.

"Mrs. Moss' murderer may have known her slightly, and followed her to the garage," said Capt. McCarthy last night. "He may have been in the garage when she entered, either with the idea of robbing and raping her, or just stealing the car. I believe he lives in the neighborhood, for the manner in which he escaped indicated he knew the locality."

The dead woman was divorced 10 years ago. Little else is known of her except that she was efficient, well liked, and retiring. In her effects was found a card bearing the name: "Dr. M. P. Moss, 704 Northumberland road, Roanoke, Va." This, according to friends, was her father, a retired physician. When she was divorced, Mrs. Moss had taken her maiden name, though retaining the title "Mrs." An inquest will be held today at the undertaking rooms at 3582 Southport avenue.

Chimney Fire at French Embassy in Washington

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A small chimney fire in the French embassy was quickly extinguished tonight by firemen. Soft coal caused congestion of the chimney. Firemen put out the flames with a hand extinguisher before they spread to the building itself.

NEW TREASURER OF TEXAS, ONLY 3¾ FEET TALL, TAKES OATH

Austin, Tex., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A little man took over a big job today when Charley Lockhart of Austin took the oath of office as treasurer of the state of Texas.

Lockhart, who is 45 inches tall, scrambled vigorously up the leg of a chair and stood on the seat to take the oath of office. Before the oath wa administered he rested by sitting on the arm.

The midget treasurer, who will handle all the funds of the Lone Star state, has battled his way in politics since 1900 when he was elected treasurer of Scurry county. In his campaign Lockhart told the voters "My arms are too short to reach very deep into the sack and my hands are too small to hold much on the way out."

MILLNER CANNOT RECALL HALF OF CANAL LAWYERS

His Duty to Give Them Work, Judge Is Told.

Le Roy Millner, former first assistant atjorney for the sanitary district under the régime of Attorney Hector A. Brouillet, which ended in 1926, was called as a witness yesterday before Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor, sitting as commissioner for the Supreme court in the disciplinary proceedings brought against 54 lawyers by the Chicago Bar association in connection with the district's pay roll scandals.

The names of approximately eighty lawyers who were on the district's pay roll during his term of service were read to Mr. Millner by Attorney Willard R. Matheny, representing the bar association. On the list were ten of the fifty-four lawyers named in the association's action. As the attorneys on the list were named Mr. Millner was asked to say whether he remembered them or their work.

Recalls 40 of 80 Named.

Of the eighty he said that he could "recall" approximately forty. Nine of those he could not remember are named in the association's action. Mr. Millner said that it was his duty to assign work to the lawyers employed by the district. He said that he had kept a record of the assignments in a book, but could not remember where the book was. Mr. Millner is not among the lawyers named in the petition for disciplinary action.

Witnesses were called to explain the routine of the district's law office throughout the remainder of the hearing. Methods of hiring and discharging attorneys, keeping records, and paying salaries were told. Clerks formerly with the law office declared that they could not name attorneys to whom cases were assigned because of the great number of cases, approximately 6,000.

Bar Asks Discipline.

The bar association asks in the proceeding that discipline be measured on those named. The petition says that this discipline may take the form of disbarment, revocation of licenses for a period, or a reprimand.

The arguments on a motion to quash indictments against T. J. Crowe, former president of the district, and seven other officials and employes on graft conspiracy charges, continued yesterday before Judge Joseph B. David in the Criminal court. The validity of the indictments was upheld by Attorney Edward J. Raber, former assistant state's attorney, who drafted them. The case against the defendants is scheduled to begin when Judge David returns from his vacation in April. It is estimated that a week will be required before the preliminary motion is passed on.

At the Triangle

IT has become increasingly the custom for patrons of the Triangle restaurants to come "en famille" to the Triangle on Sunday. Perhaps it is for the change. It is a rest for her upon whom the work falls at home. Perhaps because of the special attention, split portions, etc., provided for children. Certainly it is because the quality of Triangle food and cookery is a treat on any day. And the cost, except for a very large family, is less than for such a dinner at home.

In addition to the usual a la carte menus, affording choice for any taste—on Sunday, there is a special one dollar table d'hote dinner which, from soup to dessert, upholds the Triangle tradition of substantial quality and generous portions.

MISSING

WILLIAM F. WILLIAMS.

No trace was found yesterday of William F. Williams, 41 years old, 6505 Evans avenue, cattle analyst for Armour & Co. and treasurer of the Trinity Congregational church, who has been missing a week. He left a note addressed to his wife, Edna, in which he said, "I have broken down. I don't know what to do, unless I try to reach my sister. Pray for me."

After an all day search and questioning of relatives, business associates, and friends, police last night had been unable to find any clews. When last seen he was dressed in a gray business suit, an imported overcoat, marked "Made in England," and a tan fedora. He is 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighs 163 pounds, and has brown eyes and gray hair. He had $60 in his possession. His wife could give no reason for his disappearance.

Benefits of Government Told Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Participation of the government in the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago in 1933 was advocated today before the house committee on libraries. Witnesses included members of President Hoover's commission which investigated the question and officials of the exposition.

They appeared in behalf of the bill sponsored by Representative Carl E. Chindblom [Rep., Ill.] in the house and by Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] in the senate appropriating $1,725,000 for a government building and for exhibits and other expense of a fair commission.

Supporting President Hoover's recent recommendation to congress for government participation were Assistant Secretary of State William R. Castle, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture R. W. Dunlap, and John Matthews of the department of commerce. Chicagoans present included Rufus C. Dawes, president of the exposition; Charles S. Peterson, vice president; Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, managing director; Col. John S. Sewell, director of exhibits.

Early Action Expected.

The committee did not act, but is expected to report the bill favorably. Early action also is expected by the senate commerce committee which today appointed a subcommittee of Senators Deneen, A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], and Duncan Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] to consider the bill.

Assistant Secretaries Castle and Dunlap, who joined in a favorable report to President Hoover after visiting Chicago and consulting with exposition officials there, were both enthusiastic over prospects.

"We became convinced that participation of the government is of great importance," said Mr. Castle. "The exposition will be a great thing and will do a great deal of good. It seems to us that the government should be well represented, as it will afford an opportunity to show the people of the United States just what the government is doing for them.

"We want to show what the government has done in scientific progress, education, child welfare, and various aspects of agriculture and industry. The agricultural end of the exposition is perhaps more important than anything else in the center of a great agricultural region."

Future of Building.

The house committee expressed interest in the financing of the exposition and in what would be done with the proposed $500,000 government building after the exposition is over. President Dawes asserted that the financing scheme was sound and that it was not intended to make a profit. Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.] suggested a permanent government exhibit at Chicago.

N. Y. C. RAILROAD WILL BUILD NEW YARDS AT GARY

Construction of new yards costing between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 will be started by the end of the year in Gary by the New York Central railroad, according to an announcement made to Gary officials yesterday by John Gavit of Hammond, attorney for the road.

The yards will be built on 100 acres in the west section of Gary and will connect with the Gibson yards in Hammond. At present the Gibson yards are the principal transfer grounds of the railroads outside Chicago and interlock with all lines entering the city from that direction.

Attorney Gavit made the plans known in a request to the Gary board of improvements for the closing of 15 Gary streets crossing the area. Creation of the yards will mean, Mr. Gavit said, the inclusion of Gary in the Chicago switching system and may bring appreciably lower freight rates to Gary shippers.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham brings French magic to the serving of this friendly coffee*

Mrs. Graham is wife to the distinguished architect of Graham, Anderson, Probst and White; a travel and opera lover, and a sparkling figure in exclusive Chicago society. Her magnificent stone mansion is of pure Georgian style, and covers a quarter-square of the Gold Coast. Next to gathering friends around the friendly bowl of Manor House, she loves her work as President of the Free Milk Fund for Chicago's underprivileged babies. Remember the gigantic milk bottle in Grant Park that school children filled with pennies?

IN Mrs. Graham, blossoms again the ancestral hospitality of the Fitzhughs . . . those famous hosts of Chatham Manor, at Fredericksburg on the Rappahannock, where all the Presidents from Washington to Lincoln "loved to put their legs under the mahogany" . . . where General Robert E. Lee courted the lovely Mary Custis, and where even Charles Dickens grew mellow and reminiscent over the coffee cups.

"What wonderful memories I owe," says Mrs. Graham, "to this rich Manor House flavor, for under its spell guests relax and talk contentedly of their most interesting experiences. It seems strange that one coffee should have this delightful effect more than others. But I have experimented with the costliest blends I know of, and only Manor House can be depended on always to touch that responsive chord in all people. Whether for Café Diable or for breakfast, my cooks are quite as insistent as I on serving this blend, because even they cannot make good coffee out of poor coffee. And it's the coffee that decides one's opinion of the meal."

That is why 92% of Chicago's society women serve only this blend.

Remember, McLaughlin's Manor House is something more than just coffee . . . as a Rembrandt is something more than just a painting. For this masterpiece of coffee flavors is born of a secret old recipe . . . still patiently blended by hand . . . of specially nurtured beans, mellowed through months of leisurely natural ageing . . . and vacuum packed, still warm and fragrant from the roaster.

A costly method . . . too costly for any save the rarest blend . . . and the only method that can create this cherished Manor House bouquet, and present it to you in unvarying richness, savory cup duplicating savory cup, with a uniformity no other blend can promise.

Yet Manor House may be your daily delight for only a few pennies a pound more than the most ordinary blend . . . small price to pay for all that Manor House can mean to your reputation as a successful hostess and homemaker.

Café Diable—"coffee from the devil's pot"—is one of the joys of accepting Mrs. Graham's coveted invitations. In true Georgian grandeur, among the rich ancestral portraits, the candles burn low, a hush falls, while Maurice—who was chef to the King of Spain and other celebrated gourmets—serves "Manor House and spice and everything nice" from a blazing silver bowl. "Only Manor House" declares this happy hostess, "has the full-bodied flavor and aroma necessary to make this an ambrosia fit for the gods."

HALF OF ILLINOIS COUNTIES REVEAL POPULATION LOSS

Courtney Moves to Draft Remapping Plan.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Receding populations in more than one-half Illinois' counties during the last thirty years moved to the fore today in the preliminaries for the battle over reapportionment, now two decades overdue.

Senate leaders before departing for their homes tonight pondered over the tides of population disclosed by the official census figures. The consequent lopsidedness which has developed in the districts was brought out in high relief. An analysis of the ebb and flow shows a concentration and growth in well defined areas and a diminishment in some large rural areas.

Districts Established in 1901.

The present districts were established in 1901, and here are a few of the protruberant facts indicated by an analysis of the census:

1. Sixty-two of Illinois 101 downstate counties have smaller population than ten years ago.

2. Fifty-six counties have less population than thirty years ago. These counties have 183,000 fewer inhabitants than when the present districts were formed in 1901. Meanwhile the state has grown from 4,821,550 to 7,630,654.

3. Thirty years ago these counties had 25.4 per cent of the population of the state, now they contain only 13.6 per cent, but the districts are the same.

Courtney Opens Issue.

Senator Tom Courtney of Chicago, minority leader, opened the remapping issue this morning by presenting a resolution ordering the legislative reference bureau to prepare a tentative redistricting scheme. It set forth that last week the members, with right hands upraised, took oaths to obey the constitution, which requires the legislature to reapportion every ten years. It declared that Gov. Emmerson in his message suggesting Cook county be restricted "indirectly recommended to the senators an evasion of the constitutional provision on redistricting." The resolution went over until next week.

Some downstate senate leaders before leaving suggested that a remap might be introduced giving Cook country twenty-three or twenty-four districts, in place of its present nineteen. They wondered, however, how this idea would fare among the members from Cook county, which now has 52 per cent of the population. A remapping on strict population lines would give it twenty-six of the fifty-one districts.

Liberals and drys today were busy polling the senators on the repealer on the state search and seizure act. The supporters of repeal declare that at least 26 votes, a constitutional majority are already lined up, with others in the offing. The big battle is to be staged in the senate, after the house acts on the O'Grady repealer, now on second reading.

Asks Repeal of Dry Law.

In the house Representative James T. Burns, Democrat of Kankakee, introduced a resolution calling on congress to submit a resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment to the legislatures of the 48 states.

"The 18th amendment," it says, "is not keeping with the spirit of the constitution because it is opposed to fundamental laws. It is a police regulation having no place in the constitution. It is destitute of the rights of states. It was condemned by the people of Illinois who voted for its repeal by a majority of 502,691."

FLOOD CONTROL MEETING ENDS IN RESOLUTIONS

With the adoption of further resolutions urging congress to speed up its expenditures in the Mississippi valley, the flood control and waterways conference wound up its business at the Congress hotel yesterday and adjourned. About 300 attended the fourth and last day's session.

Chicago labor leaders were in charge of the closing meeting, which was devoted to a discussion of the aid the river projects would give toward unemployment relief and to a lengthy political speech by Mayor Thompson. The resolutions adopted were similar to those adopted earlier at the conference.

President John Fitzgerald of the Chicago Federation of Labor characterized flood control and waterway construction as the entering wedge which can start the solution of the unemployment problem. James Brennan of the electrical workers and William Tracy, international president of the Brick and Clay Workers union, also spoke. Michael Kelly, president of the Wage Earners league, presided.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. L. B. Simmons, of 1434½ Larimer St., Denver, Colo., says: "Tanlac made me relish and digest my food fine. It also cured me of gas, dizzy spells and nervousness. Now I sleep well and can put in as good a day's work as a youngster."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

FIRE FAILS TO DAMAGE STEEL AT BAHAI TEMPLE

A survey yesterday by engineers of the steel frame work of the Bahai temple at Sheridan road and Linden avenue, Wilmette, disclosed, that it apparently had not buckled or been seriously damaged by the fire which earlier in the day destroyed the wood forms holding the concrete, the framework for the floors, and considerable building material. The loss is estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000.

The fire was discovered by a night watchman. It is believed to have originated in one of thirty salamanders burning coke to keep the concrete, just poured, at the proper temperature. Before the Wilmette fire department arrived, the flames, fanned by a brisk wind, had spread to the scaffolding. The Evanston fire department was summoned and after a two hour fight the fire was under control. Thousands of north shore residents saw the blaze. Pipeman Fred Walters of the Evanston department was knocked unconscious, but not seriously hurt, when struck by a hose which uncoupled in his hands.

The temple, a $3,000,000 project, was to be three stories in height, capped by a glass dome over steel framework. It is directly opposite the home of the late Louis Bourgeois, its architect and designer.

BILL WOULD BAR ASSEMBLYMEN FROM OTHER JOBS

Echo of Sanitary Pay Roll Scandal Heard.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—An echo of the Chicago sanitary district pay roll scandal sounded in the legislature today when Representative R. J. Branson [Rep., Centralia] introduced a bill in the house prohibiting any assemblyman from employment by a municipal corporation or governmental agency. If the bill is made law, a violation becomes a misdemeanor punishable by fine and jail sentence.

Mr. Branson was one of a committee appointed by the legislature in the 1929 session to investigate its members who might be on public pay rolls. The committee made a recommendation worded similar to today's bill, but the measure is an individual action.

The bill raises an important question in regard to several Chicago members. Representative James Curran is superintendent of the house of correction—the Bridewell. Representative Michael L. Igoe, the minority leader, is secretary of the south park commission. Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg has done legal work for that board.

Several Affected.

If the Branson bill becomes law their status and that of others will be in question.

The bill reads: "No member of the general assembly shall at any time during his term of office be employed by or, hold any office under any municipal corporation or governmental agency, whose interests are frequently affected by state legislation.

"That any member who at any time during his term of office receives compensation from any employment by, or office under, any municipal corporation or governmental agency, with the understanding that he is to render adequate services for the compensation received, is prima facie evidence that such member lacks the qualifications necessary for membership.

"Any member of the general assembly who violates the provisions of this act is guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $5,000 or imprisoned in the county jail for not more than a year or both."

Would Cut Commerce Commission.

Another bill put forth during the morning session would cut the Illinois commerce commission to five members. This was introduced by Rep. Frank Hollen of East St. Louis and would also do away with the posts of assistant commerce commissioners, there being three of the latter now serving while the board proper consists of six.

Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] was sworn in at the beginning of the day's session and immediately introduced a bill to cut the fee materially for auto license plates. The fee is now gauged on a sliding scale, according to passenger vehicles horsepower, which runs all the way from $8 to $25. The bill provides for stabilizing the fee at $2 after Jan. 1, 1932, with additional plates, issued for losses or thefts, available at $1 each.

Bills in Senate.

On the senate side, bills introduced included a measure by Senator William R. McCauley of Olney to tax the operation of chain stores. The bill was formulated by a group of independent business men, the senator said. It provides for an annual $2 tax on a person or firm operating one store. On one to five stores the tax would be $25; five to twenty stores, $75; more than twenty stores, $100 per store. This is expected to be bill No. 1 in a list of proposed chain store and chain bank legislation efforts.

Senator Epler C. Mills [Rep.] of Virginia had a repealer for the parimutuel betting system law apply to horse races. This was similar to the bill presented in the house yesterday by Representative Harris of Chicago—allowing races but prohibiting wagers.

Senator Arthur A. Huebsch of Chicago introduced his anticipated bill calling for abolition of the party circle on the ballot with the candidates' names rotated in different districts.

Both houses adjourned until Tuesday—the house until 10 a. m.; the senate to 4 p. m.

ROOSEVELT SUBMITS $293,605,606 STATE BUDGET FOR NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today submitted to the state legislature his annual executive budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1931.

The governor recommends appropriations for the support of the state government of $293,605,606, a net decrease of $22,315,335 from last year.

Expenditure of an additional $30,000,000 available from authorized bond issues already has been urged upon the legislature for unemployment relief. This brings the total of recommended appropriations to $323,605,606.

The amount requested from general funds is approximately 17 millions less than the record budget figure last year. In the 1930 legislature about $1,500,000 was slashed from the appropriations asked by the governor, but appropriations added increased the expenditures by about $4,500,000.

The governor's estimate of necessary expenditures is thus also $2,315,335 below the total of legislative appropriations last year. The net decrease of $22,315,335 is effected by adding the $20,000,000 made available by the bond issue.

This is the first decrease in the budget in a decade. The last was in 1921.

ROBS TWO RESTAURANTS; FLEES.

An armed man yesterday held up Michael Freskas, manager of a restaurant at 1201 Belmont avenue, obtaining $97, then walked into a restaurant at 3169 North Lincoln avenue and took $40 from William Gresinger, manager.

COURT IS DEFIED BY WOMAN; SHE FACES JAIL TERM

Mrs. Helen Wahlgren, 826 Judson avenue, Evanston, estranged wife of Roy Wahlgren, wealthy president of the Riggs Optical company, stood before Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis yesterday and in no uncertain terms announced that she will not obey his order. The judge advised her to change her mind or appear Monday prepared to serve a jail sentence for contempt.

Mrs. Wahlgren was summoned before the judge on complaint of her husband that he was not permitted to see their son, Donald, 11 years old. Last June Mrs. Wahlgren sued her husband for separate maintenance, charging misconduct with Josephine Brown, a former employé of Wahlgren.

At a later hearing she was granted temporary alimony of $600 a month and the custody of the boy, providing that Wahlgren might see their son every Saturday. Mrs. Wahlgren told the judge yesterday that her husband is an unfit person to be with the boy and that therefore she could not comply with the court order.

Gives One More Chance.

"I will continue this until Monday," the judge said. "Either let your husband see the boy Saturday or come to court Monday with your bag packed, ready to go to jail."

The Wahlgrens were married in 1916 at Council Bluffs, Ia. Through her attorneys, Socrates & Davis, Mrs. Wahlgren charged that her husband had written many letters to Miss Brown declaring his love for her and that he had given her large sums of money.

Insured Life for $500,000.

Mrs. Wahlgren stated in her bill that her husband has an annual salary of $35,000. In February of 1925, she said, he entered into a contract with the Bausch & Lomb company to purchase $850,000 worth of stock of the Riggs company, depositing $100,000 worth of stock as collateral and insuring his life for $500,000.

Before their separation, she said, he promised her a half interest in the $100,000 worth of stock and to procure her a $90,000 insurance policy payable to her. He has failed to comply with this agreement, she said.

VICE QUIZ BARES AMAZING TALE BY MARRIED WOMAN

Her Good Repute No Bar to Arrest.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—For two hours today at a public hearing of the investigation of the Magistrates' courts here a respectable young married woman poured out a tale of framing by the police on a vice charge that eclipsed all others that have shamed the city in recent weeks. It was the most flagrant case of conviction of immorality on perjured police testimony that has been brought to light.

A business woman told of a November dinner engagement with her husband and a friend that the vice police turned into a raid which led to her arrest and conviction on charges of prostitution. She gave her name as "Betty Smith," but Isidor J. Kresel, who is questioning the witnesses at the hearing, explained he had agreed to conceal her real identity because of her business and social connections.

And for Contrast.

In striking contrast to the case of the respectable married woman was another brought out this afternoon. A buxom widow, who gave her name as Mrs. Victoria Zelvono, testified she had been tried on prostitution charges five times. Each time except one she was acquitted and allowed to remain in the upper Broadway district until she apparently had accumulated enough money to make her arrest profitable.

Mrs. Zelvono testified that she paid $1,250 to two lawyers and $400 to two bondsmen. One time when she paid only $100 she was given thirty days in jail.

The case of "Betty Smith," who was framed on the word of one policeman, took on added importance when it was disclosed that her conviction by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud was afterwards reversed by the Court of Special Sessions through the efforts of two prominent attorneys, Dudley Field Malone and Nathan Burkan.

Husband Supports Story.

The story "Mrs. Smith" told is an extraordinary one. She is separated from her husband, but he contributes to her support and they are on friendly terms. Since 1927 she has occupied a position of trust as saleswoman for a number of out of town dress manufacturers. "Mrs. Smith" is an attractive brunette and was smartly dressed when she took the stand. Obviously under great mental stress she was near collapse several times during the telling of her story. "Mrs. Smith's" husband, whose identity was guarded, and the friend, Herbert W. Hazelton, a New Jersey real estate operator, also testified.

On an evening in November, 1929, "Betty Smith" said, she was in her living room in a respectable west side apartment house waiting for her husband and Mr. Hazelton, with whom she had a dinner engagement. The husband was delayed and Hazelton arrived first. The hour was about 5 o'clock. They were sitting in the living room talking when the door bell rang. "Mrs. Smith" opened the door and a man pushed his way in. She identified him in court as Policeman Robert E. Norris. The policeman began questioning them and suddenly turned and pushed the woman into a bedroom, locking her door. He then telephoned somewhere and a few minutes later Policeman James T. Brady arrived.

Arrested as Prostitute.

"They accused me," testified "Mrs. Smith" with quivering lips, "of not being a respectable woman. They called me ugly names. I showed them my marriage certificate and business cards, but they just laughed and put Mr. Hazelton out and arrested me."

They took her to the police station, she said, and soon afterward Hazelton and her husband arrived. Her husband put up cash and jewelry valued at $1,200 to insure a bail of $500. Later when the case was postponed in Woman's court the bail was raised to $1,000. The case was called Dec. 24, 1929, before Magistrate Renaud. Policeman Brady swore he had found her in a compromising position with a man named Joseph Clark. She was found guilty and sent to jail, where she was held until Jan. 2, when she was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation. It was several months later that the case was reversed in a higher court, but "Betty Smith's" finger prints and picture are still in the police files.

There were other developments in the vice hearing today. Samuel Seabury, referee of the inquiry, publicly rebuked Mayor James J. Walker for the stand he had taken on the conviction without trial of 77 girls charged with being wayward minors.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Bertha Eckert Ewald completed her testimony in another court, where she and her husband, former Magistrate George F. Ewald, are on trial charged with office buying. She testified she had not got as much as a "thank you" for a $10,000 loan to Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

10 REPUBLICANS IN MAYOR RACE AS LISTS CLOSE

Six Democrats Named in Petitions.

Southmoor hotel, the prosecutor urged support of the alderman as "the most honest candidate."

"When Arthur Albert is mayor of Chicago," he said, "one-half of my troubles as state's attorney will be over. With him as mayor there will be an honest and fearless police department from the commissioner down to the newest probationer, which will enforce all the laws without fear or favor. That will be the greatest aid that can be given the county prosecutor in his task of making and keeping Chicago a clean city."

Albert headquarters also announced the formation of a German-American committee for its candidate. Its personnel includes August F. W. Siebel, Paul M. Ortmann, Charles J. Mueller, assistant state's attorney; Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, and United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer.

Although that organization indorsed Charles V. Barrett, H. B. Ritman, for ten years president of the Twenty-fourth Ward Regular Republican club, has come out for Judge Lyle.

"I have been influenced," he said, in a statement, "by developments and the evidence that Judge Lyle is the candidate most likely to succeed in the very important program to drive organized crime and criminals from Chicago."

LOCKED OUT BY FILM STAR, SAYS STEPMOTHER

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Marion Nixon, film actress, and her husband, Edward Hillman of the wealthy Chicago department store family, were questioned by investigators from the city prosecutor's office today as result of a complaint lodged with the prosecutor by Mrs. Etta Mae Nixon, the actress' stepmother.

The stepmother charged Miss Nixon with locking her out of the stepmother's home. She said she had appealed to the city prosecutor as the climax of months of family bickering.

She told Deputy Prosecutor Victor J. Obeji that she returned to her home last Tuesday evening, but found the doors barred, and was informed that Marion Nixon, a chauffeur and a locksmith had been there and changed the locks on the doors.

Edward Hillman supported his wife's denial. Hillman said: "The place belongs to us. We bought it as an investment and so that Mrs. Nixon could have a home. She can't live in that house."

O'Donnell is circulating his petitions, which require several hundred signatures of 15th ward voters before he can file his candidacy with the board of election commissioners.

ASK COMPROMISE IN 103D STREET RAIL BLOCKADE

But Opponents Raise Cry of "No Surrender."

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday sponsored an effort to bring about a compromise between residents of the far south side and the Nickel Plate railroad on the blockading of 103d street by the railroad's switching yards. Leaders of the army which stormed the commission's offices in the City Hall Square building Wednesday to protest against the closing of the street opposed compromise on terms of surrendering the street.

At the invitation of the commission, representatives of the railroads in the district, civic organizations, attorneys, and aldermen met informally. Chairman Charles W. Hadley explained that the meeting was called for the purpose of bringing the contending parties into a round table discussion in the hope that they might reach agreement in the vacating of their positions.

Railway Makes Offers.

Attorney John D. Black, representing the railroad, explained that the railroad was willing to construct grade separations at 83d, 87th, 93d, 95th, and 100th streets and Stony Island avenue if it might construct yards which would necessitate closing 103d street. He declared that engineers have stated that bridging the street or building a subway under it to be almost impossible. The railroad could not build yards farther south, he said.

Attorney John G. Drennan said that the city council has passed an ordinance to open 103d street and that the transit ordinance, ratified at the last election, provides for a street car on that thoroughfare. The plans for improving other crossings by subways as offered by the railroad are obligations under a contract ordinance passed in 1911 and affirmed again in 1924, he said.

Wants Other Streets Used.

H. J. Klein, vice president of the railroad, suggested that the improvement of 100th street would provide a means of transportation for the two communities on either side of Lake Calumet. Attorney Drennan pointed out that changing of the car line would require an amending ordinance to the transit ordinance and the submission of another referendum. Representatives of other railroads supported Mr. Klein.

"We are playing a game of seesaw and getting nowhere," said Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. "Any public official who would talk about surrendering 103d street would be justly tarred and feathered in the district. I voice the spirit of the community as manifested here yesterday when I say no surrender on 103d street."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Ald. Sheldon W. Govier [9th] and representatives of civic groups in the district. Edwin Nelson of the Greater 103d Street Development association rose to offer a plan by which the community would aid the railroad and insure the opening of the street.

Suggests Plan to Railway.

"The courts have held that the city has title to the street, but the decision is now under appeal," he said. "Assuming the city has title, the railroad could only build two sets of tracks on a grade separation. The cost of separation would be borne by both the city and road. If the railroad will agree to a separation I am sure that the civic organizations will aid the railroad in an effort to have the fourteen additional tracks now on the street placed on the separation, the additional cost of the separation beyond the two tracks to be borne by the railroad."

This offer was hailed by representatives of the residents as a sound effort toward settlement of the dispute. Chairman Hadley suggested a further meeting on the question. Those present agreed to discuss the proposal next Wednesday.

U. S. ENGINEER TO O. K. BRIDGE AND SUBWAY PLANS

Following a public hearing yesterday, Maj. H. J. Wild, resident government engineer in Chicago, indicated that he will approve the plans of the city to construct a new bridge at State street and to build a section of the State street subway under the river. Permits to proceed with the work may be received within a month.

Plans for the bridge and the tunnel have been coordinated so that the bridge cofferdams and part of the subway can be constructed at the same time. This construction work, however, may not begin immediately after the permits are received, as some of the subway staff believe that the work should not be started until the entire subway project is approved in court. Court procedure may consume several months.

Paul Schioler, city bridge engineer, explained at the hearing that the bend in the river at State street will be straightened by moving back the north dock line between State and Dearborn streets. The property to be taken in the straightening already has been acquired, he said.

Since the council has not gi Faherty that authority it was opinion of fiscal experts in the hall that Curran and Swissler, altho they are working on legal matters connection with the widening of No State street and the condemnation land for the subway, cannot be p out of the traction funds. The o other appropriation Faherty can to pay them, it was said, is his $ 000 personal services account.

TWO DEFEATED CANDIDATES GET SUBWAY POSTS

Curran and Swissler Are Hired by Faherty.

The appointment of two lawyers, who have political connections reaching into the city hall, to the group of attorneys working on the subway was revealed yesterday. The men were hired by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, although aldermen have declared that the city has enough lawyers without them.

The new additions are George A. Curran, former judge of the Municipal court and a brother of James Curran, ward committeeman, state legislator and superintendent of the House of Correction, and William R. Swissler, political associate of Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney.

Both Are Defeated Candidates.

Curran, who started working for the city on Dec. 12, was defeated in the November election for a seat on the Circuit court bench. Swissler was Crowe's unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for the board of review last April. Swissler was sponsored by Crowe for the subway job while Curran, according to reports, retained his job as a Thompson supporter.

"They were appointed," said Corporation Counsel Ettelson, "in accordance with an understanding that I have with Faherty that he needs both of them and will provide the funds out of which they are to be paid."

The finance committee of the city council has set up an appropriation of $14,342,000 from the traction fund for the preparation of plans and for subway construction during 1931 but, according to Ald James B. Bowler [50th], chairman of the local transportation committee, Faherty has no authority to expend any of the appropriation on lawyers without the consent of the council.

Source of Pay in Doubt.

Since the council has not given Faherty that authority it was the opinion of fiscal experts in the city hall that Curran and Swissler, although they are working on legal matters in connection with the widening of North State street and the condemnation of land for the subway, cannot be paid out of the traction fund. The only other appropriation Faherty can use to pay them, it was said, is his $65,000 personal services account.

In the absence of Faherty from the city the salary to be paid to the two lawyers could not be determined. Officials of the board of local improvements said they do not know and Attorney Currant said it is a matter for Faherty to tell.

The four attorneys assigned to subway work, who, according to Ald. Bowler, constitute a sufficient staff, are Walter L. Fisher, George A. Mason, Allan T. Gilbert, and Joseph J. Sullivan. One more attorney may be added, according to Ald. Bowler, but it will be either John G. Drennan or Edward C. Higgins, assistant corporation counsel. These five lawyers will be paid out of the traction fund, Ald Bowler said.

CALL BONDSMEN FOR U. S. QUIZ ON BAIL PRACTICES

Subpoenas for fifty sureties who have scheduled bonds for defendants in the federal court, were issued yesterday as the first step of a grand jury investigation of fraudulent practices on the part of bondsmen.

The inquiry is to begin next week and additional subpoenas bringing the total to more than 200 will be issued, according to William Parrillo and Alfred Bosworth, whose duties are to approve bonds for the United States attorney's office.

All bail bondsmen who have scheduled bonds which were forfeited during the last eight years will be called, Parrillo said. It is alleged that property of little value has been scheduled for as high as $50,000 and then sold for its real worth. If the bond is forfeited in such a case, the government cannot collect from the new owner.

DECREE UPHELD

Mrs. Florence von Puttkamer.

The divorce degree granted to Mrs. Florence Hill Cuneo von Puttkamer, formerly of Chicago, from Curt von Puttkamer, insurance broker, was upheld yesterday by Superior Judge Desort. The degree was granted in May, 1929, on the grounds of drunkenness. Puttkamer petitioned the court a year ago to have the decree set aside on the grounds that it was obtained on perjured testimony.

Mrs. von Puttkamer, former wife of John Cuneo, had also charged that Puttkamer had demanded $200,000 for the return of their child, Curt Jr., after kidnaping him. Under Judge Desort's ruling, which found the testimony was admissible, Mrs. von Puttkamer is awarded the permanent custody of the boy, now 4 years old.

MILLER PLEDGES ACTION ON STATE SEAWAY WORK

New Waterway Head Assumes Office.

Benjamin H. Miller, Waukegan lawyer, assumed his new post as state superintendent of waterways yesterday and with it took over the task of directing the state's work in completing the Illinois waterway.

Mr. Miller's appointment to succeed William F. Mulvihill was confirmed by the state senate yesterday. He said he intended to carry out the waterway plans as rapidly as possible, cooperating with the federal government which has undertaken the actual construction work.

State to Build 10 Bridges.

The state's main job, Mr. Miller said, is to erect the ten bridges between Joliet and Utica. This work, it has been estimated, will cost the state between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, and as soon as the board of engineers completes its plans for the bridges and the government approves them, the state will proceed with construction, he said.

Funds for this work are on hand, there being still about $3,000,000 left of the $20,000,000 waterways bond.

While the Illinois waterway is the most important project, the department of waterways also is engaged in several smaller contracts in southern Illinois, the new superintendent said. The principal one is the flood relief work along the Saline river, which is to cost about $150,000. Contracts have been let and the dredging and erecting levees has begun.

Mulvihill Returns to Law.

Mr. Miller formerly was a judge of the state court of claims under Gov. Lowden and is a master in chancery for the Circuit court of Lake county.

Retiring as state superintendent of waterways after five and one-half years' service, Mr. Mulvihill said he would resume his private law practice. He was first appointed by Gov. Small, but was held over for two years by Gov. Emmerson. "You go in by politics, you go out by politics, that's politics," was his epitome of his retirement.

FORMER PREMIER BALDWIN BROKE AND PROUD OF IT!

Fortune Melts in Slump of British Iron Trade.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is broke—and is proud of it.

In recent years shares in the iron trade owned by the Conservative leader have depreciated in value from three pounds [about $14.60] in 1923 to 20 pence [40 cents] now, he revealed last night.

Speaking at a dinner of the Engineering and Allied Employers' association, Mr. Baldwin said he could have saved most of his loss. "Instead," he added, "I nailed my colors to the mast of the ship of British industry."

"You may ask what right I have to speak about industrial matters," he said after asserting that the ills of business lie in the hands of business men themselves. "I am a politician and you may consider what I have said was impertinence. Will you forgive me for a brief moment if I make my claim?

"There lies in a little country churchyard not a dozen miles from where I live the body of one John Baldwin, described as being 'of the forge' in the reign of Charles II.

Family Always in Iron.

"From that time various members of my family have engaged in nearly every branch of the iron trade. From that day to this, sometimes enjoying prosperity, sometimes having to struggle hard, my family has been connected with that great trade, and I have some right to talk of hard times.

"When I took office most of what I had was in that ancient industry. The shares I hold now and which I held then could have been sold for three pounds sterling each—today they are worth 20 pennies. There is no cataclysm on earth that can bring them back to more than a fraction of their former value.

"It may have been bad business on my part—many modern business men would say it was—I ought to have sold at the top of the market.

Would Not Let Others Lose.

"But when you have an old name in business against which nothing has ever been said, when you know the public has come into business on the strength of that name, it is an impossibility to throw your shares on the market when you know that in all human probability the loss will fall on them, not on you."

Mr. Baldwin has been regarded as very wealthy. In 1919, when he was financial secretary of the treasury, he presented 20 per cent of his personal fortune to the government for reduction of the national debt. The gift amounted to about $600,000, and for years the name of the donor was not made public.

GOOD FELLOWS AID 2 THOUSAND IN 277 FAMILIES

Nearly two thousand men, women, and children enjoyed the necessities of life in their homes yesterday, due to the generosity of TRIBUNE Good Fellows.

These are members of 277 Good Fellow families being maintained during the midwinter months by many clubs and individuals, after first being investigated and found worthy by the United Charities, the Catholic Charities, the Jewish Social Service bureau, and the Salvation Army.

The temporary unemployment slack has left destitute many a family just as worthy, which knows no place to turn to now that the head of the household is jobless and penniless.

Good Fellows, your gift, large or small, will help to tide a family through the winter. The remainder of January and February will be the most severe on the needy. Your contribution may be the means of rehabilitating an entire family. The gift may be sent with the coupon on this page.

BALKS AT NAMING PAIR AS ROBBERS; INDICTED BY JURY

Benjamin Silverman, 3214 Eastwood avenue, owner of a men's furnishing shop at 406 West Division street, appeared before the grand jury yesterday to testify against two men who, he had charged, robbed his store on Oct. 12. Instead of being the prosecuting witness in a case he became a defendant himself because of his flat refusal to identify either man, despite his previous assertions to the police that they were the robbers.

Silverman refused to give the jurors any reason for his change of attitude and when he persisted in his stand he was ordered from the jury room and an indictment for perjury was voted. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro said that Silverman denied he had been threatened by any of the friends of the defendants. A warrant was obtained from Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court in order to hold Silverman until the jury can return the indictment against him.

Howard Smith, who has since been killed, and Rocco Capri were the men identified as the robbers of Silverman's store. Capri, the police say, confessed the crime and reënacted it. Capri said at the time that only $25 was taken from Silverman, while the latter declared he was robbed of $192.

800 WORKERS BEGIN TAKING CENSUS OF CITY'S UNEMPLOYED

Eight hundred federal census enumerators yesterday started compiling a list of all unemployed in Chicago. In nineteen other principal cities of the United States the census was being duplicated. It is expected that all unemployment information will be compiled and in the hands of President Hoover's commission by Feb. 1. Small rural communities and suburban districts are not to be tabulated.

No information will be given at any of the central points, either during the census or at its completion. All information, with explanatory data, will be released in Washington at the completion of the census. H. L. Rockhill, chairman of the Chicago supervisory board, emphasized the fact that all information given to enumerators is secret.

Increased suffering among the Chicago needy as a result of the cold weather of the last few days prompted an intense appeal for the completion of the $5,000,000 relief fund now being collected by Gov. Emmerson's relief commission. The fund last night stood at $3,697,942.

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the fund raising committee, repeated his warning against optimism due to published reports of increased employment.

PULASKI STAMPS GO ON SALE IN CHICAGO TODAY

A special issue of memorial stamps commemorating the 150th anniversary of the death of Gen. Casimir Pulaski Polish American revolution hero, will go on sale in Chicago and other cities today. The issue, authorized by Postmaster General Brown and President Hoover, consists of 40,000,000 stamps of the 2 cent denomination, printed in red and bearing the likeness of Gen. Pulaski.

A special booth for the sale of the stamps was set up in the rotunda of the federal building yesterday, and a ceremony will be held at 9 o'clock this morning, when the stamps go on sale, under the auspices of the Pulaski sesquicentennial commission, headed by Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs. The American Legion and other patriotic organizations will participate.

AIR FLEET ROARS INTO RIO; 6,000 MILE FLIGHT ENDS

11 Italian Planes Greeted by Brazil's President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 15.—Eleven seaplanes of the Italian air armada roared into the Brazilian capital this afternoon, ending its 6,000 mile flight which started from Orbetello, Italy, Dec. 17.

The seventh and last lap of the historic flight began at 8:17 a. m. (5:17 a. m. Chicago time), when the planes, led by Gen. Italo Balbo, young air minister of Italy, left Bahia. At 4:52 p. m. (1:52 p. m. Chicago time) the ships landed safely in Botafogo bay after covering a distance of nearly 750 miles in 8 hours 36 minutes.

A squad of seven Brazilian planes met the fleet at Victoria to escort the Italian flyers to Rio de Janeiro. Upon arriving both air squadrons circled above the city for over an hour before landing. Italian cruisers in the outside harbor steamed in at full speed firing salutes.

President Greets Airmen.

With the report that the armada had hopped off from Bahia preparations were made for a huge reception. Long before noon thousands began to gather and newspaper offices, which posted bulletins of the progress of the flight, were besieged by crowds which cheered each flash that the fleet had sailed over another coastal city.

The water front and the surrounding hills were thronged when the planes finally landed. President Getulio Vargas was at the docks of the Fluminense Yacht club to greet the flyers. The airmen were whisked to a hotel after the ceremony.

Tonight Gen. Balbo replied to the city's enthusiastic greeting in a speech over the radio. The reception program will last seven days. Following this the Italian squadron will visit Sao Paulo, leaving here on Jan. 23.

Report Planes Sold to Brazil.

It was reported tonight that Gen. Balbo has sold the seaplanes to the Brazilian government for $960,000, and that Brazil would pay for them with coffee. Confirmation of this report was lacking, however.

The flight marks an epoch in the history of aviation. Starting out with 14 planes, the Italians arrived safely at Bolama, Portuguese Guinea. In taking off on the dash across the Atlantic, two of the 12 regular planes crashed, killing five. Two other planes, intended as replacement units, were substituted, but were forced down along the 1,875 mile route and picked up by Italian destroyers. Ten planes arrived at Natal, Brazil.

May Fly from Italy to U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 15.—It was reported in Italian aviation circles tonight that Air Minister Balbo will lead an air squadron to the United States by way of the Azores next year.

Britain Prepares to Crush Foes of India Federal Plan

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Coincident with the adoption tonight by the Indian round table conference committee of Lord Chancellor Sankey's framework of the future federal government of India, it was also learned that one of the results of the conference will be a big drive by Britain against the All-India Nationalist congress organization and other anarchical movements.

A special department of the Indian government has been organized with Sir James Crerar, a former Indian official, in charge of law and order. All-India congress leaders, such as Mahatma Gandhi, for example, will be given an opportunity to coöperate with the Indian Conservatives in conference work in establishing a dominion of India, but if they refuse an active régime of repression will be undertaken, with something like martial law all over India.

Some Indians Approve.

This plan has secured the approval of many of the Indian leaders now in England. Some of them are likely to hold ministerial posts in the new government.

A new party, known as the Federal party, is being organized, which will work for the association of India with Great Britain as a dominion empire and to restore order and prosperity in the country.

Most of the Liberal leaders have signified their assent to this policy, and the tentative Hindu-Moslem settlement of their differences is due largely to the fear of anarchy if the conference broke down and the All-India congress organization got a free run. They feel this would only result in depression and disorder.

Now that the committee has adopted the proposed federal plan it will go before the full conference tomorrow. The delegates met today and it was reported that the maharajah of Bikaneer made a proposal for the amnesty of the 50,000 political prisoners in the jails of India. Coming from this powerful prince, one of the stanchest supporters of British rule, the proposal was considered significant.

Believe Gandhi in Favor.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi and other Indian extremist leaders would accept dominion status for their country if it were offered them, Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Labor member of parliament, told American correspondents today.

Their demand for independence, he said, was only to rally the Indian people to their cause, and all but a very small section of India would accept dominion status as the next best thing.

Commander Kenworthy recently returned from a visit to India, where he had two conversations with Gandhi.

Police Injure 152 in Riot.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A man and a woman were wounded by police rifle fire and 150 persons injured by lathis or staves when police charged a crowd of Nationalist demonstrators at Ahmadabad yesterday. The demonstration was in protest at execution of four Sholapur rioters a few days ago.

BANK ROBBERS LOCK WOMAN AND 2 MEN IN VAULT

Three unmasked bandits held up the York State bank of Elmhurst yesterday afternoon and escaped with $5,800 in currency after locking two officials and a woman customer in a vault.

The robbery occurred shortly before closing time. A car with three men in it drove up to the bank building at 529 South York street, the main business street of the village. Two of the men entered with revolvers in their hands and the third remained at the wheel.

Joseph Reilly, cashier, and Willard Mower, his assistant, were alone in the bank. The robbers forced the two officials into a vault and were emptying the cash drawers when a woman customer entered. She likewise was forced into the vault and the three were threatened with death if they made an outcry.

COAL • HEAT • COSTS • LESS

A five-year Saving of $905* with coal heat

A FUEL bill saving of $181 a year is not to be spurned. Dr. George W. Webster enjoys this advantage in heating his home at 4520 Ellis Ave. with coal, rather than with the fuel which is next to coal in economy.

Should Dr. Webster install the necessary equipment and undertake to heat his home with the second fuel, his estimated annual fuel bill would be $499.25, instead of the $318.15 he now pays for coal. Should he burn a third fuel which is available, it is estimated his annual bill would approximate $917.25.

In addition to economic advantages, Dr. Webster enjoys quiet, even, safe heat, without fear or worry or other discomfort. In zero weather or in spring or fall, the temperature in his home is unvaryingly at the comfort point.

The superiority of coal heat—in economy, in comfort—is further assured by the honest weight that is guaranteed when purchased from a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association, one of whom has a yard near you. To assure the biggest dollar's worth out of every ton you buy, give him your order.

COAL HEAT GIVES MORE B. T. U's. PER DOLLAR

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel A (coal) you get 1,540,000 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel B you get 775,596 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel C you get 465,757 B. T. U's. (heat units)*

*Figures estimated from average prices and burning efficiencies of fuels, as determined by an impartial digest of many authoritative and unprejudiced sources. They include equipment and operation.

TROOPS DIG FOR DEAD IN CITY RUINED BY QUAKE

48 Reported Killed at Oaxaca, Mexico.

BY JHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—Soldiers tonight are digging in the ruins of Oaxaca, capital of the state of Oaxaca, to uncover more bodies of victims of an earthquke which last night shook all southern Mexico and northern Guatemala.

Radio messages from Oaxaca report that 48 persons have been found dead and that 60 per cent of a population of 40,000 has been made homeless. Parks and plazas have been converted into dying grounds for thousands, while outside the city hundreds of others waited, fearing to return to the houses left standing.

News of the Oaxaca disaster failed here until this afternoon when the military radio station began to receive fragmentary messages telling of the city's destruction.

Quake Lasts 3 Minutes.

Most of the adobe houses in Oaxaca toppled with the first quake, which lasted three minutes. Telegraphic communications were cut, power lines severed, and the helpless city was plunged into darkness while the panic stricken population fled to open fields to escape being crushed to death by the tottering walls.

Rescue work is going on under the direction of Gen. Evaristo Perez, military commander of the state of Oaxaca, whose staff established an encampment on the outskirts of the city after its barracks were destroyed. He is also gathering a supply of food for the destitute, who are facing starvation. Troops are patrolling the streets, while rescue squads are frantically digging to remove dead and injured. Other troops are tearing down partially wrecked houses whose unsupported walls are a further menace.

President Ortiz Rubio, now in Acapulco, kept in touch with Oaxaca today by radio. He ordered aid be rushed to the stricken city. Doctors and nurses are being enlisted here and sent to Oaxaca, while medical supplies, hospital equipment and food stores are being loaded for shipment.

Death List Mounting.

With the death list mounting the people of Oaxaca have gone into mourning. Families have been separated, and there is no way of checking the missing until order is restored among the panic stricken mobs, who fear another quake.

According to Gen. Perez the damage to property will run into millions in Oaxaca alone.

From other towns in the same state have come reports of death and destruction. No word has been received from mountain villages. It is feared the loss in these areas is considerable.

Popocatapetl Belches Smoke.

The quakes last night lasted for three hours and spread over fifteen states. In Mexico City one was killed and 25 were hurt. There was also considerable property loss. Mount Popocatapetl tonight was reported smoking though no word of an eruption had been received.

1931 Buying Plans of 350,000 Families

TIME questionnaires bring out specific data regarding intended purchases for coming year

WELL aware that Prosperity is a great deal more than a hothouse growth to be nourished by enthusiastic writers, TIME refuses to indulge in weasled prophecies or rash predictions. As its readers know, TIME is interested in facts. Here are some real facts that it has been able to obtain—facts that should certainly bring an idea to many a U. S. manufacturer.

TIME has just completed a series of questionnaires asking specific information about the 1931 buying plans of 30,000 TIME subscribers—an alphabetical cross-section. From the replies TIME estimates the 1931 purchases of 350,000 subscribers as shown herewith.

To Manufacturers:

TIME will be glad to send detailed reports of its buying plan questionnaires as they apply to your product . . . Write the Research Department, TIME, Inc., 205 East 42nd Street, New York City.

$153,600,000 worth of
NEW AUTOMOBILES

The investigation revealed that 32.5% plan to buy new cars within a year. Retail prices of the makes they plan to buy range from $435 to $8000. Average: $1350. The TIME market is thus large enough to consume the entire annual output of, for example, Studebaker and Pierce-Arrow.

$323,500,000 worth of
NEW HOMES

The investigation shows that 4.2% are planning to build homes before the end of 1931, at an average cost of $22,017.

NEW REFRIGERATORS

The investigation reveals that 56.7% are interested in new automatic refrigerators at prices from $150 to $500. Average: $200.

HOME DECORATIONS

The investigation tells also that 24.5% plan to redecorate rooms in 1931, involving expenditures for draperies, rugs, furniture, flooring, wall paper, etc., of about $300 each. (Among other items: 22.6% are interested in oil burners and gas heaters; 16.7% in roofing; 26.2% in plumbing and bathroom fixtures.)

$420,000,000 worth of
FOODSTUFFS

The investigation reveals that TIME subscribers' average monthly food bill is more than $100, spent for everything from caviar to coffee, and that this average will be continued in 1931.

$17,300,000 worth of
NEW RADIOS

The investigation reveals that 30% plan to buy new radios within a year. Prices of makes they mention range from $60 to $500. Average: $165.

Here in factual averages and totals is the 1931 buying program of 350,000 TIME-reading families. Let manufacturers ponder well its implications.

In this group of 350,000 families, buyer waits for seller. To advertise now to this clientele is to give these people facts they are already seeking for the fulfillment of their wants.

But chance acquaintance in far fields is not enough. How much and what specific merchandise these families will actually buy depends largely on how well and how often advertising has filed in their memories the advantages of given products.

Advertising concentrated in TIME's well-read pages can convert these already planned purchases into actual sales . . . Because TIME subscribers are not merely subscribers; they are regular cover-to-cover readers.

QUALIFICATIONS OF A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

In midterm Mr. Hoover does not appear probable as his own successor. Conditions have been unkind, but such conditions, it was supposed, were peculiarly his own, the kind in which his mastery would be most apparent. They were a part of Mr. Hoover's legend. Here was where the technical man would show all his advantages over the politician. The opposite seems to be the case, and in fairness to Mr. Hoover it may be said that this may be an elemental rule of democratic government. A really good politician is expert in the matters which make up political action and government.

It is apparent Mr. Hoover's renown has not been enhanced by the manner in which he has met the unusual circumstances encountered unexpectedly. This affects his availability for his party's choice. Ordinarily in the case of a Republican President in midterm there would be very little doubt as to the decision in the next national convention. The party might be looking for a candidate for Vice President, but it would have its candidate for President.

Mr. Hoover made political decisions which further impaired his standing in his party. A man wise in political ways would not have taken chances with what he possessed to reach for what he did not need. Mr. Hoover had the big industrial Republican states. He did not need the southern agrarian states. If he tried to bring them in he had to displease the industrial states.

Mr. Hoover furthermore could gain nothing by seeming to be Mr. Bryan to Nebraska and radical western states. He might convince the industrial states that Mr. Bryan had been elected instead of Mr. Hoover, but, no matter what he did, the radical states would not be deceived. Very likely Mr. Bryan himself could not have satisfied them.

These are midterm reflections upon conditions which may change, but it is true for the time that there are other candidates who would not give themselves consideration or be considered for the nomination if Mr. Hoover had not himself prepared the way for it and if it were not now inviting. In preparing the way he also has indicated what the qualities of another candidate must be.

For one thing he cannot be of closed mind on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. He cannot be satisfied with them and therefore he cannot be satisfactory to the Anti-Saloon league, the political clerics and the organized zealots. There is more than a drift away from their domination. It is a rush. The candidate, it may appear later in the development of Republican opinion in this matter, may need as a qualification an unqualified opposition to federal prohibition and to such interference in the province of the states.

For another thing the candidate cannot be a follower of Woodrow Wilson in internationalism. Republicans have voted these questions down in elections. Administrations take them up afterward. The result has been a weakening of national interests in the pursuit of ideas for which the party has not shown sympathy and to which it has not given support. The Republican party has been a nationalist party. That is its history and has been its purpose. Roosevelt represented it truly when he was President. Since his time administrations have sought rewards and renown in a different spirit and for a different purpose.

Another point seems to be plain. The candidate must qualify as an advocate of the limitations of government. The Republican party is not communistic or socialist. Republicans do not believe that government should be substituted for private enterprise or that the individual should be in the leading strings of bureaucracy. The results of too much government are already noticeable. Many injuries are apparent, but radicals ignore them. Republicans do not believe that it is the function of government to conduct the principal enterprises of the country or that they can be so conducted.

These are some of the qualifications which will be required of the successful candidate in the Republican national convention.

STUPID DRIVING.

We revert to the nuisance and waste of bad motor driving. With the rapid increase of wide roads the new facilities are heavily discounted by careless drivers who refuse to keep to their own lanes and wander along without respect for the convenience of others or the maximum use of the broad roads. Slow drivers take the center lanes and many take a part of two lanes, holding back traffic on both and compelling other drivers to stay behind or take a chance of passing in the opposite lane.

These bad habits are all founded in human nature, of course, and they are therefore not easily corrected. But they show the need for better policing of the main radial roads. Drivers who are in the wrong lane or in other ways are misusing the roads should be reprimanded, and motor clubs should carry on a campaign of education to convince users of the roads that heedless driving is an injury to themselves as well as to others. It is reducing the benefits of road development substantially.

GANG RESOURCES AND INFLUENCES.

What is now the usual occurrence of a day's work in the administration of justice here would have been regarded six months ago as nothing short of astonishing. Gangsters are no longer pushing the law around. They are brought into court, confronted with such charges as can be made against them, and jailed. Their immunity has ceased. Their attitude has changed. Their political connections are not helping them a great deal. Their legal staffs are not keeping them from punishment. Some have taken themselves out of the city. Chicago is not thought to be as soft as it was six months ago.

The work of various public officers has made this possible, that of Judge McGoorty and Judge Lyle, Chief Alcock and State's Attorney Swanson, United States District Attorney Johnson, and Coroner Bundesen. These law administration activities have not all been directly related, but all have worked toward a common purpose, which is the reduction of gangland. The criminals have been caught on old crimes in connection with which they had evaded punishment and have been returned to prison to serve their terms. They have been brought to court for violation of the income tax laws and have been sentenced. They have been brought in as vagrants and have been sentenced.

They have ceased to occupy the position of innocent citizens in the community in which their crimes have been committed. Men of notorious lives are no longer accepted as legally reputable and therefore entitled to the freedom of the city. The administration of law has gained some distinct advantages, but the end is not yet in sight. It is more likely that the fight has only begun. Criminality has been one of the most profitable undertakings in the city and the wealth of gangland is great. Money is available and the gangsters and their associates may use it to reach into unsuspected places for the influence to protect them.

Crime has not been a thing of precarious existence. It has been organized and rich. It may be expected that whatever money can do will be done wherever a protection can be gained or an immunity strengthened.

THE MATERNITY BILL.

The Jones-Cooper maternity bill has been passed by the senate. It provides for an appropriation of $1,000,000 a year to be distributed to the states for the care of mothers and for child nurture. There were only ten votes against it. Opposition to the extension of federal government functions apparently has disappeared in the senate.

It was a hard bill to fight, very likely. The opposition could be accused of indifference to the welfare of the nation's children and their mothers. It was difficult to insist upon proper principles of government when the enthusiasts were making the issue one of humanity.

A worthy cause is supposed to dispense with all considerations other than the desirability of the results sought. If they can be represented as beneficial it is unimportant how they are obtained, and, that being the case, there is no apparent limit to the undertakings to which the province of the federal government may be extended. Any group of citizens who conclude that a social service should be performed will find little resistance in Washington. States are being relieved of their responsibilities and the bulk of bureaucracy grows bigger and bigger. The wise separation of governments which was so well adjusted to the size and complexity of the country becomes more vague with every session of congress.

There is no proof that the federal government is competent to extend itself into every field, even if it were desirable in principle that it should do so. It is not only undesirable in theory but it is developing a system of government which defeats itself. It will end in purposeless motion, in an organization which flattens everything with which it comes in contact.

TO BRING BACK EUROPEAN PROSPERITY.

The league of nations financial section, which has just filed a report on gold distribution, complains of high tariffs and other trade barriers and the policy of trying to maintain high wage levels in certain countries.

Another thing that should come down is immigration barriers which obstruct the free passage of workers from countries where wages are low into countries maintaining policies conducive to a high level of wages.

Welcome, Uncle Shylock, to the league of nations.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur, Ill., Herald.]

A general chorus of praise in the middle west for the administration's removal of the requirements that use of corn sugar in canned goods must be noted on the label is jarred by a few dubious notes. Zealous friends of the pure foods act, including Mrs. Harvey Wiley, widow of the pioneer who first obtained that legislative protector for the American consumer, see in this action a precedent that must inevitably lead to a weakening of the law that has made food labels dependable. If the substitution of corn sugar for the sweeter cane sugar can be disguised, they say, it is only a matter of time until the pressure of other producers will result in a similar concession to the canners who want to substitute artificial flavor, preservative or coloring.

However that may be, it strikes a layman as strange that the corn sugar industry should have regarded the label requirement as an impossible barrier to the popularity of their product. The real difficulty has been not that the presence of corn sugar in a food product had to be mentioned on the label but a conviction in the minds of consumers that corn sugar was undesirable.

The impression is a hangover from the time when manufacturing processes had not been perfected, and corn sugar was a crude product in comparison with the present pure, white and tasteful sweetening. An energetic propaganda might have changed this obsolete opinion so effectively that the label, "Sweetened with Corn Sugar," could have been made a strong selling point for the brand.

The historic example is the English law which sought to penalize German imports by requiring that all articles of German origin should be marked as such, when sold in the kingdom. German manufacturers promptly accepted the requirement and proceeded to make the label, "Made in Germany," an advertising asset. Similarly, the American housewife might have been taught, "Demand canned goods sweetened with corn sugar; the wholesome, digestible sweet that doctors prefer even for invalids and babies." Capitalized in this manner, the corn sugar label would have been not a handicap upon the industry but an important advantage.

HEALTH IN COLLEGE.

In place of the present schedule of subjects taught in colleges, Goodwin Watson proposes that colleges set up functional departments grouping the interests "that spring from the demands of actual life."

The first and most important of these departments, he says, should be the department of health. Each student should take some problem of health and work out a solution. In doing this, he would teach himself a fund of valuable information and many health principles, meanwhile acquiring health habits and learning how to live. Health includes both physical and mental health. The projects include public health as well as those of personal hygiene. Among subjects to be studied scientifically and fundamentally and also in their everyday, practical relations he suggests the following:

The control of temper, how to get over the blues, finding out why one is shy, how to get over self-consciousness, the likes and dislikes of people, the bringing up of weight and weight reduction. Among the public health projects suggested are: Ice cream supply, drinking water, swimming facilities, smoke nuisance, contagious diseases, prejudices, and the social neuroses of the community, the insane and the delinquent. The proposal is that hundreds of subjects of these types be outlined in a series of how-to-live-with bulletins, each one of which outlines one problem and lays down ways to begin its solution. From that point the student goes on his own.

Dr. Watson had other fish to fry and he could not go into much detail. Doubtless on his list of several hundred projects from which the student could choose would be the care of the feet, of the skin, of the hair, how much muscle exercise is required for health, whether setting up exercises are worth while, what value has hardening oneself, how can one become a good heat maker, how can worry be prevented, good sleeping habits, how can judgment be protected against emotional thinking, why is mob psychology an emotional hodgepodge, can it be made a mental process, what is the appeal of quackery, how far should good citizens go in building up health departments, how can the opinions and judgments of men as to medicine and medical men be put on a more wholesome basis?

CAUSE IS NOT KNOWN.

Mrs. J. W. B. writes:

1. Kindly give me some information regarding cancer. Is it caused by an infection, bruise, nerve disturbance, or is it contagious?
2. What effect would cancer of the pancreas have on the internal organs? A dear friend is ill and her case has been diagnosed as cancer of the pancreas.
3. Must a surgical operation be performed to be actually positive?
4. Does X-ray show the cancer?
5. Will a blood or urine test show whether a person is afflicted with cancer?
6. How long can a person live afflicted with same?

REPLY:

1. Cancer is not contagious. The cause of cancer is not known. A bruise may be a contributing cause.
2. Cancer of the pancreas generally invades nearby organs.
3. Exploring operation may be required for diagnosis. Operation for removal is not feasible.
4. It may, but the chance that it will is not first class.
5. No.
6. Not long with cancer of the pancreas.

KNEE SOCKS APPROVED.

Mrs. L. writes: My 7 year old boy wears knee socks all winter. His knickers come snugly to his knees. He wears warm cotton underwear. Is he in danger of having rheumatism when he is older, as so many of my friends say? The child is comfortable and insists on wearing these socks, which are cotton. He wears high shoes, but changes to oxfords for Sunday-go-to-meeting.

REPLY:

Your plan is a good one and it is safe.

GUN PLAY SHOULD BE REPORTED.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am employed as a stenographer by a trucking company. The foreman seems to get a kick out of pulling a gun and pointing it at me in fun. I dislike to report the matter to my employer inasmuch as this man is his favorite and the result would probably be detrimental to me. Is there any action I can take to eliminate some of these practical jokes of his? C. R. F.

Presumably he has no right to carry the gun and one course would be to have him arrested for carrying concealed weapons. If you are unwilling to do anything unpleasant, there is not much object in asking for legal advice.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—Please advise what the situation is on the 1930 special assessments. 1. Are they on sale? 2. What was set as the "annual special assessment date" for the sale of such special assessments? 3. Is there an injunction suit started against the sale of such assessments? 4. How would that affect the annual sale date in regard to foreclosing a trust deed for nonpayment of 1930 special assessments? G. P.

The writer requests information on 1930 special assessments. It is presumed he means special assessments due Jan. 3, 1930, for the year 1929, and the following answers refer to that basis:

1. Yes, these special assessments are now on sale.
2. The date on which this sale started was Dec. 22, 1930.
3. A bill for an injunction has been filed, but at this writing no restraining order has been issued.
4. If a restraining order had been issued or is issued before a sale in any case, the sale would not be made and conditions in trust deeds against tax sales would not be violated. JOSEPH B. McDONOUGH, County Treasurer.

CEMETERY LOTS CAN BE ATTACHED.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can an undertaker attach four graves [vacant] for nonpayment of a funeral bill when the lots are in the name of the party in debt who was a co-signer of chattel? C. A.

Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

ELEVEN YEARS OLD TODAY!

Little Prohibition is eleven years old today. But don't let Al Capone come to the birthday party and blow out the eleven candles on the cake. You know Al; he wouldn't take the trouble to blow out the candles; he'd shoot 'em out.

And while we're celebrating little Prohibition's eleventh birthday we ought to see what should be done about that child. This is just between us as friends and don't for the world let little Prohibition know it, but that child isn't quite right. Some think he's backward, or defective, or a moron, or something. Maybe it's his tonsils? Or do you suppose he's suffering from malnutrition?

Anyhow, something's wrong. He doesn't grow like other children and he seems to sit around and sulk all day. Mercy, but so much was expected of little Prohibition when he was born eleven years ago today. He has a very bad temper and scowls and makes faces at people. Maybe it's his liver? Or maybe he's got worms or winter itch?

Anyhow, it's little Prohibition's birthday and it ought to be well celebrated, because there's twenty-two thousand, or twenty-two million, or something like that, speakeasies in Chicago, and they all should celebrate little Prohibition's birthday, because, goodness knows, they owe all the money they make and their very existence to the dear child, and they certainly must have a little gratitude.

And Al Capone, whether or not he comes to the birthday party (you know Al doesn't like big public gatherings), ought to send a great big box of solid silver toys set with diamonds. For goodness sake, if it hadn't been for little Prohibition, where would Al be today? Well, he wouldn't be lolling around in his silk pajamas in his billion dollar marble palace in Miami. Maybe he would be driving a team for a railroad construction gang or standing behind a counter in a restaurant asking people whether they wanted appla pie or rosta bif.

Yes, indeed, and if Mr. Capone hasn't thought up a pretty birthday message to send little Prohibition we can suggest one that he is perfectly free to use with our compliments. Here it is, Al: "Congrats. You made me what I am today. Love. Al."

But eleven years old! It simply seems impossible that little Prohibition is eleven years old! How could he possibly get so dirty in only eleven years?

WINTER DIRGE.

Stalactites hanging from the eaves,
Frost that traces its silver leaves
On window panes where a yellow sun
Languid droops as its course is run.
A shoulder of hill to prop a sky
Unrelieved where a crow might fly,
Days that differ in name alone,
Drifting winds in a monotone.
Gray is life and gray is a shade
God meant for penance I'm afraid,
Gray is the landscape, gray as death,
Winter goes by with a wheezy breath.
Inanition is on the land,
Desolation on every hand.
Who loves winter is a knave,
There lies Beauty in her grave.

CLARENCE MILLIGAN.

A NEW GERMAN BOOK says the great war was won by Yankee pluck. The American lads had it, and they've still got it. It takes as much pluck to stand in zero weather and sell apples to a lot of well dressed, impatient, indifferent people as it did to stand firm against a murderous fire in the woods of the Argonne. A different kind of courage, but just as fine.

ANYHOW, the starving farmers are going to be given forty-five million bucks' worth of seed by the government. But how are they going to eat the seed if no cream or sugar goes along with it?

AND THEY CALL BRIDGE A GAME.

A man broke up a bridge party at Menominee, knocked down the hostess, who was his partner, kicked out windows and broke chairs and smashed the chief of police on the beezer. Arraigned before the judge, the man said that his hostess-partner had played the deuce of trumps on his ace of spades after the suit had been played twice and the trick was taken by the next player with a ten of trumps. Which, of course, from a bridge player's standpoint, would probably justify murder, let alone a little rough house. But also the defense plead that the host had served some perfectly awful booze. The judge found the prisoner not guilty, but whether because of his hostess playing the low trump or because of the host's likker is not clear, and the matter should be taken up by congress today so that bridge players will know where they stand.

"O MOON—(OR SUN)."

Sing to the moon, you fool, and watch it glow oblivious to your presence and your prayer.
It is a satisfying thing to know one deity beyond the thinnest air has no power to grant a crazy plea or annihilate a tiny entity.

"O moon, thou ancient globe, thou pristine fire, let me die! I hate this blatant day that breaks my heart a thousand times. I tire of fighting beauty. Give me peace, I say!"

It is a prayer that would also fit the sun;
let us choose one or the other and be done.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 16, 1915.

PARIS.—The Germans have begun a new drive on Paris. According to the German official statement six towns near Soissons have been captured by the Germans and the northern bank of the river Aisne has been cleared of French troops. With the capture of these points outside of Soissons the Germans are only fifty-five miles from Paris. They are pouring a heavy fire into the French lines south of the river.

BERLIN.—German main headquarters announces that as the result of three days' fighting northeast of Soissons the Germans captured 5,200 prisoners, 14 guns and six machine guns. It continues: "By continuous fighting we were successful in taking Crouy, Buoy-le-Long, Missy, Vauxrot, and Vallerie. The French suffered heavy losses."

LONDON.—Latest official reports from the Russian general staff are that Russia is sending a new army to invade Germany. The czar's forces have advanced on the West Prussian frontier to within forty miles of the German fortress of Thorn.

ROME.—The death toll of the earthquake which rocked Italy on Jan. 13 is estimated at between 35,000 and 40,000. From thirteen towns out of possibly 100 that were completely demolished or partly wrecked come reports of more than 38,000 dead. The number of injured is placed conservatively at 50,000. Cold, hunger, fire and disease are menacing the survivors.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas.—Fred Alexander, a young Negro, arrested shortly after he attacked Miss Eva May Roth, was burned at the stake in the presence of 5,000 people. He denied the killing of Miss Pearl Forbes, of whose murder he was suspected. Threats had been made to dynamite the penitentiary at Lansing, if the warden refused to turn the prisoner over to Sheriff Everhardy, and the sheriff was warned by the mob that he must bring Alexander in. He organized a posse of sixty deputies and went to Lansing. The prisoner was turned over to him and brought to the jail. The mob broke in, took Alexander to a spot where the body of Miss Forbes was found on Nov. 7, and poured coal oil over him. William Forbes, father of Miss Forbes, applied the match.

SENATORIAL ELECTIONS.—M. S. Quay succeeded in overthrowing his political enemies and in the bitterest fight in the history of Pennsylvania politics was chosen to succeed himself in the United States senate. Other elections by legislatures were: Michigan, James McMillan to succeed himself; Massachusetts, George Frisbie Hoar, reelected; Maine, W. P. Frye, reelected; Idaho, Fred T. Dubois, fusionist, defeated G. L. Shoup, Republican; New Hampshire, Henry E. Burnham, chosen to succeed W. E. Chandler; Colorado, Thomas M. Patterson, fusionist, defeated E. O. Wolcott, Republican.

WICHITA, Kas. — Carrie Nation, charged with wrecking the Carey hotel bar recently, was released from the jail, where she has been in quarantine, on bond of $200. As soon as it became known she was free saloonkeepers posted posted guards at the doors of their places, fearing she would go on another wrecking expedition.

PROPHETS OF GLOOM.

Crown Point, Ind., Jan. 6.—The writer during the last two weeks has listened to salesmen representing four different lines of merchandise bemoan business conditions while conversing with their customers. One traveling representative, in calling on a customer in Crown Point yesterday, remarked that "business was rotten to the core." Six persons, besides the customer, were present to hear this thoughtless individual carry such crepe (as he must do) from town to town. After he had spilled this gloom to the customer the latter informed Mr. Salesman that "if matters are as bad as you say I guess I won't stock up any today." C. M. W.

BOOING AT PATTEN GYM.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 13.—This morning there appeared in your worthy column a letter which set forth two examples of poor sportsmanship in the Northwestern stands in Patten gym. Our enthusiastic rooters were accused of booing opposing players in two recent basketball engagements. The first incident that he mentions took place at the Notre Dame game during Christmas vacation. Approximately ninety per cent of the spectators were not in any way connected with the university. The second example, that of the Michigan game, is even more poorly cited. At that game every seat in the gym was sold by the box office, leaving no room for the usual student section, and consequently making it impossible for many students to gain admission with their student enterprise books. The crowds, therefore, can hardly be called representative of the school, nor should their actions reflect upon it. M. L. H.

KILLING THE INNOCENT.

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 12.—I have just been reading in your paper the account of two prohibition officers pursuing some bootleggers escaping in a car. The officers fired several shots and fatally wounded a boy who was on the street, an innocent bystander. I hope THE TRIBUNE will get after these fanatical law enforcers and denounce them for their recklessness and disregard for the lives and safety of the public.

If prohibition can't be enforced without sacrificing the lives of—

Excuse me. My mistake. Looking closer I see that it was two policemen chasing two or three young fellows who had been blowing a siren and disturbing some people. That makes it all right. Don't say anything about it.

People must not be disturbed by sirens no matter how many lives it may cost to stop it. WILLIAM MAYGAN.

A LUNCHEON VIA RADIO.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—I have just heard the program of W-G-N presenting a luncheon given by the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom in honor of Jane Addams. It seemed strange to me that W-G-N of all stations should present such a program. It consisted of the very affected gushing of a number of women on world peace. They spoke of what they were doing to attain world peace and how the United States senate has blocked the efforts of a number of Presidents to pass various "peace" treaties. I sincerely hope that W-G-N will not pollute the ether again soon with a program of this type.

FRANK WM. MARTIN JR.

DISCARDING THE AMERICAN FAITH.

Racine, Wis., Jan. 6.—After reading your editorial, "Discarding the American Faith," I must still ask the question, why is it not the duty of the federal government to take such action as to eliminate suffering, hunger and want in the future? You intimate that free people should work out their own salvation through their own intelligence and character. Do you mean that the millions that are now suffering, due to the depression which was not caused by them, should devise means of their own to reestablish employment, or do you believe that the industrial leaders who, by their short-sightedness and greed, have brought about the present condition can do anything to remedy the situation and prevent a recurrence?

It seems strange that congress works overtime and commissions are appointed to devise ways and means to relieve certain industries when they get into difficulty. The sponsors of bills for the benefit and protection of industry are not called radicals by the newspapers, nor do we see editorials advising the industries affected to work out their own salvation. Then why expect the people to work out the difficult problem of unemployment when they are not given an opportunity of deciding other problems, prohibition for one, which by the way has proven a costly failure?

The American people do not desire charity, therefore do not expect the government to send a basket of food when they are hungry or a load of fuel when they are cold, but they do have a perfect right to expect the government to devise some means and take such action as to eliminate as far as possible a recurrence of times of stress such as we are now experiencing, even if we must call the sponsors of such legislation "radicals." JOHN M. MILLER.

TRANSPORTATION SUGGESTIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—A few practical (or otherwise) suggestions for local transportation: Protect street car patrons in safety zones by constructing fences of iron posts and chains, such as are now being used in Cleveland.

Establish a third track for express street car service on the trunk lines. While this will not relieve the long congestion, time could be made up beyond it.

Reduce fares to a nickel and walking would go out of style.

I would also suggest for all the transportation systems an automatic street or station indicator. M. D. W.

EXPLAINING THE WETS.

Moline, Ill., Jan. 5.—Why should such men as Atterbury, Du Pont, and others favor the repeal of prohibition? Their plan is to put a federal tax on each barrel sold, and thus relieve them of their income tax, or a large portion of it, so that every time a poor workingman hoisted a scoop of suds he was helping some millionaire pay his tax.

S. A. THOMSON.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—I want to take this opportunity to let you know how much I enjoyed those beautiful pictures of the children in the roto section of Sunday, Jan. 11. May we have some more of the same type picture?

NYE COMMITTEE IS "BROKE"; HAS TO CEASE WORK

More Money Is Requested from Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The senatorial campaign investigating committee, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, radical Republican of North Dakota, entered a plea of bankruptcy today.

Whether it will continue to function will depend on the action taken by the senate tomorrow on a resolution to provide the committee with further funds and grant it an extension of life.

Lacking the money to pay expenses, the committee was forced to cancel subpoenas for 22 witnesses from Pennsylvania, headed by Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, and to call off the session scheduled for tomorrow, when the inquiry into the Pennsylvania campaign was to have been completed.

Sharp Debate Ensues.

Senator Nye's announcement on the floor of the senate caused a sharp debate. He threatened to move that the committee on audit and control where his resolution was pending be discharged from further consideration. Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] replied that the committee had been unable to obtain a quorum but would meet tomorrow morning.

A suggestion that the committee meet immediately, report the resolution out, and let the senate vote on it was met by an objection from Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], who declared he would oppose any consideration of the matter today.

Amount May Be Cut.

It is considered probable that the senate, though it grants further funds tomorrow, will curtail the $50,000 asked for in Senator Nye's resolution and will insist that the committee conclude before the time called for in the resolution, which would extend the life of the committee through the next session of the next congress.

Following the scene on the senate floor, Senator Nye stated that it was evident that there was a movement on foot to kill off the investigating committee. He said that, though further hearings would have brought out telling evidence, the committee already had enough evidence to warrant a motion to unseat Senator James J. Davis [Rep., Pa.], former secretary of labor.

Filipino Society Asks Writ to Open Place Cops Closed

A petition for an injunction to restrain the police from molesting them was filed in the Superior court yesterday by the directors of the Filipino Welfare Association of America, 642 North Clark street. The building was closed by police six weeks ago, the action states, because of a fight started by nonmembers. To keep the building closed will be to deprive bona-fide members of educational studies, it is contended.

Chicago Commercial Group Studies Exploits of Benham

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Belvidere, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The secret six, racket investigating bureau of the Chicago Association of Commerce, has sent agents here to check on the operations of A. W. Benham, "financier of Belvidere," whose recent exploits have aroused bankers and trade associations of northwestern Illinois.

For the last thirty-six hours, it was learned tonight, two of the Chicago bureau's smartest detectives have been working under cover, both here and in Rockford, seeking to discover the investment sources which enable Benham, a former shipping clerk, to pay 50 per cent profits to the hundreds putting their life savings in his scheme and 10 per cent commissions to any one bringing him new capital. The investigators came, it is understood, at behest of Omar H. Wright, president of the Second National bank of Belvidere.

Resents Tax Charge.

A published but unconfirmed report that the federal bureau of internal revenue was checking Benham's income tax returns for 1929 and 1930 brought a marked change in his hitherto affable attitude toward inquisitors. Today he bristlingly asserted that "some one's trying to frame one on me."

"Let 'em investigate," he shouted, pounding his desk. "I've filed my schedule for 1929 with the advice of a lawyer and I have until March 15 to file for 1930."

Benham's legal counsel to date, as listed in the prospectus of his Blackhawk Finance company, has been Williston E. Reckhow, Rockford attorney and former deputy collector of internal revenue in this district. Another Rockford attorney, Clifford Pedderson, came into the picture today, however.

Publicity accorded Benham's operations to date has made him feel "hurt," he said, adding that the report that his speculations were secret was erroneous.

Denies Plans Are Secret.

"There's no secret to my plan of money making," he asserted. "I have men all over the country looking for the right sort of opportunities. They report the opportunities to me. I use the pooled funds intrusted me, make a purchase and quick sale at a substantial profit, and turn back his money to the investor.

"We'll take farms, for instance," he went on. "I find a hard pressed farmer, take his property for less than it's worth and find a man who knows a bargain. I make a profit but—get this—my method differs from the banker's because I give my friends in this pool a square deal."

Asked how many bargain hunters he had in the field, he said, "Well, I've only ten, but they travel all over."

Benham's explanations was scoffed at by Belvidere bankers and by State's Attorney Alexander J. Strom, Boone county prosecutor.

"I've been dealing in financial affairs for a good many years and never yet saw a legitimate enterprise that paid 50 per cent interest," Mr. Wright observed. He termed Benham's illustration of profits in farm lands absurd.

"A field agent for the National Joint Stock Land bank was in my office only this morning," the banker said. "He was arranging for foreclosure on a 160 acre farm in this county. The property was valued at $300 an acre, the bank was willing to sell for $75, and couldn't find a purchaser."

Benham disposes of the criticisms of the bankers and the chambers of commerce with one word. "jealous."

"They've had a little ring of their own for years," he asserts. "Now I'm getting in and they don't like it. Certain people—I won't say who—have gone to great length to frame me. D'you think I'd dare sit alone in my office with a woman client? Not on your life. A photographer would be apt to bust in and snap a picture."

It's the fear of being "framed," Benham went on, that has led him to avoid use of the mails or a checking account in transacting business. It is this same practice which has made the trade associations most suspicious.

Trailing Without Result.

A Rockford trade association, it has been learned, spent several weeks in a vain effort to trace Benham's speculations. The investigators entertained the theory that he might be financing a Chicago narcotic ring or bootleg syndicate, but this notion has been disproved.

The investigators are certain that none of Benham's funds have been transferred out of this territory through Rockford banks, nor has he used postoffice or express money orders. They are equally sure there are no investments in local territory likely to yield more than legitimate interest at this time.

The confidence of the local investors remains unshaken. A majority continue to regard Benham as the town's benefactor, enabling them to meet current bills, pay off mortgages and buy new cars, although the factories are operating but three days a week.

Furthermore, Benham's solicitors are swarming nearby towns. A pool of $1,700 was reported organized for Benham yesterday among employés of the Mattison Machine company at Rockford. Fred Lee, auditor of the Rockford Electric company and president of the chamber of commerce, discovered that every employé in his office had been canvassed.

Not at Local Office.

Departing from his usual practice, Benham remained away from his partition office in a garage today and spent most of the day conferring with Attorney Pedderson in the Rockford office of the Blackhawk Finance company. Pedderson, when one caller asked whether he were connected with the finance company, said he was there to invest his money. The lawyer later took pains to deny any intention of investing when the chamber of commerce made inquiry.

London Bankers Grant Brazil $35,000,000 Loan

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Credit of $35,000,000, it is stated here, has been arranged for the Bank of Brazil by a London banking group, headed by N. M. Rothschild Sons, to tide the Brazilian government over the temporary adverse tendency in the foreign exchange market.

BELGIUM YIELDS ITS CONCESSION IN CHINESE PORT

Tientsin Calls Holiday on Return of Soil.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, China, Jan. 15.—China today made a further step for recovery of her sovereign rights when the Belgian concession at Tientsin was formally surrendered to the Nationalist government. The entire city made the occasion a holiday.

Baron Dewarzee, Belgian minister, came from Peiping to formally hand over the concession, but was stricken ill. He deputized Consul General Snyers to assume the duty. Foreign Minister C. T. Wang tonight gave a banquet at which the tenor of his address was that the rendition was merely a step for China in the recovery of her soil. He said it was also a move towards the abolition of extraterritoriality throughout the nation.

Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan retain concessions at Tientsin, but these as at Shanghai and elsewhere, are under the general plan of recovery, Mr. Wang pointed out.

Chinese Plan Radical Changes.

The tentative plan of Tientsin authorities involves a radical change in shipping arrangements, including the construction of a bridge connecting the former German and Belgian concessions; the building of wharves and warehouses along a 3,300 foot river frontage.

The British and French fear such plans will hurt their highly developed concessions above the proposed bridge.

Foreign Minister Wang will return to Peiping tomorrow for a brief visit, after which he will return to Tientsin for a conference with Mo Te-hui, who has just returnted from Russia, and Chang Hseuh-liang, war lord of Manchuria, regarding the delicate relations concerning the Chinese Eastern railway.

Troops Battle Bandit Armies.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Fighting between government troops and marauding armies of Reds was reported from three south China provinces today.

Amoy reported 200 communists bandits had been slain at Yungting, southern Fukien province, when provincial forces drove the outlaws from that city. The Reds had held Yungting since Jan. 1.

Reports from southern Kiangsi province said sharp fighting was in progress between Reds and the military near Ningtu, which communists looted last December.

Communists in eastern Hunan province were said to have attacked the towns of Linying and Hukong, where Nationalist forces were entrenched.

TENNESSEE QUIZ ON FINANCES TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Employment of Auditors Still Poser.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Tennessee's little teapot dome investigation will begin to simmer next week when open sessions of the committee will be held. The knottiest question now before the committee is over the appointment of auditors to make the state examination and survey that is planned.

While the majority of the committee are determined to get the best help in the country and are prepared to go to Chicago or New York for it, there is a murmuring of wounded state pride behind the scenes, and the question is how to do this gracefully.

One proposition has been made to appoint an outside firm and let them hire inside men to do the work.

Committee to Confer.

Speaker Scott Fitzhugh of the senate and Speaker Walter Haynes of the house have been appointed a subcommittee to confer with auditors.

The legislature probably will recess soon until some time in March in order to give the committee opportunity to function undisturbed by other duties.

When the committee met this afternoon five representatives of state auditing firms were waiting at the doors. One of them, representing the Tennessee Society of Certified Public Accountants, was finally admitted. In a loud voice that was heard through the hotel corridors he demanded a chance for the state auditors to be heard before the committee made a decision. "It is understood," said Chairman Walter Faulmner, "that this is to be on its merits. We do not care to have the question of localities brought up. This resolution declares for nationally known auditors."

Hearing Is Granted.

The emissary declared that the whole society would be willing to take up the work, and a motion was carried in the committee to grant him a hearing next Tuesday afternoon. In the meantime no decision will be made, although outside auditors will be asked to present their ideas of the survey.

Griffenhagen and associates of Chicago and the Searle-Miller company of New York are under consideration and the advice of governmental research bureaus will be sought.

Three new bills dealing with the powers of the investigating committee were introduced today by Senator Charles Cornelius. The purpose of these bills is to separate the controversial features of punishment for recalcitrant witnesses and the immunity clause from the main bill granting special powers of court character to the committee.

BILL FOR REPEAL OF INDIANA DRY LAW IS FILED IN ASSEMBLY

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The state bone dry law, which technically though not actually makes Indiana most arid of the forty-eight states, would be repealed and only the Volstead act would support prohibition in Indiana, according to terms of a bill introduced in the lower house of representatives today.

The bone dry law was introduced and fathered in the 1925 legislature by Frank Wright, a Republican member of the lower house from Indianapolis and also a paid propagandist of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league. The 1925 legislature was completely dominated by followers of the Ku Klux Klan and the Anti-Saloon league.

Indiana has had statewide prohibition since 1917 and previously had operated under various local option laws since 1909. The repeal measure, was introduced by Fred S. Galloway, Indianapolis Democrat, and Fred A. Egan, Gary Democrat. The 1931 house is predominantly Democratic but the senate is Republican. Speaker Walter Myers, known as a modificationist, referred the bill to the public morals committee which includes in its membership unusual representation from the moist urban areas of the state.

TWO VICTIMS OF HIT AND RUN MOTORISTS DIE

Three deaths yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 64. The victims:

Frank Miller, 48 years old, 833 West 33d street. Died at the Auburn Park hospital of injuries received on Jan. 12 when struck by a hit and run motorist at 78th street and Vincennes avenue.

John Bergin, 72 years old, 509 North Union avenue. Died at the county hospital of injuries received on Jan. 4 when struck by an auto while crossing Washington boulevard at Des Plaines street. Two boys gave the police a license number, which was traced to Mrs. Maybelle Whiteside, 3131 Harlem avenue, Berwyn. She has denied she struck the man.

Fred Heffner, 76 years old. Died last night in the Mary Thompson hospital of injuries received Wednesday night when he was struck at Warren boulevard and Wood street by an automobile driven by Frank Osborn, 60 years old, 2959 Lincoln avenue. Now—an amazing new type of Radio Tube!

Greatest improvement in tubes since radio began. Four pillars instead of two. TWICE as rigid. TWICE as durable. No extra cost!

"I thought the band was right in the living-room," "You'd swear we had a brand-new radio," "That's what I call tone," people are saying. Here, without doubt, is the greatest advance in radio-performance in a long time. 4-pillar Eveready Raytheon Tubes.

Four strong points of support instead of two, as in all other tubes. Four rigid posts, bracing the fragile tube-elements north, south, east, and west. Twice as many pillars as the old-fashioned tube. Immune to the jars and jolts of shipping. Free from the punishment of vibrating loud-speakers.

Eveready Raytheon took an old engineering-principle . . . as old as the pyramids . . . and turned it to the advantage of the radio-tube. The results are sensational. Programs come in now with the living, breathing realism of the original performance at the microphone, miles away.

Get the free home demonstration

Words won't tell you. An electrical test in the dealer's store can't give you the picture. You must hear these marvelous tubes at home, in your own set, under the exact conditions they must meet every night. Not just one new tube, but a complete set. Then, only, will you know the truth about tubes.

National Carbon Company has arranged with its hundreds of dealers to give you this free demonstration in your own home. Without obligation. Without ballyhoo. The tubes can talk for themselves. If your present tubes are a year or more old, you can't afford to miss this opportunity. Get the free demonstration NOW.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.
General Offices: New York, N. Y.

Unit of Union Carbide UCC and Carbon Corporation

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation, the many fragile parts in the tube can be assembled with watch-making accuracy, and cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position! They are always poised for performance, like the strings of a fine piano, tuned for a concert!

In ordinary tubes, the many delicate parts have only a two-legged foundation — like the goal-posts on a football field. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps, vibration from dynamic speakers — all can impair their vital accuracy. And that means uncertain results . . . unreliable reception!

The radio service-man, who keeps your set in repair, is a technical expert . . . he knows tubes! He can explain the value of the 4-pillar principle, and demonstrate it, in your own radio-set.

TRUCE IN STRIKE OF BRITISH COAL MINERS IS WON

150,000 May Go Back to Work Monday.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A truce was won tonight in the South Wales coal mine dispute which may put 150,000 miners back into the pits on Monday. Under an agreement reached between representative of the owners and miners, operations will be resumed at the same rates of pay as before with the underground hours stipulated at seven and a half daily.

Tonight's agreement is expected to have averted considerable suffering and hardship among the miners who have been without work since the great stoppage two weeks ago.

Discard Spread-Over System.

As a result of the agreement, based on the 1926 pact, a new contract has been drawn up which will remain in force until Jan. 31, 1934, and thereafter until the expiration of one month's notice given in writing by either side.

The spread-over system of hours, asked by the owners, has been discarded. Under this plan the owners were allowed to enforce any hours so long as the average was seven and a half a day. The miners fought to eliminate the spread-over system and demanded a seven and a half hour day with no decrease in pay. They formerly worked eight hours.

The agreement provides that the wage question be considered at once by a conciliation board with an independent chairman, which will give a final decision before the end of February. The decision is to become operative March 1.

Pact Must Be Signed.

The pact must go through the formality of being approved by the South Wales Miners' federation at Cardiff Saturday night. The owners must submit it to the South Wales Owners' association. Both procedures are declared to be mere formalities, indicating that the crisis is at an end.

The outlook in the cotton industry crisis remains gloomy. Weavers' representatives met today and decided to take a vote of the men on the stand to be taken in future negotiations with the owners. The prospects remain that 500,000 Lancashire cotton operatives may be locked out.

CHARGE GIRL, 20, KILLED WITNESS IN MURDER CASE

Confesses $75 Paid, Officers Say.

Independence, Kas., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The story of a deliberately planned assassination to remove a state witness was attributed by county officers today to Muriel Sullivan, 20 year old waitress, one of four persons charged with murdering Mrs. Maude Martin, 40, of Coffeyville.

Officers said the Sullivan girl confessed she shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Martin in the latter's home after making an unsuccessful attempt to poison her.

The alleged confession stated Mrs. Martin was slain to prevent her from appearing in court against Dr. S. A. Brainard, 45, charged with murder in connection with an alleged illegal operation on Esther O'Dare Nidiffer, 18, who died in the Martin home.

Three Others Arrested.

Dr. Brainard, Paul R. Jones, 22, motor car salesman, and Dale [Slim] Orrison, taxicab driver, were arrested with the Sullivan girl. Their preliminary hearing on murder charges was set for Jan. 23.

The girl was quoted as confessing that Orrison paid her $75 for killing Mrs. Martin and that Jones enlisted her services and was present when the slaying occurred. Jones brought her to Coffeyville from Seminole, Okla., where she was a waitress, she said.

Admits Writing Note.

To make it appear the death was a suicide, the waitress said she penned the note found with a revolver beside the body of Mrs. Martin, who died from a bullet wound in the head without regaining consciousness. The note read:

"I am guilty of Esther's death. I am too miserable to live.

"MRS. MAUDE MARTIN."

Officers were not satisfied the note was written by Mrs. Martin and were suspicious about other details of the case. On learning that the Sullivan girl had made visits at Mrs. Martin's home they caused her arrest. The alleged confession followed.

The girl was quoted as saying she pressed a revolver against Mrs. Martin's head and fired while the woman was stooping over to examine some phonograph records.

CORONER HOLDS 4 FOR MURDER OF LIMERICK GIRL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A coroner's jury early today ordered four men held for the grand jury in connection with the murder New Year's eve of Beulah Limerick, 19 year old theater usherette.

Policeman Robert F. Langdon, Vernon Limerick, brother of the slain girl; Richard Reed, a roomer at their house, and William Paddy, who escorted her to a dance the night before her death, were the men held.

The jury's verdict was that the girl came to her death at the hands of persons unknown. She was found dead on the morning of Dec. 31 and it was not until that evening that an undertaker discovered a bullet hole in the back of her head. The coroner questioned dozens of persons.

Langdon was on duty outside the girl's house the night of her death and members of hr family testified she had said he had threatened her.

Easiest Way To Break Up a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

YARROW SEIZES FIVE IN RAID FOR 'OBSCENE PHOTOS'

Led by the Rev. Philip Yarrow, secretary of the Illinois Vigilance society, 35 North Dearborn street, a police squad descended yesterday upon four West Madison street shops, and seized various quantities of pictures, post cards, and art novelties which the reform leader described as obscene and lewd.

The raids were conducted at 211, 515, 571, and 507 West Madison street, and netted five prisoners, Herman Sachnoss, Sam Grossman, Julius Warshow, Joseph Sabbath, and Bernard Brande. All but Brande, who lives at 4945 Sheridan road, are proprietors.

The Rev. Mr. Yarrow received information of the alleged lewd art cards and novelties a week ago from an informer identified as Jack Brown. Mr. Yarrow last night said he would assume responsibility for the raids, and branded the sale of the cards as "disgraceful." According to police, Brown, the informant, is entitled under the law to one-half of any fines that might be assessed against the merchants in court.

BRITISH RADIO MEN FIND NEWSPAPERS BEST FOR ADVERTISING

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—After years of experiment, officials of the British Radio Manufacturers' association are convinced that newspaper advertising is the most productive form of sales promotion. The association, representing leading British radio and radio component manufacturers, spent $5,000,000 with newspapers during 1930, it was announced today, and during this period the manufacturers' turnover increased 40 per cent.

"Scientific market research," said one official, "reveals that an investment of $5,000,000 yielded dividends in retail business to the extent of $80,000,000."

CONTEMPT WRIT FOR CAPT. GROSS IN WIFE'S SUIT

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Capt. Christian Gross, former second secretary of the American legation at Berne and recently designated second secretary of the Havana embassy, who arrived here Tuesday from abroad, was arrested on a contempt of court order granted in a suit by his wife, Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, it was learned today.

The Supreme court paroled him to his attorneys until tomorrow, when the court will hear argument on a plea to vacate the order.

Mrs. Gross, who is the daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former governor general of the Philippines, and who has been in litigation with her husband over his attempts to get possession of their son, Peter, is suing him here to compel him to carry out an agreement to set up a trust fund of $250,000 out of $850,000 she says she gave him in July, 1923. He asserts that he is a resident of Chicago and that the courts of Illinois alone have jurisdiction over him.

Mrs. Gross got an injunction restraining him from continuing a suit he brought against her in Chicago. He has been adjudged in contempt of that order.

Dry Kaskaskia River Bed Reveals Old Indian Canoe

Pana, Ill., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Kaskaskia river, at the lowest level in history as a result of prolonged drought, has given up a treasure. An ancient Indian canoe thirty feet long and two feet wide was discovered protruding from the river bed. It had been hewn or burned out of the trunk of a tree and was in a good state of preservation. In the bottom were two holes, apparently for the purpose of sinking the craft, which was a custom of the Indians to avoid its use by other tribes.

SAY APPELLATE POST WILL GO TO ONE OF 2 JUDGES

The choice of a successor to Judge George T. Page of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, who retired last October, lies between Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago and Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, both of the district court, according to reliable reports at the federal building yesterday.

It had been reported that President Hoover felt reluctant to name any successor to Judge Page over Judge George A. Carpenter, senior district judge of the entire seventh federal circuit, who will complete twenty-one years of service on Feb. 1. However, Judge Carpenter said in an interview yesterday that he was not a candidate.

"I had my chance in 1912 when I was nominated by President Taft to succeed Judge Peter S. Grosscup on the appellate bench," said Judge Carpenter, "but Mr. Wilson was elected President and I was not confirmed by the senate. I should be very happy to see either Judge Wilkerson or Judge Lindley elevated."

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(Adv.)

BEWARE, SO YOU DON'T RUIN THAT INFORMAL LUNCH

Don't Make the Guests Juggle Their Food.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Sunday evening, with its generous hospitality, climaxed by the pleasant informality of a simple supper, is one of the most delightful occasions the week offers. Father and mother have laid aside business and household worries, friends who came for a brief call have lingered by the fireside to chat on into the early twilight, and the children have come romping home, perhaps with a group of friends. Whatever the circumstances, tea time suggests a light menu and seems to bring out the mellow if not the more scintillating phases of our whole makeup.

All of this effect may be lost, however, and the hour may be one of acute discomfort if the hostess has not given some forethought to the menu, no matter how simple, and to the comfort and convenience of the unexpected or invited guests. No one has escaped the Sunday evening supper where he sits uneasily balancing a cup of hot tea in one hand with a plate of salad on an imaginary lap or inadequate knee while the other hand makes uncertain attempts to pass an unending stream of small dishes. Such a supper may be informal, but it is also inexcusable and unnecessary, no matter how impromptu.

It's Easily Avoided.

Dining room space is frequently limited to the comfortable accommodation of six or eight guests, all bound by the strictest traffic laws, so that the serving of ten or twelve persons must be accomplished in the living room. Here it is that the butler on wheels, commonly known as a tea cart, and a nest of little serving tables, fill the need in perfect fashion. Each guest may locate himself with a fine eye to elbow and foot space and still be provided with a convenient spot for his cup, plate and glass.

The tea cart furnishes room for serving the simple menu which has been built around one or, at the most, two main dishes, a side dish, and a light dessert. This might include a pressed or jellied meat with a compact salad, celery stuffed with roquefort cheese, and a bit of chilled fruit with tiny chocolate coated sponge cakes.

Beware of Overloading.

And with all of this there still remains room on the cart for the tea pot, cups and saucers. Creamed mushrooms served with small assorted sandwiches are also popular for the main course, but always beware of overloading your menu. Sunday high tea or supper implies that all of those present have partaken of the traditional Sunday dinner earlier in the day.

If the number is small and the dining room of ample size, a buffet supper is a pleasant custom. Set the table with your gayest linens and colorful glassware. Then stock the serving table so that the guests may easily help themselves. An attractive tray of hors d'oeuvres with one hot dish followed by cheese and toasted crackers is always a satisfying and popular meal.

A Large Assortment.

The hostess who takes advantage of the vast and savory array of hors d'oeuvres sold by any high class grocery or delicatessen has a fertile and comparatively new field to explore. Many of these delicious foods which might be used to fill a compartment dish are almost unknown to the average housewife. Antipasto, for example, is Italian hors d'oeuvres—tuna fish, olives, pickles, onions, and artichokes—but only small portions of each, so that it would provide one item for this course.

Pâté de foies gras cut in cubes with a slice of pimento olive pressed into each should certainly have one section of the dish and macédoine of vegetables marinated in French dressing and served on a large lettuce leaf might well occupy the center position.

Potato Salad the Standby.

Goose liver pâté, Norwegian sardines, pickled walnuts, anchovy filets, caviar in numerous forms, and Swedish hors d'oeuvres are all delicacies and appropriate for the compartment dish. Neither should rosa apples, small firm pimento cups stuffed with a mixture of cream cheese, Roquefort cheese, and chopped chives, be omitted. If there is room the age old pot to salad might be added to this collection, as it is often the standby of many suppers.

After the hors d'oeuvres one hot dish should be served. Mushrooms and oysters are admirably suited to this purpose as is cheese soufflé or lobster Newbourg. A very simple fruit, strawberries with their stems remaining, ready to be dipped in powdered sugar, might complete this menu, or an Edam cheese with toasted biscuits would provide a fitting complement.

17 VEGETABLES SHOW 140% GAIN IN TEN YEARS

Pity the poor potato which in contrast with a list of 17 vegetables that have shown an average gain of 140 per cent in consumption in 10 years has been able only to stay at the level of 1918.

In the United States bureau of agricultural economics it has been computed that shipments in the ten years between 1918 and 1928 increased 140 per cent for 17 vegetables occupying the chief spotlights in retail markets. The population of the country in the same time increased 15 per cent. Shipments at the beginning of the 10-year period were 145,000 carloads while in 1928 they had increased to 350,000 cars.

Cured Ham, Bacon, Pork Good Buys at Present Time

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Chicago Meat council states: "The unusually low prices at which pork is selling at the present time make it an economical meat buy for the Chicago housewife. Pork loin, roasts, and chops are especially attractive buys. Cured ham and bacon also are selling at reduced prices."

LOW BUTTER, EGG PRICES TO STAY SEVERAL MONTHS

Dealers See No Immediate Upward Trend.

"Down on the farm" or "up on the farm" the old brindle cow and the little red hen continue to turn out their products so that farmers can count on a daily cash income, although it may be less and garnered through longer hours and harder work.

Can Chicago housewives continue for any length of time to expect low retail prices on butter, cheese, and eggs? That question, discussed by dealers and officials interested in the Chicago Mercantile exchange, where much of the metropolitan supplies are bargained for on present and future deliveries, brings forth answers generally indicating that low prices will evidently continue for several months.

Butter Hits New Low.

Butter production keeps pace with consumption, says C. L. Pier of the government's market service Chicago office, although the market has set a record in the last few days of touching a low spot at 26½ cents per pound wholesale for "extras." This hadn't been equaled in January since the Chicago market of 1906, when the same high quality was quoted wholesale at 26 cents per pound.

Eggs coming out of storage are said to be priced the lowest for January as far back as 1916, while cheese on the Plymouth, Wis., market is now the lowest it has been since 1915, when it was down around 14 and 15 cents per pound wholesale on American types. Contracts were being made this week to supply produce next spring at the present low wholesale prices.

Farmers Keep Their Flocks.

"There was a rumor about in November that farmers and even commercial poultry farm owners would consider it unwise to continue egg production at current prices," Harrison F. Jones, secretary of the National Poultry, Butter and Egg association, said yesterday.

"But any decision to kill off flocks has not been carried out widespread, for the eggs continue to come to market and there has been no rush to market live or dressed fowl over the normal amount. They are keeping their flocks, preferring to get a cash income by using up cheap feeds. This cash income is absolutely necessary to the farmer."

New Marketing Problems.

He indicates that some of the present marketing problems are not due to depression, but to new types and methods of mass production which have developed slowly, but now constitute an important factor. The poultry and egg industry, as far as production is concerned, must follow along for a while to see what distribution and market trends occur.

Additional light on what is happening to keep butter plentiful is offered by W. F. Jensen, secretary of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers. It was back as far as 30 years ago, when butter, eggs, and cheese were as cheap as they now are, he says.

No Surplus in Storage.

"There is no surplus of butter in storage as compared to the five year average, so it is easy to reason that the storage stock of butter is not what is keeping the price low, nor is it decreased consumption. Even at the present price of butter, one has to go back to the nineties to find butter as low as wheat and cotton. And because those staples and feed in general are low in price, milk production will continue—likewise butter production."

He finds butter being turned out in large amounts by creameries because of a surplus of milk not being used normally in bottled form, in powdered form and in ice cream.

Chicago housewives, it is apparent, can thus count on comparatively cheap butter until consumption of fluid milk, ice cream and condensed milk returns to normal.

Egg Prices Are Low.

Whereas eggs went into storage pack last spring at a price of 28½ to 28½ cents per dozen, they are coming out now at 14 to 15 cents per dozen wholesale. More market predictions might be made from the fact the dealers are offering to supply eggs in April of this year at 21 to 20 cents per dozen, to be put into storage for sale in October, November and December.

Leaders in the poultry industry indicated yesterday that with such low wholesale prices prevailing, retail prices on butter, cheese and eggs as well as dressed poultry would have to fall in line with other food commodities in order to retain their popularity with today's keen eyed housewife.

HOUSEWIVES! HERE'S METHOD TO USE WHEN ORDERING BY CAN

Many housewives who would like to order canned goods by phone hesitate to do so because they are unfamiliar with the standard sizes of cans in which so many food products are now available. For their information here is a list of the way the regularly sized cans "stack up":

No. 1 can (the smallest) holds 1½ cups; No. 2 holds 2½ cups; No. 2½ holds 3½ cups; No. 3 can holds 4 cups; No. 5 can holds 7 cups; No. 10 can holds 13 cups.

The No. 2 can is most commonly used for vegetables, such as peas, beans, and corn. Yet some vegetables are packed in the No. 1 can, designed for one meal for about two people. Fruits commonly come in the No. 2½ can, while No. 3 is used for beets, tomatoes, squash, and pumpkin. With this table the housewife can order by number just as easily as she asks for her size in hose or other wearing apparel.

LEMON CREAM FILLING

3 tablespoons cornstarch.
1 cup sugar.
¾ cup water.
¼ cup lemon juice.
2 egg yolks.
2 tablespoons butter.
Grated rind of 1 lemon.

Mix cornstarch and sugar [except 2 tablespoons sugar] in the top of a double boiler. Add water slowly and cook over hot water until thick, stirring to prevent lumping. Add lemon juice. Add egg yolks mixed with the 2 tablespoons sugar, cook 3 minutes longer and beat until smooth. Add butter and grated lemon rind.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

After a rug is used a long while it begins to turn or roll up at the edges. A good way to remedy this is to turn the rug over so that it will lie flat. Paint on the wrong side with glue water made of ten cents worth of powdered glue dissolved in a pint of warm water. Let it dry upside down and it will be straight.

When storing silver pack it in dry flour and it will not tarnish.

"CUPS OUT" IS SIGNAL FOR RUSH TO FREE LUNCH

urns Tribune Editorial Room Into Gridiron.

BY FRED PASLEY.

Some eight months ago when I changed my night off from Monday to Friday, I did not foresee certain dietary exigencies or tabus arising to confront the well fed man in the matter of what he should eat. I had up to then been partaking liberally of food whenever and wherever I felt inclined, which was about seven days out of the seven.

I ascribe my peculiar disposition to the environment for the last ten years in the local room of THE TRIBUNE.

Let me explain: It is an old Tribune custom to dispense to the brain workers on the fourth floor free viands each evening between 9:25 and 9:30 of the clock. A benign, bald headed functionary, attired in glistening white jacket and apron, appears at the door, bearing in one hand a napkined platter laden with sandwiches, a bowl of sugar, and a jar of mustard; in the other a two gallon porcelain coffee pot.

Scene Becomes Tense.

A tenseness is apparent in both atmosphere and personnel as the clock ticks the crucial minutes preceding his appearance. Men who have been true through thick and thin eye one another warily. They shift their bodies toward the door, right legs extended, muscles flexed, ready for the spring. To make a long story short, when the dictionary does appear and the customary cry of "Cups out," resounds, no one would be surprised, friends, you could be surprised.

Genteel copy readers who have been wielding uplifting pencils across sheets of journalistic copuses, rewrite men who have been resting a fatigued heel on desk or table, or crooking a fond knee about the chassis of an unchastised Woodstock, reporters, critics, telegraph operators, foreign correspondents, syndicate men, and office boys hitherto invisible to the naked eye pop from chairs, doorways, lockers, filing cabinets, telephone booths, corners, and even waste baskets to gallop for the free lunch.

The local room resembles an indoor football gridiron with the score tied at one minute to play. Gentlemen of the press whom the casual observer would instinctively appraise as incurable hookworm victims frequently pass the platter and coffee pot on third down. Some of the boys prefer end runs off left or right tackle.

Capt. George Scharschug's cable team, in my opinion, is real All-American, excelling both in yardage gained in scrimmage, line bucking, and forward passing. The spirit is pure collegiate. In the decade of my observation I do not recall a single instance of manslaughter or serious mayhem.

Concerned Only with Friday.

In such an environment it was inevitable I should acquire the broad outlook and tolerant attitude I now possess regarding the revictualing of the inner man with meat.

I have had wienies and frankfurters on Friday. I have had blood sausage and fried pork on Friday. I have had lox on Friday. I have had bologna on Friday. Some have had cheese sandwiches, but I have taken my fun where I found it. True, I have had bologna and the other viands on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, but I am not concerned with those days in this thesis. I am concerned only with Friday.

Prior to my choice of it as the setting for cultivation of the social urge and relaxation from intellectual wear and tear, I was cognizant of no greater significance attached to Friday. I was aware it was considered unlucky, especially when falling on the 13th, by the superstitious, but I was not of that ilk. I have yet to lose my first collar button, and the only time I ever broke a mirror the milkman next morning left an extra quart of ichthyophilis and forgot to charge us for it.

McInerneys Have Fish.

I remember my first experience with Friday as a day off. We had been invited to the McInerneys for dinner. They had fish. It was the Friday following, if memory serves right, that we had this estimable Irish couple at our house for dinner, and I asked Mrs. McInerney, "Shall we have an Irish stew?" "No, foolish," she replied, "we will have fish. It is Friday."

I am uncertain as to the date, because soon after I switched to Friday I met a receptive ear to the importunities of my good friend, Levi Shulman, and journeyed to the Lake Shore country club to revel from dawn to dusk in golf and sandwiches of gefelte-fish.

These are but random incidents, which I cite in passing. I could cite more, but I note with regret I am nearing the end of my alloted space. I had intended to discuss fish. I beg the reader's indulgence if the discussion has been largely bologna.

BRIDES AND BRIDES-TO-BE LEARN COOKING

A Chicago Y. W. C. A. cooking class, consisting of brides and brides-to-be, learns how to cook an entire meal at each of its weekly meetings. The girls decide on the content of the course and each tests the merits of the instruction in her own home. They are learning how to prepare well balanced, economical meals in a minimum of time. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TEACHES BRIDES HOW TO PREPARE BALANCED MEAL

Y. W. C. A. Trying Out New Method in Classes.

BY META GIVEN.

Experiments are being made these days in all departments of education and the working out of these new ideas aren't entirely confined to colleges and universities. Our own Chicago Y. W. C. A. in one of its evening classes is trying out a new method of teaching cooking.

The supervisor, the instructor, and the students of this class believe that the perfect cooking of any individual food such as broiling a steak, French frying potatoes, combining a salad, and baking a pie is an attainment of which any girl or woman might be proud.

Test of Knowledge.

But they hold that the cooking of all these foods simultaneously, getting them ready to serve in one meal, finishing each food at the proper time so that it may be at its best is an accomplishment which is the test of a practical knowledge of cooking. It requires not only a knowledge but also the ability to make and carry out a plan.

The students in this cooking class are brides or brides-to-be. They want to learn just how to prepare the well balanced, economical meal in a minimum amount of time and at the same time produce foods that will be attractive.

Knowing what their personal needs are in the way of information and technique, the girls decide on the content of the course and the instruction that meets these needs is given.

Planning of Meals.

When Miss Winifred Brennan, the instructor, started with the class last fall she outlined the usual procedure in a course in foods. She suggested that it might be well to devote a certain amount of time to the study of foods and their composition, the principles of cookery, the planning of meals, and then go to actual food preparation. But this didn't meet with the approval of the class. Collectively they insisted "what we need to know is how to cook, we want nothing but cooking, we want to cook a whole meal," and, believing that this point of view was a sensible one, Miss Brennan planned her teaching accordingly. And every time the girls have met they plan, purchase, prepare, and serve a whole meal.

While the meal is being prepared Miss Brennan gives her class the necessary information on planning a balanced diet, marketing, as well as the principles of cooking and serving. So they learn while they are cooking the meal the hows of this and the whys of that. The cooking period is only two hours long.

Which means that all the work must be done in this time. This requires careful planning and organization on the part of the girls in order to finish the meal satisfactorily. Every minute must be utilized to the best advantage and there must be an elimination of needless steps and efforts.

MUSHROOM MEETS A TURKISH BATH ON ROUTE STEAKWARD

Since the contest for popularity between the onion and the mushroom began, long ago, no steak has felt quite fully prepared for its trip from kitchen to dining room without one or the other of these savory viands.

Considerable care and pains are being taken nowadays to keep the fresh flavor of mushrooms from the time they are picked until they vie for favoritism in the grocery store. When taken from the mushroom beds they are sorted into three classes, large, small, and hotel or button size, washed in tanks of cold water, followed by a dip in salt solution.

Then the mushrooms are placed in metal baskets and submerged in a blanching box where the excess water content is removed. After being weighed, they enter open cans, the liquor from the blanching process is added, and the can is capped and sealed. These cans, then, in wire crates which turn, are placed in retorts and cooked under pressure at a temperature of 236 degrees F.

That's the intricate "Turkish bath" process, done the day the mushrooms are picked, that has been found best in preserving the flavor and juiciness.

Remove skin from banana, cut in quarters lengthwise and again crosswise and roll in pecan meats, finely chopped. Peel oranges, cut in slices crosswise, and remove the center core. Insert a cube of banana in center of each slice. Arrange on a bed of lettuce, sprinkle over remainder of pecans and French dressing. This will make eight portions.

THE "BEAUTY" THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN!

NOTHING is sadder than a girl who just misses being beautiful. Often the reason is simple—improper elimination.

The poisons from constipation often cause pimples, sallow skin, dull eyes—headaches and even serious disease.

But every girl can banish the evils of constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. Its bulk sweeps the system clean.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are a wonderful health prescription. Try it with milk. Add fruits or honey. Delicious when combined with canned peaches. ALL-BRAN is non-fattening.

Ask for Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

What's Art to Some Persons Isn't to Others

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THERE are two exhibitions within a block of each other. They do not make a strong appeal to those of us who like our art run to some sort of mold which interests, excites, pleases or amuses, yet they may have a message to some one less demanding in his taste. One is the exhibit at the Arts club, where paintings by Jacques Villon throw a confused blur of mild color on the walls, and sculpture by Zadkine arrests the attention with the sharp lines and quick curves modernism has ejected into modeling.

The second exhibit is that of paintings by Kathleen Blackshear and Mervin Gilbert and lithographs by Iver Rose in the Increase Robinson studio gallery on Diana court.

Of the Arts club exhibitions this season the present one is the least impressive. Villon may be somebody of the greatest significance in his own town, but his powers do not carry beyond those limits. In drawing he is mediocre, ineffectual, and in color he is even less effective. The paintings are like the faint impress of a rather unpleasant dream that is only annoying, because it is difficult to overtake. You think you have some bit, and it slips away. Just so with the pictures you think, trying hard in all good conscience to find a hook upon which to hang a complimentary adjective, that now here is something, a figure, a tone, a modulation, and even while you look the impression shatters into thin air, leaving you empty and impatient.

The sculpture is more pertinent. At least Zadkine is not vague. Abrupt, keen, vivacious, if a trifle old fashioned already, for we have seen so many of those thin figures. Zadkine is amusing enough for those who look no deeper than the surface.

In the Studio Gallery show Kathleen Blackshear is an instructor on the Art institute school staff and her paintings are of interest to some on that score. To the uninitiated they are not particularly attractive. Young Gilbert also fails to give good reason for such an extensive display of his work. It has promise, but not extraordinary. I. Iver Rose of the three is the cleverest and the most able. He is a wizard with black and white and it will be surprising if we do not hear from him often in the future. He has technique, intelligence, humor and courage. The exhibit will continue to Feb. 6, while that at the Arts club closes Jan. 24.

Pure Theory Can't Be Depended Upon in Child Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Mothers' and Fathers' Litany, signed by Mrs. Bevans, will be sent as her greeting on receipt of a 2c postage stamp.

Here is one more of those intelligent letters I am always receiving these days:

"Will you please send me a list of books which you recommend on training and child psychology?

"The only psychology which I have studied was that which I took in college years ago, psychology that devoted itself chiefly to experiments with apparatus for determining our reaction to sound. And it failed to include reactions as how we humans behave and why. And that is what I need now to help me with my five months old baby.

"I refuse to 'trust to my own judgment' as I am urged by well wishing friends. Isn't it strange why people who would consider telling one how to spend one's income frightfully officious and offensive, never hesitate, be they ever so casual acquaintances, to tell one how to rear and care for one's children?

"I see only too clearly how certain kinks in my own nature—a tormenting lack of self-confidence which I have had to camouflage all my life and fears, fears, fears of all sorts—need never have been if my parents had known and had had access to the psychology that we have today that tells us the danger signals and how to meet them. Your article on preventive psychology was 'wonderous wise.'

"I have written so lengthily that you may see the type of help I want—something that will help me guide my blessed infant into a normal happy life. I have love for him in abundance and I believe I will have sympathy and even some patience [I'm schooling myself every day even now in that direction], but that is not enough—I must know how to use them as wisely and sanely as possible.

"Is Watson worth reading to learn how not to act?"

And here is the answer:

"I was so interested in your letter. It was so refreshingly sane—to trust not too much to instinct and not too much to academic knowledge. The best way I can help you is to send you enclosed some short and long reading references on child management.

"Yes, I agree with you that many people are glib when it comes to advice on children, though they would be very humble in their approach to less important matters such as finance, investments, etc.

"I am so glad you like my articles and find them helpful. I do try to strike middle ground, taking the best and sanest from the various schools.

"Yes, Watson is good if you know how to sift the sane from the extreme."

Paris Adds Tailored Ruffles for Evening

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Tailoring is waging war against fluffy ruffles in the new Paris fashions, with the result that there are more clothes easily wearable by more girls than before. But there are, just the same, lots of girls who are much more charming in the ultra-feminine frilly things. The Paris couturiers like to dress them, too, and think up different ways of reconciling the plain and fancy adversaries, so that every one may be satisfied.

Worth cleverly unites tailoring with flounces in the evening gown for Palm Beach and Riviera wear, sketched here. It is in the new, stiff, satin finished taffeta, and the shade is a pale, flesh pink with the glint of rosy Venetian glass. This is, at the moment, the smartest evening color in Paris; it is more like spring than the pure white Paris élégantes have been wearing during the winter.

The bodice of this frock is slightly bloused by rows of shirring at a rather high waistline. The skirt tightly swathes the hips to the point where the tailored flounces begin and there it bursts into gradual fullness. These flounces are mounted in a scallop in front and they curve up in back with just a suggestion of Worth's favorite 1880 line. A bow of the satin, placed at the point of the waist deep décolleté, carries on this movement.

Let Cold Cream Keep Your Face Young 'n' Fresh

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Every time of the year one can write with truth that THIS is the time to look after your skin if you'd raise it to a youthful old age. But surely winter has prior rights on the command. The elements that govern skins are so conflicting. First, that drying indoor temperature, and second, the cold blasts, sometimes damp and raw, and sometimes clearly freezing. It's jumping from one to the other that makes the unprotected facial surface the ticklish winter proposition it is.

And then there is always the letup on exercise that keeps the blood functioning properly through the skin that has to be taken into account. Also, the heavier foods consumed in wintertime affect the skin.

A cloudy, muggy tone is often seen in a winter complexion that is not noted during the rest of the year, due chiefly to the causes outlined unless, of course, one is a hardened outdoor fan and a demon for fresh air and a healthful temperature in the house. Most of us are not.

Here's where you want to get in your good cream and start work on the complexion. Many complexions thrive without cream assistance. If young enough they have every right to do so. But the average skin is in need of lubrication for several good winter reasons.

I am surprised that more women have not the habit of creaming their faces before going out. More adult women, I mean. There's a softness about a skin that has been creamed before rouge and powder are applied that you cannot have otherwise once the face is set in the track of age. In fact, many women would be greatly improved if they applied the scantiest amount of powder or none at all and let the cream application show its softening influence.

You want that protection during the winter months, anyway, to ward off facial chapping and to keep the skin from drying more. Indoors, if the skin is dry and the house is kept very warm, the complexion may stand a second creaming a day quite well.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

P. D.: DRYNESS OF THE LIPS IS caused by a feverish breath. Drink plenty of water daily. Rub the lips at night with equal parts of water and glycerin.

H. T.: WHEN NAILS BREAK CONstantly they should be soaked in warmed olive oil. The liquid may be put into a cup at a depth sufficient to cover the fingertips. Soak for ten minutes each night, then wipe, but do not wash. Or you may smear cold cream under the nails generously and allow it to remain there during the night. My booklet on hands may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Offers Pair of Crutches.

"I have a good pair of crutches I would like to give some one. Is there a man or woman in your files who could use them? F. W."

If a turned ankle or a recent accident is preventing your getting about, perhaps you could put this pair of crutches to use. Write me, if you want them; please do not telephone.

Out of Work, Needs Clothes.

"I am a middle aged man, out of work and unable to find a job. I need clothing badly and I wonder if you can help me get some. A suit, size 46, and a pair of shoes, size 9, would be greatly appreciated. B. F."

Have you clothing in this job hunter's size, which you are about to discard? Perhaps an improved appearance would help him to find work.

Winter Sport Scene Is Painted on Auto for Welfare Society

Something new, and something different will one of these days become the property of the person who finally obtains possession of an automobile now in the care of the North Shore centers of the Infant Welfare society.

The automobile, a sports model Ford cabriolet, has been presented to the Infant Welfare society by Miss Helen Lee Eames Doherty, daughter of Henry L. Doherty, financier and public utilities executive. The car is called the "Helen Lee silhouette car," because it bears a hand painted skiing scene in black and white on a tan ground, designed by Miss Doherty, and executed by Mrs. Natalie Macdonald Hall, New York artist. The car, with additional accessories, including a radio and nickel tire carrier, will be sold by the North Shore centers of the Infant Welfare society. Mrs. John H. McIlvaine of Lake Forest is in charge of the arrangements for the sale.

Bright Sayings of the Children

After his second week in school Billy came home with the announcement that an older boy was going to show him how to play a new game.

"And what is the game?" asked his mother.

"'Hookey' is what he calls it," responded unsuspecting Billy. L. J.

My eight year old boy played his violin at a recent school recital. As he has been taking lessons only a short time his father asked him if the children liked his playing and clapped. He proudly answered, "Sure, teacher made them!" C. H. B.

Illinois Mother Knew Best

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The experience of Mrs. P. H. Reser, 5642 Division St., Chicago, is a typical one. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Betty Lou and Mardeau for more than four years. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy, well in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

Physicians endorse the use of pure vegetable California Fig Syrup when bad breath, coated tongue, dullness, feverishness, listlessness, etc., show a child's bowels are in need of help. Weak stomach and bowels are toned by its gentle aid; appetite increased; digestion and assimilation are so assisted that weak, undernourished children quickly improve in weight, strength and energy.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. All drugstores have it.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Riechtenburg, are killed at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury, companion of Chandos in many adventures. Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, wires that she dare not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Riechtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and swore revenge. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants Bell and Rowley, go secretly to Virgil, capital city of Riechtenburg, where Marya resides. A peasant named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them through a secret passage.

Marya tells them that she sent no message. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to get them to Virgil, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince appears. They escape and reach the border, but find it so closely guarded that crossing is impossible. Ramon is sought and he hides. Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, hide in a nearby village, while Chandos and Rowley join a traveling circus. Marya sends Carol to take them to Bariche, across the border, in a car which they recognise as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche they receive a message, from Marya, stating that she is to be pardoned, but she must remain in Riechtenburg and not communicate with them.

Knowing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made some impossible arrangement with Grieg, they return to the border. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is captured. He proves to the inspector that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg arrives and leaves with the prisoner for Virgil. Hanbury and Rowley, knowing their friend's plight, hold up and capture the chief's car. They drive to the estate of Baron Sabre where they find Marya. Grieg they left, tied to a post along the roadside.

Hanbury, who is in love with Marya, is stunned when she tells them that she was married that morning to Grieg—her price for their freedom. Chandos sets out to find Grieg and do away with him—but Grieg has escaped. Chandos returns to Baron Sabre's and overhears the prince, who has arrived, arguing with Grieg. Grieg is forgiven when he tells the prince he has a trap set to catch his prey that evening at the secret border station, as well as Leonie, who is to meet them there. Lelia, a young peasant girl, leads Chandos to a mill where his friends are hiding. Marya has disappeared and Chandos sends George and Rowley to follow her and he leaves for the border pass. Lelia, who has fallen in love with Chandos at the risk of her life finds him and tells him that Leonie has passed the country an hour before. Grieg traps them and fires at Chandos, but Lelia throws herself in front of him and receives the bullet. Chandos traps Grieg at the brink of a gorge and forces him to fall to his death below. Chandos then surrenders to the police and in their company sets out to return the body of Lelia to her home. En route they are seen by the local coroner, who demands the girl's body for inquest. He hears Chandos' story and promises to see that he is brought back the next day to testify. While Chandos is being tried at Virgil before a special court the coroner comes with summons for Chandos and the grand duchess. He is told that the grand duchess has returned to Littai. Chandos is sent back to his cell, where the summons is served on him. He receives a visit from Sully, lord president of the council, who is devoted to Leonie, and has returned to the country at her request. The prince denies to Sully that Leonie is in Vigil, but Chandos is unconvinced. Sully makes a search of the prison. Leonie is found and released to her husband. The prince, knowing Chandos' testimony at the inquest will ruin him, accepts defeat and signs Chandos' lists of demands for his silence. Leonie and Chandos drive to Vardar for the inquest. The blame for the ill done is put on Grieg. They then leave for the Sabre estate.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

A MANTLE OF LOVE.

I stopped the car in the drive at the spot at which Lelia had crossed almost at this same hour two days before and there Leonie and I alighted to walk to the mill.

As before, the sun was low, the clean, sweet air was radiant and the magnificent peace of the landscape ministered to my mind. Beneath this influence the memory of Lelia took on the semblance of a dream and ever since then I have constantly asked myself whether fate did not hear my wife's prayers and lay upon Lelia's shoulders her precious mantle of love. I cannot, I think, he denied that Lelia took my wife's place and played out that very part which, had she been present, Leonie would have played; and it will be remembered that I never set eyes upon Lelia till Bell had reported to Leonie and made her suspense too heavy for her to bear. From that time on her one idea was to be with me and help me and save my life; and all these things Lelia did.

With her eyes on the wolfhound before us—

"You are thinking of Lelia," said Leonie.

"Yes," said I. "At least, I am thinking of you both. I cannot separate you from you and I have a curious feeling that what she did she did at my instance because you could not do it yourself."

"I think you must have loved her," said Leonie, taking my arm. "I do not see how you could have helped it."

"No," said I. "I never loved her. I could not because of you. There is a word for the feeling I had for her, 'Like' is useless, and 'fond' is not what I want. I am 'very fond of' Marya; but Lelia touched my heart."

Four hours had passed and George and I sat on the terrace of Mme. Dresden's house.

"I do not mind if you loved her, my darling."

"I know. I would tell you if I had. But I did not because I could not and I could not because of you. It is no credit to me—I felt very badly about it. For all she gave I had nothing to give her back."

Leonie stooped to gather a flower.

"She was very lovely," she said, and set the flower in my coat.

"She was," said I, "and she had the prettiest ways. But though I could feel her charm I could not answer it, my darling, because I have kissed your lips."

She put up her precious hands and set them about my head.

"I wish I had known her," she said. "She took my place. But I would call her back if I could. For her sake—not for my own. She died in my arms."

"She was not like other women," I said. "I told her plainly that I loved you again and again."

"That was very—very strict of you, Richard."

"My darling, I had to. I could not let her be nice to me without knowing where she stood."

The magnificent eyes lighted and I felt absurdly rich.

"I am very fortunate," said Leonie.

The thing was too hard for me so I gave it up and kissed the beautiful mouth.

"Did you . . . kiss her like that?"

"Once. I'm so glad I did. It was just at the last."

Leonie nodded gravely.

"That's right. I'm so glad you did, too."

I put my arms about her and held her close to my heart.

"There is no one like you," I said, "in all the world."

"Lelia was like me," said Leonie.

"She was—in her way. I think that that was the reason why I liked her so well. And now, as I tell you, she seems to belong to you and if I am to focus her clearly I have to shut my eyes."

My wife put her arms around my neck and looked at the sky.

"I think," she said, "you have added her love for you to mine. I have never loved you so well."

Then again she gave me her lips, and we went on our way.

Four hours had passed and George and I sat on the terrace of Mme. Dresden's house.

The night was warm and starlit and the breeze that had risen at sundown had died away. In the distance some band was playing and now and again a faint of music stole to our ears; but Virgil is quiet of nights and, except that sound and the brush of tires upon the boulevard at the end of the shading street, we might have been deep in the country which we had left. From time to time the measured tread of a sentry rose from the pavement beyond the garden wall and the dog lying crouched by my side would lift his head. The rooms behind us were dark and the lights of Marya's bedroom were laying two squares of silver upon the dew of the lawn. Leonie and she were there, talking. Now and again the shadow of one or the other would darken for a moment one of the pools of light. Bell was below stairs with Rowley and Jameson were on their way to Littai—the former to bring us some clothes and the latter to order the lodge against our return.

"When we left you," said George, "at the mill Rowley took Marya's line and I made straight for the house. Marya and I had left by the door in the cloister and so I knew how to get in. I had a look around about first but the firing didn't stand up and wave I had to hope for the best. I got it almost at once—in the shape of the biggest letoff I shall ever have. I'd just started across the turf when a bullet hit the barrel of my pistol which lay, as usual, in the right hand pocket of my coat. It hurt all right—it was like the kick of a horse—and, of course, I thought I'd been hit but that didn't stop my running and I was within that cloister before you could think. I couldn't believe I wasn't wounded and I couldn't think why I was standing, feeling rather bored and thirsty instead of writhing in pain and biting bits out of the flags. Then I had a look at my pistol and got it in one. That bulwark of mine done in all right but I couldn't really complain. Where the bullet went to I don't know. The point is it wasn't in my groin. All the same I was pretty well fixed. I was disarmed and Greig knew all about me and where I was. And as this was not at all what I wanted I thought very fast. Then I entered the house whipped to the hall and shouted Marya's name in a tone which suggested that I'd less than a minute to live. When she didn't appear I knew that she wasn't there. The blood and tears in my voice would have fetched a the bear. So I entered the dining room, threw a window open, got out, shut it, and bolted like any rabbit across the girdle of turf which I picked a good covert and sat down to think.

"Considering the new position, I found it good. That, of course, was because I was comparatively safe. As a matter of hard fact the position was almost the same. But, because my hide appeared to be more secure, I found it immensely improved. Of such is courage. Never mind. Grieg didn't know I was disarmed."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

One notes with pleasure that the team of Gaynor and Farrell has been reunited.

"The Man Who Came Back," while interesting and, in the main, well done, is not the best possible vehicle for these co-stars. Its main trouble lies in the dialogue. There's too much of that, with the result that, at times, the two leading players appear to be having an elocution match. Then, the film's too long. It could have done nicely with two less reels than it has. These faults aside, the production qualifies as entertainment that will be enjoyed by admirers of "The King and Queen of Moviedom," Mr. Charles Farrell and Miss Janet Gaynor.

This movie is adapted from Jules Eckert Goodman's play and is a far cry from the sort of Cinderella-and-her-Prince thing usually dished out to Charles and Janet. Here, both of the sunny-faced darlings descend to the depths—drink and drugs, in Shanghai, mind you!—to, of course, find themselves and their proper sphere by the end of the last reel.

Mr. Farrell is seen as the high-living, irresponsible son of a wealthy dad who finally gets fed up with his offspring's sensational exploits and sends the boy out in the world with a check for $5,000 and permission to sink or swim as he sees fit. In San Francisco the lad meets Angie, a dear, demure, nondrinking little cabaret girl who loves him truly and wants him to behave.

This, Stephen is about to do, when—well—Stephen disappears. How, I won't tell you. Angie, believing he has run away and left her, decides to go to the devil and makes considerable headway in that direction. In Shanghai the two meet—Angie and Steve—er, to be exact, Angie and Steve and the devil—and, to make a long story short, the former two work out each other's regeneration.

What the devil thought, I cannot say,
But he turned tail and marched away.

The co-stars give earnest and, on the whole, convincing portrayals. They keep you intensely fond of them throughout the picture's duration. That fine old actor, William Holden, does splendid work as Randolph Sr., and other rôles are nicely handled. Direction is intelligent, though long-winded. Sound, photography, sets, and scenery are excellent.

As I see it, the slogan for Great Pictures of the Future must be:

Stress the pantomime and soft-pedal the palaver.

Changing Teachers Cuts Attendance at City's Night Schools

Foreign born elementary adult students in evening schools throughout the city have protested against the removal of their former teachers. The school board sent to these schools on Jan. 5 new teachers, young men and women graduates of normal school.

All teachers of elementary classes in evening classes have been replaced by the normal school graduates, but less dissatisfaction was expressed by the the American born adults than by students in the naturalization classes, according to Arthur G. Deaver, district superintendent of evening schools.

"I have heard of no walkouts or disturbances among the classes for the foreign born," said Mr. Deaver. "Their dissatisfaction is expressed only in their dropping out of classes. There has been a decrease of 40 per cent or less, I should estimate, in attendance, although I have no figures as yet."

A petition was circulated among students in the Schurz High school and presented to the principal, protesting against the removal of one teacher, according to Mr. Deaver.

At the Englewood evening school, 62d street and Stewart avenue, Ethel Joan Friedman, 6219 St. Lawrence avenue, a student in the eighth grade in the classes for foreign born, told of the situation. She represents the class in the student-wide booster organization, with Maurice Driscoll, 326 East 76th street.

"We all loved Miss Ella Berg, our old teacher, and worked hard under her," she said. "Our class wanted to walk out. I went to the board rooms and saw Joseph P. Savage, a trustee. Mr. Savage told me that Miss Berg and others were replaced in order to give girls who were destitute and had no jobs work."

Three classes will be dropped Monday, according to Englewood school officials, for lack of attendance. An average of twenty-five students for one teacher must prevail. Last night some of the teachers were found teaching classes of from 8 to 14 students.

At the Wendell Phillips school for Negro elementary students attendance had dropped more than at any of the foreign born schools, Mr. Deaver said.

Birth Control Views of Pope Under Attack

Preachers, Scientist Rap Latest Encyclical.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Prediction that the papal encyclical will bring about definite cleavage as to marriage and birth control opinion in all churches was made before the American Control league here today. The speakers were Prof. Julian Huxley, British scientist, and the Rev. Eliot White of Grace Protestant Episcopal church of this city.

"The encyclical divides humanity," said the Rev. Mr. White, "so that to the banner of the pope will rally all who regard sex as inherently evil."

The Rev. Mr. White quoted from the encyclical the pontifical expression of sympathy for mothers who are heavily burdened. In the encyclical the pope remarked that it was better to endure such burdens than to risk "calamitous error."

The Rev. Mr. White then submitted the letters of young mothers pleading for birth control information.

One, thirty years old, had given birth to eleven children since her marriage at twelve. Another, married at fourteen, has sixteen children now, when she is thirty-nine, and her doctor says that she will die if she has another child. She now expects one. Another woman whose husband suffers from cancer has fourteen children and expects another.

The clergyman urged the repeal of statutes forbidding the giving of information on birth control.

"I am rather glad of the encyclical," Prof. Huxley declared, "because it defines the issue. It means a cleavage not only as regards religious beliefs but in general social outlook, and it is up to us to realize that and take it naturally."

Speaking of contraceptives as "a major biological invention," Prof. Huxley said he believed that the British attitude was more liberal than that of this country, partly because the proportion of Roman Catholics was less and partly because the Anglican bishops were more liberal.

Remarking that he had been informed that he himself was speaking today in place of a bishop who ignored an invitation, Prof. Huxley said it would not be difficult to get English bishops to speak at such a meeting.

The Rev. Allan Knight Chalmers, about to go from his post as minister of the Broadway tabernacle to become pastor of an important Congregational church in Washington, D. C., urged the league to keep a "quiet, steady confidence in the positive rightness of our belief."

Charles G. Norris, author of the novel "Seed," called birth control "a great power for good or ill which must be used intelligently."

"It is as absurd to be opposed to the intelligent use of birth control as it is to be opposed to the intelligent use of automobiles," he said.

The league adopted a resolution indorsing the program for child health and protection which President Hoover has commended to the public. The resolution said that in order to protect children in their right to decent living conditions and play limitation of the size of the family may be essential.

"This question," the resolution said, "involves questions of adequate income, home and school facilities, and environments which are only obtainable for many families when the number of children and the years between their respective births are such that parents and society can protect them in these vital needs."

The resolution quoted President Hoover as describing a child's bill of rights as "the complete birthright of a sound mind in a sound body."

It also was stated that avoidance of conception was a measure to be considered in advising husbands and wives who might transmit their own handicaps and in safeguarding women suffering from heart or kidney disease or various physical limitations.

THE STAGE

PHILIP BARRY'S latest play, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," had its New York première last Tuesday night. Here is what J. Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic of the Times, says about it:

"What Philip Barry is writing about in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is a little difficult to say. Concrete clarity is not one of Mr. Barry's virtues, and when he mixes rueful romance with a wash of psychoanalysis his thought is more attenuated than ever. But whatever it is, he has managed to make it beautiful and fill it with splendor, and in the last three scenes, while a child's life hangs in the balance, 'Tomorrow and Tomorrow' is a profoundly moving play.

"With his new venture Mr. Barry has deserted the New York gold coast for the tranquillities of a university town in Indiana.

"'Tomorrow and Tomorrow' is not merely a tenuous play; until the last act it is a play unfulfilled. Trusting his emotions more than his head, Mr. Barry creates insecure loveliness, and sometimes he is "precious.' Even in Indiana his characters drop brightly into the spinning patter that is Mr. Barry's special talent.

"Herbert Marshall is admirably forthright and understanding. Although Zita Johann is still unable to give her voice flexibility in speaking, the fragility and radiance of her personality bring distinction to her rôle."

Mr. Barry's "Hotel Universe" was recently staged at the Goodman theater. "Holiday" and "Paris Bound" are other works from his pen which have attracted attention.

The story of "Colonel Satan," Booth Tarkington's new play, is told by the dramatic critic of the New York Sun as follows:

"It finds the dampened firebrand of America ensconced in a small wineshop in Paris, penniless and homesick, scheming to obtain a passport which will permit him to go home again. He overhears the preliminary arrangements of a royalist plot engineered by a beautiful lady. He surprises the conspirators; he joins them; he makes love to the beautiful lady; he confounds the men by his ready presence; he uncovers the sinister subplot which the lady is nursing, and warns the others; he gallantly fights a duel with a young adherent of Hamilton and shows the lad that it is not fair to fire into the air; he makes further love; argues his associates out of their clothes and money with literary dexterity; and finally sees love and a passport opening up before him."

"Georg Kaiser, the German "expressionist" in drama, is now represented in Berlin by a play called "Mississippi," which deals with Ol' Man River during the flood rampages of not so long ago. Herr Kaiser knows little about the American scene at first hand, and doesn't admire the American character. Nevertheless Berlin correspondents say that his "Mississippi" might interest us in adaptation.

Alexander McKaig, who was Richard Bennett's impresario in the staging of "Solid South," has ambitions to put on a new play by Martin Flavin, author of "The Criminal Code." Its title is "Achilles Had a Heel," which belongs to the school of labels represented by "The Greeks Had a Word for It." Its action takes place in a menagerie, and live monkeys are required as part of the background.

"Master Skylark" will be staged by the students of the Goodman theater's school of acting tomorrow afternoon, on their studio stage, as the second production in their series of Saturday matinées for children. It was adapted from a novel by John Bennett telling a story about a boy singer who became Shakespeare's protégé. C. C.

Dr. Stork Brings Mixed Quartet; One's a Soloist

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Two boys and two girls, quadruplets, born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Schnese Tuesday, were baptized today.

The quadruplets already have a point in common—the first name of each begins with J. The girls are Jean Marie and Joan Belle, and the boys James Farrell and Jay Eugene. All are in good health with the exception of Joan Belle, who seems listless and cries a good deal.

Subscriptions to a fund for the babies had reached $193 tonight. Wearing apparel has been donated by stores, and one firm is building a crib large enough for all four babies.

1931 G. A. R. Encampment in Des Moines Sept. 13-18

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 15.—(AP)—James E. Jewel of Fort Morgan, Colo., national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, announced today that the annual encampment of the organization would be held here Sept. 13 to 18. The decision followed a meeting here of a committee of representatives of six affiliated organizations.

Einstein, at Dinner, Thanks Men of Science

Talks to Michaelson, Others at Pasadena.

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Eight men, engaged in exploration of nature's mysterious forces, paused for a while tonight to break bread together in a joyous mood.

They were Albert Einstein, Albert A. Michelson, Robert A. Millikan, three Nobel prize winners in physics; William Wallace Campbell, Walter S. Adams, Charles E. St. John, and Edwin P. Hubble, astronomers, extraordinary, and Richard C. Tolman, physicist and mathematician.

Some two hundred associates at the California Institute of Technology also attended the dinner.

It was the one and only formal gathering in the six weeks' visit in southern California of Albert Einstein, famed Berlin physicist.

Einstein voiced his thanks with thrilling emphasis in the following words, spoken in German and then translated:

"I have come among men who for many years have been true comrades with me in my labors.

"You, my honored Dr. Michelson, began this work when I was only a little youngster, hardly three feet high. It was you who led physicists into new paths, and through your marvelous experimental work paved the way for the development of the theory of relativity.

"You discovered an insidious defect in the ether theory of light, as it then existed, and stimulated the ideas of H. A. Lorentz, and Fits Gerald.

"These in turn pointed the way to the general theory of relativity, and to the theory of gravitation. Without your work this theory would today be scarcely more than an interesting speculation; it was your verifications which first set the theory on a real basis.

"Campbell's determination of the bending of rays of light coming past the sun; St. John's determination of the red shift of spectral lines due to the gravitational potential existing at the surface of the sun; Adams' determination of the red shift in the light which comes to us from the companion of Sirius—these provide the best support for the general theory of relativity.

"Going beyond all this, the work of your wonderful observatory, through the recent discoveries of Hubble concerning the dependence of the red shift in the spectral lines of the spiral nebulae on their distance has led to a dynamic conception of the spatial structure of the universe, to which Tolman's work has given an original and especialy illuminating theoretical expression.

"Likewise in the realm of the quantum theory I am grateful to you for important assistance, because of your fundamental experimental investigations.

"Here I acknowledge, gratefully, Millikan's researches concerning the photo-electric effect, which first proved conclusively that the emission of electrons from solid bodies under the influence of light is associated with a definite period of vibration of the light itself, which result of the quantrum theory is especially characteristic for the corpuscular structure of radiation."

"While I let my spirit reflect upon all this," he added, "I account myself exceedingly fortunate to be able to break bread with you in a joyous mood, full of the happy conviction that your researches will continue through the future, to broaden and deepen, without let or hindrance, our knowledge of nature's mysterious forces. From my heart I thank you all."

"In a word, modern science," Dr. Millikan had said in presenting Einstein, "is essentially empirical, and no one has done more to make it so than the theoretical physicist, Albert Einstein. That, in a sentence, is, I take it, his greatest contribution to modern thought."

Dr. Michelson expressed thanks for the kindness of Einstein for giving him credit for a share in development of the general theory of relativity through the 1887 Michelson-Morley light measurement experiment.

"I may recall the fact," he said, "that in making this experiment there was no conception of the tremendous consequences brought about by the great revolution which Dr. Einstein's theory of relativity has caused—a revolution in scientific thought unprecedented in the history of science."

Wagner Opera Shows Cast's New Strength

BY HAZEL MOORE.

"Tristan and Isolde" came to a belated hearing at the Chicago Civic Opera last night to complete the promised list of German operas. Once again the great artistic advance of the German wing of the company was manifest.

Granting that one should observe the love of Tristan and Isolde through the distance glass of illusion, particularly that dated section of the quick-working love potion, still the deathless music that Wagner wrote to epitomize their love weaves its own spell and remains the greatest love music ever written. Though one lacked last night the careless rapture that should envelope these famed lovers, the musical illusion held as of yore.

The cast was much improved by the addition of that fine baritone, Rudolf Bockelmann, in whom one found at last a Kurvenal worthy of tradition, the Melot of Habich, and the shepherd of Octave Dua. The remainder of the cast remained as before. Frieda Leider was wise in the lore of Isolde, though Strack was not all that one might wish from Tristan. Olszewska was a magnificent Brangaene and Kipnis the best of King Marks. Egon Pollak conducted with his usual appreciation of the great Wagner. The stage sets and lighting were excellent.

Sudden change to COMPLEXION BEAUTY Amazed her Friends

BUT she never told them why. For years her skin was dull and sallow. Pimples, blotches and blemishes caused by constipation marred her chance of beauty. But not any more.

Tiny calcium wafers worked their wonders for her. Gentle internal cleansers—they quickly help to remove the cause: intestinal stasis and poisonous wastes that dull the eye, blotch the skin and stupefy the mind and personality.

Try This Five Day Test

A few days' use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers will often work a wondrous change: soft, silken skin clear and free from faults! Bright, sparkling eyes! Alert and vigorous in mind and body! STUART'S CALCIUM WAFERS

Fellow in Doubt About Chorine Asks Doris for Advice

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have succumbed to the charms of a chorine. So say my friends, even though Jean has spent most of her childhood with our crowd. Despite the outward layer of sophistication acquired 'on the road,' I find her a sweet, lovable girl.

"My acquaintances claim otherwise. They say that I see her only as she wants me to. In other words, she acts when she is with me. Their insistence shook my faith in the girl. Finally, unable to stand it any longer, I confronted Jean. She turned away after I had finished, without voicing denial or admission.

"That was six months ago. I haven't seen her since. I just heard she is back in town. I want to see her, yet I'm afraid to. Suppose she is what my friends claim? I couldn't be seen out with her. Suppose she isn't. I would be the fool.—HENRY."

I'll leave it to Jean to dispose of you in her own capable way—that is, if she gives you a hearing, at all.

When in grave doubt about a young lady, it's best for her sake to keep away. No woman relishes a suitor who comes armed with apologies for his presence. Knowing nothing about the girl, her character may be all that the friends make it. Again, it may not. But there is something provokingly weak to me about a man supposedly in love who is so easily influenced by adverse opinion. The life of the chorus girl is hard enough, Heaven knows, without automatically depriving her of her rights to be a self-respecting, law-abiding, family-supporting sister, which she often is.

But about your seeing her only as she wants you to! What other break is any suitor given? Don't all girls act when they're with the boy friends? Let's hope they do, since honest virtues are not halfway appreciated unless they are clothed in the wiles and tues are not halfway appreciated unact. More power to their acting ability! Only don't pick out one girl to hold that charge against.

Bachelorettes Dance Jan. 21.

The Bachelorettes, Miss Rose Emme, Miss Dorathia Cataldo, Miss Rosemary Tunno, Miss Mary and Miss Jessamine Cerale, are to give their annual dinner-dance on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, at the Bal Tabarin. The proceeds are to go to charity.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Four Selections.

"Dear Miss Blake: What should I get for a girl friend's birthday present?

"ROBERT."

Flowers, a purse, vanity case or perfume.

It's Never Right.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it is right for a girl always to pay a fellow's way to the show? T. L. E."

The girl should not assume such expenses, and the young man who will allow her to do so isn't worth bothering with.

U. S. Embassy's Home in Rome Costs Million

ROME, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The United States government, represented by Ambassador John W. Garrett of Baltimore, and the Fascist party signed a contract today for America's purchase of a new embassy site in Rome at a cost of 21,000,000 lire—a little more than a million dollars.

The site formerly belonged to King Victor Emanuel, and was part of the property given by him to the queen mother, Margherita, when Victor Emanuel ascended the throne in 1900. It consists of two villas and a beautiful park, 11,000 square meters, facing on the new boulevard, Via Veneto.

One of the villas will contain the embassy and consulate offices. The other will be Ambassador Garrett's residence.

The Fascist party had intended building its new headquarters structure there between the two villas. Plans for an elaborate edifice already had been drawn. Present headquarters of the party are in the Vidone palace on the broad Corso Vittorio Emanuele.

Carlo Ciulli-Ruggieri, Italian representative of the Chase National bank, New York, conducted the negotiations leading to the signing of the contract.

When he first interested former Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania in the site, it belonged to the king. Ambassador Fletcher was enthusiastic, but the king was less so, for it might embarrass him as king to sell his private property to a foreign government. To complicate the matter, the Argentine government also was after the same site.

The matter dragged along until the king disposed of the property to the Fascist party. Then it dropped for a while, and was resumed after Ambassador Garrett assumed the Rome post last year. The congressional committee which visited Rome several months ago was delighted with the site.

Premier Mussolini's influence was obtained to induce the Fascist party to part with the property.

The purchase gives the American embassy one of the best locations in town. It is surrounded by the newest and best Roman hotels.

The two villas are about 60 years old, but in excellent condition.

London Pastors Fill Church at Meeting with Clairvoyant

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—An active interest in spiritualism among some clergymen of the Church of England was revealed today by a meeting held at All Souls' church. Ministers of all denominations crowded into the building. Many were turned away.

After the meeting was over, it was announced a committee had been formed to arrange further gatherings of ministers and their wives. These meetings will be attended by a well known clairvoyant.

The Rev. Arthur Buxton, rector of All Souls', presided and read a message from the Rev. G. Vale Owen, who was unable to attend. Mr. Owen is former curate of Seaforth, Liverpool, and vicar of Oxford, and is a noted author of books dealing with spiritualism.

The message referred to the current issue of the Church of England newspaper, in which the Bishop of Ripon expressed the opinion that the church at any moment might be faced by a great historic opportunity.

"That great historic opportunity," the message from Mr. Owen read, "has been with us the last half century and the church has turned a deaf ear, because it is new—in other words, unorthodox and therefore not respectable.

"It is a fact that spiritualism is here; it is the most progressive force in the world of religious thought at the present time."

2d Assembly Tonight Will Be Supper-Dance

BY THALIA

THE Second Assembly tonight departs somewhat from its formal character and is a supper-dance instead of a ball. It takes place in the Congress gold ballroom as usual.

As usual, there will be a receiving line composed of the wives of the younger members of the board of governors. A supper-dance evidently means that reservations for tables must be made, and among those who are having the largest parties are Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Houghtelings, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbards, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole Jr. (Ellen Stuart), Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden, and the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors. The A. Watson Armours are giving a dinner for the Marshall Fields before the Assembly. The young matrons to be in the "line" are Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Mrs. Donald Ryerson, and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor.

Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Donald Douglas, and Mrs. Lester Armour have stood in the line in previous years, but for one reason and another they are not attending this year.

Also on this evening's calendar is the Thomas Fishers' "American Evening" party at 11 o'clock at the Arts club for Mary Wigman, who is to give her dance recital at Orchestra hall earlier. It's proof of the attraction the Fishers' party offers that many of the Assembly-goers are trying to figure out how they can be at both places at once, and the Assembly doesn't usually have anything in the way of rivals. The program the Fishers are providing as entertainment for Miss Wigman and several hundred guests includes ballads by Carl Sandburg, some songs about Broadway and Hollywood by Frank Parker, and an interpretation of Harlem and the Hopis by Jacques Cartier.

Anglo-American Relations to Be Discussed Today.

Having to do with various organizations' affairs: The Ernest Ballards, Mrs. James O. Heyworth, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mrs. Chauncey Borland, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Haggard, and George Packard are among those who plan to be at the English Speaking union luncheon at the Palmer house today to hear Henry Kittredge Norton speak on "Anglo-American Relations in the Caribbean." . . . Mrs. Waller Borden, Henry Chapin, Evan Evans, Ernest R. Graham, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, and Mrs. How ard Linn are boxholders for the Gigli benefit concert for Olivet institute on Feb. 1 at the Opera house. . . . The Woman's guild and auxiliary of Christ church, Winnetka, is sponsoring a bridge tea at Mrs. C. Donald Dallas' residence next Tuesday, with Mrs. Godfrey H. Sitkin, Mrs. Harve Badgerow, Mrs. George B. Calkins, and Mrs. Dudley C. Palmer as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Holmes Forsyth, who came on from Princeton for the 25th anniversary meeting of the Illinois Society of Colonial Dames, held yesterday at Mrs. William O. Goodman's, is to be here for a week and is staying at the Fortnightly for the duration of her visit.

Mrs. Gertrude Z. Stout and James S. Kemper Wed Tomorrow.

The marriage of Mrs. Gertrude Z. Stout of Glencoe to James Scott Kemper of Winnetka, will take place tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at Mrs. Stout's home, 210 Park avenue, Glencoe.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. John Watson Christie, pastor of the Auburn Park Presbyterian church of Cincinnati, in the presence of the immediate families. There will be no attendants. The couple will leave immediately on a wedding trip to the Pacific coast. On their return they will be at home at 76 Locust road, Winnetka.

Mrs. Stout is the daughter of August Ziesing of Glencoe, and the widow of Henry L. Stout, son of the late Frank B. Stout, Chicago lumberman and capitalist. She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr college. She has one son, Frank.

Mr. Kemper is a member of the Union League club, the Chicago Athletic club, the Chicago Yacht club, and the Exmoor Country club. Mr. Kemper's former wife, Mrs. Mildred Hooper Kemper, died three years ago. There are three children, James Scott Jr., Rosemary, and Mildred Jane.

Friendly Aid Society to Give Benefit on Feb. 3.

The Friendly Aid society, which has been doing good in an industrious and unobtrusive fashion since the time of the World's Fair, is giving a larger benefit this year than is its wont to get funds. Vincent Bendix is to open the Bendix galleries on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 3, for a musical-tea, and the Friendly Aid will receive the proceeds for distribution to the charities it befriends. The committee in charge of the arrangements is headed by Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mrs. Horace Loomis Hayward, and Mrs. James W. Stevens. The society is essentially a south side one, having met for many years in the Woodlawn district, but many of its 100 members have moved northward, although still retaining their affiliation.

Some Bits of News; Hockey, Theater, Coughs.

Is it news to you . . . that the Marshall Fields went to the Blackhawk-Boston Bruins' hockey match last night as guests of Maj. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin . . . that Miss Emily Otis is to give a small theater party for her cousin, Florence Otis, a week from tonight, preceded by dinner at the Casino . . . that the whooping cough epidemic in Lake Forest is letting up, and almost all of those affected are now recovered . . . that the Ralph Winstons of 429 Wrightwood avenue left yesterday for a month's stay at Jacksonville, Florida . . .

James Simpson Jr. and Ella De T. Snelling Are Wed.

Aiken, S. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Miss Ella De Traville Snelling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robman Paul Snelling of Boston, was married here at noon today to James Simpson Jr. of Chicago. The ceremony, which was a quiet affair, was performed in the drawing room of the winter home of the bride's parents by the Rev. S. L. McCarty, pastor of the Reid Memorial Presbyterian church at Augusta, Ga. Present were only members of the immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson and their sons, William and John McLaren Simpson. Others included Mrs. Robert V. McKim, Mrs. George Galt Bourne, Mrs. Marshall Field Sr., and Mrs. Reginald Fincke, all of New York. Immediately after the wedding the bride and groom left for New York, from whence they will sail for a wedding trip to Bermuda.

ENGAGEMENT

Prof. and Mrs. Arthur E. Holt of 5738 Blackstone avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Merrill, to Charles Tredick Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Brewster of Tilton, N. H. Miss Holt is a graduate of the University of Chicago, where she was a member of Phi Delta Upsilon, and a University Aide. Mr. Brewster, a member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, has degrees from Dartmouth college, class of 1927, and from the Chicago Theological seminary.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover held the third state reception of the season tonight in the White House. It was the first reception given by a chief executive in honor of the senate. President and Mrs. Hoover are the first ones to occupy the White House who thus have divided the congress, a reception to the members of the house of representatives to be given Jan. 29.

Tonight many senators were conspicuous by their absence, among them being Senator and Mrs. Borah, Senator and Mrs. Norris, Senator and Mrs. La Follette, Senator Brookhart, and some others. Mrs. Brookhart and her son, Charles E. Brookhart, were present.

Jobs for Men Still Elusive, Sally Learns

For a while yesterday Sally Joy Brown was almost on the point of emulating those itinerants one sees wandering up one street and down another calling, "Who's got any ol' clo'es to sell?"

Except that Sally's song, had she ventured out, would have been, "Who's got any jobs for men today?" A couple of telephone calls induced her to change her mind and to sit waiting at her own telephone for the jobs she wants so much to find.

Jobs for men have been less numerous than jobs for women ever since Sally started her efforts, many weeks ago, to locate positions for as many as possible of the unemployed who wait day after day at the Illinois Free Employment service at 116 North Dearborn street. For a while the proportion of male jobs rose encouragingly, but yesterday it had sunk discouragingly low.

Only a few reports were received during the day of work available for men, and those were temporary positions paying a small wage, with the exception of the C. Service, auto repair concern on South Michigan avenue, which wrote to ask that several salesmen be sent to them for interviews. The letter stated that with a couple of weeks' training it would be possible for a competent man to make $10 per day.

Balancing the dearth of men's jobs was the gratifying number of calls for women for housework, for stenography, and other types of employment. The B. W. company on South Market street called for a temporary stenographer at $20 a week. E. S., in the 800 block on East 86th street, wanted a laundress at $3.50 per day. The S. & G. firm on North La Salle street advised that they could use a girl for longhand addressing at $15 per week.

A hospital on the far south side cheered Sally with a request for five persons—three maids and two kitchen boys, at a fair wage with board included. There were several calls for housekeepers, including one from Mrs. H. W. B. in Berwyn and Mrs. H. T. in Villa Park. Mrs. N. A., in the 5500 block on Everett boulevard, advised that she would pay $15 a week and board to a satisfactory girl or woman. W. H. C. on the Midway, promised from $12 to $15 for the same work.

Mrs. P. P. F., of the 5500 block on Kenwood, offered $5 a week for a girl to care for a small child. Mrs. D. G., of the 6400 block on North Damen avenue, was willing to pay $8 a week for similar duties.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Ellen Crump, daughter of Mrs. Charles J. Crump of Oak Park, to John A. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mullen of River Forest, will be solemnized tomorrow at Notre Dame, Ind. A previous announcement in THE TRIBUNE stated erroneously that this wedding was to take place last Saturday.

Don't neglect your child's COUGH or COLD

TRY this milder "counter-irritant." Good old Musterole now made milder for babies and small children. So pleasant to use and so reliable—apply Children's Musterole freely to the affected area once every hour for five hours. That's the safe, sure treatment that millions of mothers and leading doctors and nurses recognize and endorse.

Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

That's why this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally.

MUMFORD TELLS FARMERS TO LOOK ON 'BRIGHT SIDE'

Situation Is Better than Painted, He Says.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 15.—Piercing the clouds of despondency which he declared had been hanging for many years over rural Illinois, Dean H. W. Mumford of the State College of Agriculture presented farm leaders in their annual conference here today with a detailed account of "Bright spots in the agricultural situation."

Declaring that he realized the "near tragedy" that has visited many farm homes as a result of deflation and continued low prices, the dean asserted that continued thought of this "obscures our vision, lowers our morale and tends to make us inefficient, thus destroying the possibility of success and happiness."

Lists Bright Spots.

Many farmers are continuing to make money, even in these times, he said, citing examples from the books of nearly two thousand farms scattered over the state. He held out little hope of enhanced farm land values, but gave assurance that many farms can be operated profitably on the basis of their present valuation.

Among the bright spots listed by Dean Mumford were these: Increasing efficiency of farm operation, through better organization of the farm business, improved varieties of crops and shifts in acreage, more efficient production of livestock and its products, improved soil management, and increased use of machinery.

Even the standards of living on Illinois farms have improved, he asserted, pointing to the 4,000 farms now using electricity, the radios, telephones, and other improvements for "comfort, convenience and appearance," developed by homemakers.

Farm women attending their annual conference were told this afternoon of three constructive elements needed to stabilize the home of the future, by Dean W. W. Whitehouse of Albion college. Wise expenditure of limited income, resisting high pressured salesmanship, was his first advice, followed by careful choosing of a mate and right treatment of the child.

Legge Arrives; Will Speak.

Rentschler Brothers, Logan county farmers, won first over 40 corn growers in 10 counties in the ten acre corn contest today. C. E. Canterbury, Sangamon county grain grower, was the only man to win a membership this year in the state 100 bushel per acre corn club. Five other growers won medals for growing 75 to 84 bushels to an acre. Five Illinois farm women were named as master farm home makers by the Farmers' Wife magazine during the home bureau luncheon today.

Frank Stephens, Robinson, was elected president of the Illinois Jersey Cattle Breeders' association. Lyle Bridgeford, Lovejoy, was elected vice president, and Melvin Thomas, Charleston, secretary-treasurer.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the farm board, arrived this afternoon to deliver the final address of farm and home week tomorrow morning.

BILL TO REPEAL MINNESOTA GAG LAW IS OFFERED

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Repeal of the much discussed Minnesota newspaper suppression law was proposed in a bill introduced in the state senate today by Senator George H. Lommen, Eveleth, author of the measure. A companion repeal bill also was introduced in the house.

The law, enacted in 1925, was intended as a means of suppressing what the measure termed "scandal sheets," but it has been the subject of attack by many reputable newspapers whose publishers feared it would mean curbing freedom of the press.

In introducing the repeal measure, Senator Lommen said the law which permits suppression by courts without trial of newspapers found to publish regularly "illicit, defamatory or scandalous matter" had served the purpose intended at the time of its enactment. He added that the law had caused so much controversy that "I am willing to have it repealed."

BLACKHAWKS WHIP BRUINS, 2-0, BEFORE 16,000

DUTKOWSKI AND MARCH SCORE IN ROUGH CONTEST

Gardiner's Guarding Halts Visitors.

The Chicago Blackhawks, undefeated by the Boston Bruins on their home ice since the spring of 1929, scored their fourth consecutive National Hockey league victory last night by turning back the league leaders, 2 to 0, before 16,456 at the Stadium. It was the largest hockey crowd of the season in Chicago.

The Hawks' chief factors in triumph were the second string line, composed of Mush March, Tommy Cook, and Earl Miller, and Duke Dutkowski, spare defense man, all of whom were instrumental in the scoring of the two goals.

The game was the most sensational and hardest fought of the season on the Stadium ice. The climax came in the final six minutes of the third period, when the Hawks, weakened by the loss of two men on penalties, fought desperately to thwart the Bruins' vaunted attack. Chuck Gardiner's efforts in defending the Hawk goal during this period overshadowed all other features of the contest.

Narrow Margin to 3 Points.

By dint of the victory, the Hawks narrowed the margin between themselves and the Bruins to 3 points.

The Hawks opened play with a bit of football strategy when the second forward line of Cook, Miller and March was sent out to harrass Shore and Hitchman. They rushed into the Bruins' territory with abandon and barely missed scoring when Miller lost a well played pass from Cook in front of the net while Thompson was out of position.

These shock troops started play at a neck breaking pace and continued thus throughout the period. Boston was deprived of two goals by the alert Gardiner, who made two stops on Weiland that caused as much uproad as Shore's headling dive into the boards, where he was propelled by Wentworth during a brisk scrimmage in front of the Hawks' net.

Thompson Halts Miller's Shot.

The second period had hardly started when Miller and Cook went down beyond the defense. Cook passed to Miller, but Thompson beat him to the shot and flipped the puck far down the ice. Then Boston began an offensive of its own.

Oliver dribbled through the Hawk defense and fired from the side, but Gardiner batted it out. A moment later Pratt missed one close up and Shore brought the puck down in a burst of speed that upset the Hawk defense, but Pratt missed the pass.

Cook broke away through a melee in midrink and raced to the defense. Shore and Hitchman dumped him on the ice and he slid along behind the puck, taking a shot as he lay flat on the ice. This stood out as the most sparkling bit of individual play of the night.

Desjardins Sent to Box.

Play became rougher and Desjardins was sent to the box for slashing Weiland. Graham and Bostrom centered their attentions on Shore and Eddie was bumped severely at every opportunity.

Bedlam broke loose a minute later when Dutkowski took the puck from Hitchman and passed to Cook. Tommy missed the pass, but followed it into the corner and passed out to Dutkowski, who swung his stick like a mashie niblick, and knocked it into the net to beat Thompson in 18:30.

On the opening play of the third period Gainor broke through to the Hawks' goal and took a pot shot at Gardiner, but was unable to pull the Hawk goalie out of position. Shortly after Gardiner smothered Weiland's shot after a pass from Clapper.

Game Ends Roughly.

When Cook, Miller, and March came back on the ice the Hawks got busy in a drive that saw March dribble through the Bruin defense and fire point blank from a few feet out. The puck passed through Thompson's legs as he lunged out to smother the shot. It was scored 8:55.

Referees Warner and Corbeau became the center of several arguments after this second score, first Boston and then the Hawks bitterly protesting their decisions on penalties. Boston drew a penalty for having seven men on the ice, Bostrom was expelled for lifting Shore's stick, and Desjardins was sent out for taking a swipe at Beattie with his stick. In between these arguments Boston kept pelting Gardiner and the entire Hawk team was needed in the vicinity of its goal.

IN PRIZE FIGHTS WE TRUST—A NEW AMERICAN MOTTO

Public Mind, if Any, Shows a Curious Twist.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—If the records didn't lie before me in the form of a daily dozen of sport pages, all with loud banner lines and excited accounts of the affair, I would find it very hard to believe that such a transparent deception as the current agitation over a couple of prize fighters involving three self-seeking pugilists, one next June and the other next fall, could be perpetrated successfully in an age of sophistication which has its doubts about divinity, the motives of mayors and governors, and the amateurism of some of the leading football players.

I have tried hard to make the public think, but, at one million words from me, the public continues to do just about as it pleases with a perversity which I am beginning to regard as a personal affront.

Fans Eager to Spend Money.

Notwithstanding some rather pointed suggestions amounting practically to imperative orders, the public seems determined to spend $1,500,000 on these two prize fights, one between Stribling and Schmeling, the other between the winner and Primo Carnera. I should be inclined to give up the public as a bad job and abandon it to its follies if I but knew of a better job, the existence of which I much doubt, unless it be that of bartender in the champagne-cocktail department in the Sevilla in Havana.

As to heavyweight prize fights, the customers evince that same willful irresponsibility, if not positive wrong mindedness, with which they discharge their duties as citizens at election time. As far back as my memory runneth, they have, at election time, insisted upon returning to public office the very persons whom the editorial writers—who have my sympathy—have denounced as dishonest, ignorant, insincere, incompetent, rude, unscrupulous, and, not to evade a bold word, generally unfit.

The editorials writers, who also try to make the public think, pined through the long administrations of Mr. Hylan in New York, permitting themselves a slightly malicious gloat every now and again over the well deserved discomfiture of an electorate which, however, maintained an exasperating unawareness that it was being discomfited.

What Fans Accept, They Deserve.

Similarly, during the tenure of Max Schmeling, as heavyweight champion to date, I have not failed to remark from time to time that his conduct in this high office left much to be desired, but that since the public had accepted him as champion, then the public really deserved no better, and perhaps would have the good sense to be guided by my suggestions next time. It is true my suggestions have not been very constructive of late, for my candidate for heavyweight champion, if there must be one, would be Jack Sharkey of Boston, who has licked both Schmeling and Stribling, and is only a shade the best of a very inferior lot.

Unwilling to accept the best, however, the customers will now recognize one of the other three, with a secret preference, I am convinced, for Primo Carnera, a pugilistic demagogue who sways the masses notwithstanding a known record of professional turpitude. Often, in politics, the people have made the worst of a bad choice or neglected their solemn responsibilities in such numbers that minorities drawn from the undesirable element have done it for them.

Sharkey's Front Porch Campaign.

Mr. Sharkey is conducting a dignified front porch campaign at his home in Boston, waving the flag and offering to fight Jack Dempsey for charity on the first Tuesday after Dempsey's next major operation. And while these activities may be criticized as irrelevant to the issues of the campaign, they are not strictly so, for a candidate should declare himself flatly on all matters which might come within his official purview. Herr Schmeling, the candidate to succeed himself,

Team Entries Pour in for Silver Skates

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Team entries poured into THE TRIBUNE office yesterday for the fifteenth Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park on Jan. 24 and 25. Individual entries also doubled, although the deadline is three days distant. Entries for the annual feature of skating in the central states will be accepted until midnight Sunday.

In addition to the more than 100 individual slips received yesterday, the following teams made application:

Cullen Athletic club	102
Barrett club	23
Opal Athletic association	41
Rogers Park beach [municipal]	62
Adams playground [municipal]	8
Haas playground	6
Earle playground	16
Brentano playground	49
Swift playground	74
North Shore Skating club	10
Pulaski Skating and Cycling club	46

The numbers of contestants listed by the teams, in most instances, indicates desire to win the Walter Eckersall team trophy which goes to the squad winning the most points in the seven Derbies. The memorial trophy, a 24 inch silver column mounted with a Winged Victory, becomes the permanent possession of the team winning it three times.

Last Year's Winner Enters.

Art Conroy, winner of the boys' junior race in 1927 and the intermediate race in 1929, heads the list of Barrett skaters who will compete in the senior Derby.

The Opal A. A. team, whose entry was submitted by Robert J. Little, president, has a number of excellent skaters. Alfon James, Charles Serro, Paul McDonald, and Joe Svoboda will compete in the men's senior division. Stanley Baginski, who won a pair of silver skates last year in the junior Derby, is seeking another trophy in the intermediate division.

S. J. Leone, director of the Rogers Park beach, predicts that his representatives will win a share of the 35 awards THE TRIBUNE offers in the seven Derbies. J. Fred Gohl and Marion Ryan, instructors at Swift playground, are equally insistent that their skaters are among the best in the city.

Brentano Has Strong Team.

Brentano playground, always one of the leaders in winter sports, will be represented by an excellent team of skaters, according to William Horschke, the instructor.

Ruth Grotha, who will represent the Adams playground in the girls' senior Derby, won the 220 yard race in the north side district meet last Saturday, according to Mary Ramsey, assistant director, who entered the Adams team yesterday.

Stanley Pestka, coach of the Pulaski team, is concentrating his efforts on the senior and intermediate races. Most of his skaters are experienced and, while an evenly distributed entry probably is necessary to win the team trophy, Pestka will be satisfied if his team wins a pair of silver skates.

More than 1,800 skaters, representing 32 teams, will compete in the annual ice skating championships of the municipal playgrounds of Chicago at Douglas park tomorrow afternoon. A large shield will be awarded to the winning playground.

Prepare Slide for National Ski Tourney

A crew of workmen began distributing a surface of imported snow on the Cary slide yesterday in preparation for the National ski meet Sunday in which entries from eleven states will compete.

Skiers were beginning to assemble for the winter sports classic and one of the first to arrive was Ludwig Boeck, German champion, who came in from New York yesterday morning to make his American debut in the National event.

The field of 80 competitors has been selected and Johnny Ohse, secretary of the Norge Ski club which is sponsoring the event, gives a word picture of the action you will witness if you make the trip to Fox River Grove.

Starts 360 Feet Up.

"The jumper mounts to the platform at the top of the slide which is mounted on a framework of steel. He looks 360 feet below at the panorama of thousands of spectators, then makes his start down the steep steel snow surfaced slide. Picking up momentum with each split second he reaches the takeoff where his crouched figure suddenly becomes erect and he is plunged into space, arms outstretched like a great bird.

"He sways imperceptibly and then bends his knees as he comes to the surface of the landing slide after a flight of 160 to 170 feet in a cloud of snow dust and glides off through lanes of spectators to the end of the runway."

Reaches 65 Miles Per Hour.

According to Ohse the jumper reaches a maximum speed of 65 miles per hour when he lands on the surface after the leap through the air.

Three special trains will be run over the Chicago and Northwestern line to the scene of the tournament, which gets under way Sunday at 1:30 p. m.

Ban Johnson Quits Hospital for Trip South

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Ban Johnson, former American league president, who for sixteen weeks has been confined to St. Luke's hospital with a leg infection, left for Hot Springs, Ark., tonight, where he will complete his convalescence. The former baseball czar said he was still a little weak, but is able to walk. "I couldn't go on a five mile hike," said Ban, "but I can get around the room."

INDIANA RECEIVES RESIGNATION OF PAGE AS COACH

Board Hints Hayes Will Succeed to Job.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—H. O. [Pat] Page's resignation as Indiana university football coach arrived here today and is in the hands of Prof. W. J. Moenkhaus, chairman of the university athletic board of control. Page mailed the resignation from Chicago yesterday when he announced that he was quitting the Hoosier post because he had been asked to leave by President William Lowe Bryan and the faculty board.

Prof. Moenkhaus was noncommital, but other members of the athletic board said that they would vote to accept Page's resignation.

Doubt Contract Claim.

Athletic Director Z. G. Clevenger and Prof. C. J. Sembower, members of the athletic board of control, expressed doubts that Page could hold the university to the fulfillment of what Page termed "my contract in 1932." With Page's resignation in their possession, the board members foresaw little possibility that he would insist the university pay him a salary next year. Page was said to have received $13,000 a year for his services.

President Bryan said that he would make no statement regarding Page's assertion that the faculty board and President Bryan had asked him to leave, until he had met with the athletic board of control.

Board Favors Hayes.

Members of the board indicated today that E. C. Hayes, Indiana varsity track and freshman football coach, will be considered for the head football coaching job. Hayes is assured of receiving stronger consideration for the position than any other member of the coaching staff, it was said.

TENNIS RANKING LIST TO EXCLUDE BIG BILL TILDEN

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Unless the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association should overrule its ranking committee and reverse a rule made in 1927, the name of William T. Tilden will be missing from the 1931 list of leading tennis players.

In 1927 the committee listed Vincent Richards, then a professional, but who had finished the 1926 season as an amateur, as America's leading tennis player.

He had not turned professional until after the close of the season, the committee reasoned, and therefore, was entitled to recognition in any list which purported to show the 1926 standings of the players.

The annual convention, however, overruled the committee, erased Richards' name from the list and passed the following resolution:

"None but amateurs at the time such rankings are officially approved [which is at the annual meeting] shall be ranked by the committee."

This disposes of Tilden, who joined the pro ranks Dec. 30—unless the meeting again should take things in its own hands.

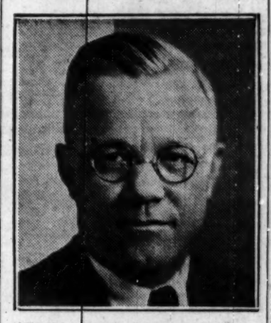
Dayton Club to Move Team to Bloomington

Dayton, O., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Removal of its team to Bloomington, Ill., where it plans to become a member of the Three Eye league, was announced today by the Springfield, O., baseball club, winner of the 1920 pennant of the Central league. Joe Dunn, owner and manager of the Springfield team, surprised league officials by announcing withdrawal from the Central circuit at a meeting here today.

Locatelli Stops Corbett in 7th Round in Paris

PARIS, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Locatelli, crack Italian lightweight, stopped the Briton, Harry Corbett, in the seventh round of a ten round bout here tonight.

NEXT IN LINE?



E. C. Hayes, Indiana track and freshman football coach, is mentioned as a probable successor to Head Coach Pat Page, resigned.

Sharkey Fires Fresh Volley at Dempsey

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—All records for long distance challenging may be broken before Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey have the last word.

Their thrilling telegraphic battle of magnificent distances will eventuate in just this: There will be no fight.

From Baltimore Dempsey has challenged Sharkey to meet him in New York tomorrow night to "talk things over relative to making arrangements for a real fight." From the wilds of New Hampshire comes the disappointing news from Sharkey that he cannot get here tomorrow night. Thus is spoiled a swell scene.

But Sharkey issued another statement, as follows:

"My original challenge to Dempsey was bungled in transmission. I said that I would give him six months and not six weeks in which to get into fighting shape.

"I would not care to allow Dempsey to be in a position where he could say he did not have ample time in which to train. I want Dempsey to have all the time he wants to get into shape, as I am confident I shall defeat him.

Telegraph Company Wins.

"I have been trying to secure a return match with Dempsey since we met in New York three years ago, but Dempsey has always evaded the issue.

"Dempsey says I challenged Stribling for a charity bout in New York at a time when the Georgian was under contract to box Tuffy Griffith in Chicago. I challenged prior to the time.

"Dempsey also knows that I outpointed Schmeling in New York . . . and that the German won the decision on the floor.

"Dempsey told the late Tex Rickard——" And so far into the night. The telegraph companies have won every round in this duel, to date.

ANGRY WINS 1ST STAKE AT MIAMI; PAYS $162 FOR $2

Long Shot, Cold Weather Chill Big Crowd.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 15.—Angry weather and a horse called Angry, which sported the Eton blue jacket of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of New York, played havoc with the opening of the racing season at Hialeah Park here this afternoon.

The horse Angry, a 4 year old son of John P. Grier-Vexatious, which had not been on a race track since last Nov. 22, when he finished fifth in a six horse race at Bowie in Maryland, stunned the crowd when he won the Inaugural handicap and paid the enormous odds of 80 to 1.

Beats Crack Sprinters.

A touch of winter weather chilled the crowd and many northern society people who had expected to journey out to the track from the beach in sun-back bathing suits wore their fur coats instead. Yet they shivered and a very few of them wagered on Angry to win the Inaugural handicap they shivered more than ever when Directly, another longshot, backed by but few people on the course, romped to victory in the race which ended the program.

The best sprinters in the handicap division faced the starter in the Inaugural handicap. The field, which included Dadicate, owned by Fred Burton of Chicago, and Okaybee, a star at the recent St. Johns meeting, was the favorite. Yet neither ever figured in the running.

Pennant Lass Out in Front.

Pennant Lass, a New York sprinter, leaped out in front as the start came, Peto a stable mate of the famous Gallant Fox from the Belair Stud stable was running second and Angry, to the surprise of everybody, was galloping in third position.

They ran in this order until they headed into the stretch. Then Kurtsinger, hugging the rail with Angry, got through on the inside, shot his mount to the lead, and Angry was going away from the others when he passed the finish line three-quarters of a length in front of Peto, with Pennant Lass holding on long enough to be third.

Angry ran the six furlongs in 1:13 and in the mutuel betting paid $162.70 to win for a two dollar ticket. Jock, from the stable of Edward B. McLean, which was also heavily backed, started from an inside post position and was never a factor.

Jordan, Seventh in 1930, Is Coast Hope in 3-Cushion Play

The hope of the far west for a world's billiard champion is Charles E. Jordan of Los Angeles. Twice Jordan has earned the right to represent the west in a world's three-cushion billiard championship tournament. His first effort in New York last January, found him finishing seventh in a field of eight.

CHARLES JORDAN.

Just as the final returns were announced, Jordan turned to Referee Albert G. Cutler and remarked: "Well, this was my first championship and I learned a lot of billiards. I shall be back next year and at the end the record will read—'Charles E. Jordan, world's champion.'"

Jordan won his divisional meet from a field that included J. N. Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal., and Alfredo Alducin, champion of Mexico. Jordan defeated Buzeman in the final, 50 to 49. He then went on and defeated Henry Soloman of Spokane, Wash., for the western sectional championship.

Jordan feels he is certain to finish among the first four in the world's championship three cushion tournament, which opens at Bensinger's Congress billiard room on Monday night. There is a chance that Jordan will be drawn to meet Layton, the defending titleholder, in the opening game.

This is the fifth of a series of sketches of players who will meet for the world's three cushion championship here Monday.

Schank Heads Hawthorne for Fourth Time

BY FRANK FRENCH.

John C. Schank again will head the Chicago Business Men's Racing association which controls the Hawthorne track.

His reelection came at the annual meeting of the stockholders yesterday. It was the fourth time he has been elected to the office.

It was indicated during an informal discussion by the stockholders that there will be no reduction in purse or stake money during the coming season, and Mr. Schank said he favored boosting the value of the Hawthorne Gold Cup from $35,000 to $35,000.

Plan Fair Year Race.

This race at a mile and a quarter is the most widely known fixture on the Hawthorne program. Run each year in October it has attracted the best handicap horses in training and for the last two years has been won by the noted stake performer, Sun Beau, from the stable of Willis Sharpe Kilmer of New York.

The president of the Hawthorne association also announced he was endeavoring to arrange a Hawthorne Gold Cup race for 1933 (World's Fair year) that will bring not only the best handicap performers in America into the contest but possibly several invaders from England, Australia, France and Germany. A huge cash prize will be offered, he indicated.

Elect Other Officers.

Joseph A. Murphy and Albert Sabath were elected vice presidents of the Hawthorne association; Charles Krutckoff was elected treasurer, and Charles W. Bidwell, secretary.

The Hawthorne track plans a summer meeting in August and a short fall meeting in October.

In Prize Fights We Trust—New U. S. Motto

evades all the realities of the situation and makes his campaign on a defiance of the New York prize fight commissioners, with a provisional promise that if the prize fight goes to Chicago, he will kick King George of England out of the public schools.

But I must not dignify the three mediocrities now thrust to the fore by exposing their claims and promises one by one, because in the first place it would do no good, the customers being so perverse, and moreover, I am so aloof from all this sordid machiavelianism that I do not know what it is all about anyway. Or is it machiavelianism that I mean? Perhaps sycophancy would be better. I just feel that there should be a big word there.

Cuyler Enrolls in Cubs' 1931 Optimist Club

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

We now have two fellows willing to admit the Cubs are a dead cinch for the 1931 National league pennant. Rogers Hornsby, who must do the managing necessary to bring it about, was the first. The second is Hazen [Kiki] Cuyler, who as an outfielder and a hitter needs no introduction. The flashy Kiki cast his vote here yesterday in between talks about his basketball team, his recent fishing exploits, and the sudden accumulation of avoirdupois about his waistline.

Enlargement of the girth was a new experience for the outfielder, who always had possessed what is known as the ideal athletic build; so as soon as a fifteen pound increase was detected he decided something would have to be done about it. Hunting and ice fishing in Michigan and a strenuous basketball program were adopted. Now the excess meat has vanished, but the basketball labor will continue for at least a couple of weeks.

Wonders About Bottomley.

Getting down to baseball, Mr. Cuyler wanted to know things, as is the case of ball players who get out of touch with their profession during the off season. He wanted to know what all the talk about getting Jim Bottomley meant. And what was going to happen to Charley Grimm if Bottomley were purchased? Also, about the promising outfielder (Vin Barton) the Cubs have bought from Baltimore. Maybe Cuyler thinks the young man will be good enough to supplant him. Assured that Hornsby's only hope was that Barton would prove capable enough to relieve Stephenson whenever the latter's physical ailments demanded rest, Kiki exclaimed:

"Well, I certainly hope Stevie isn't out of there very much. He's a great fellow to have around, especially when he has a bat in his hand and a runner or two waiting a chance to hike home."

"Why, we should win," was Cuyler's answer to the question about next year's race. "Why shouldn't we? We'd have won last year if our pitching hadn't failed us. Pitchers have their ups and downs. Ours were down last year, so they ought to come back. Outside of pitching there's nothing much to worry about."

Picks Blake to Bring Pennant.

The man Cuyler picks as the one who will be the difference between a pennant and no pennant is a fellow the average fan probably wouldn't even think of. It's Fred Blake, the Sheriff. Just why he thinks Blake will get going he couldn't say. He just thinks it. Manager Hornsby thinks the same, but he believes he has the solution of Blake's unsteadiness to date. Hornsby's idea is that Blake, usually the victim of one bad inning, which beats him, gets into those jams because he doesn't field his position. He fails to go after balls hit directly past him. Hornsby's going to break him of the habit, if possible, during the training siege at Catalina.

Another Cub who has been hanging quietly around town for the last couple of weeks is Cliff Heathcote, women's choice for mayor of the north side. Cliff's summer admirers wouldn't know him. He's taken on so much weight that he is eligible to double for the beefy Hack Wilson. Cliff started last night for his home at York, Pa., where he has nothing to do except wait for his contract. In other winters he had engaged himself in a pelt and poultry business at York, but the market flopped, so he quit.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

POT POURRI.

BOBBY JONES, world's premier golfer, did the graceful thing by requesting that his name be withdrawn as a member of the executive committee of the United States Golf association. His movie and radio broadcasting contracts nullified his status as an amateur. The same U. S. G. A. meeting which accepted his requested withdrawal made it clear that Bobby no longer was so regarded.

Jones has shown good judgment or has been well advised in his conduct to date. When that time came when he felt he no longer could continue golf at his own expense, he first secured approval of the U. S. G. A. for writing syndicated newspaper articles. That such articles sold better because of his name there is no question. But the U. S. G. A. ruled it was not a violation of amateur ethics, so Jones was within his rights. He escaped all criticism.

When the Georgian yielded to the lure of a movie contract, supposed to have reached six figures, there likewise was no criticism. It was too much money to refuse for a man who had reaped all possible golf honors and who sooner or later must yield to newcomers. Now he relieves the U. S. G. A. of any possible embarrassment by declining an office which was to be proffered to him again.

If the national body at some future time decides it wants Jones within its official personnel, that is another matter. It will not be a holdover election. Jones, in our opinion, would be justified in accepting for the value in its councils of his long tournament experience.

"Navy Bill" Ingram, who has signed a contract at University of California, will have at last a chance to prove his coaching worth. A thoroughly likable chap with a strong personality, he found conditions at Indiana unfavorable to development of a winner. He did well at Navy, considering the caliber of opposition the Middies are asked to meet. Apparently that was enough, although Ingram finally was asked to remain, and was offered a two year instead of the customary one year contract. We wish him well on the Pacific coast.

In less than a month advance baseball squads—brrh, it's cold—will be assembling for the annual trek to spring training quarters. That's just a reminder, but don't open the window, please.

It's Time for Sportsmen to Get Together

BY BOB BECKER.

If there ever was a year when sportsmen throughout the United States should have the desire to get together and solve some of the problems involving the future supply of our game birds and animals, this is the one. In a few months the smallest flocks of waterfowl that we have had on the continent in many years will start north on their migration, the quail situation is serious and stocks of other small game are none too encouraging. But the most serious feature of the entire situation is that concerning the opportunity to hunt because many places where a sportsman may find and enjoy the sport of hunting are closed.

This is no year to just talk or sit back pessimistically without taking some action. On the contrary, it's time for sportsmen everywhere to stop kidding themselves that free hunting will again be the prerogative of hunters and that it will fill the game bags.

Free Hunting Thing of Past.

The contrary is true. Free hunting is now a myth. Twenty-one states report that more than a third of their land is posted against hunters. Every day sees more land "retire from circulation" behind no trespass signs.

During the deer season in the north, great blocks of timberlands were closed to gunners while many thousands of acres were open only to those who would pay for the privilege of hunting. Duck hunters, especially those in Illinois, do not have to be reminded that no longer a fellow can go out and build a blind and shoot anywhere he wants to. The duck game is commercialized for the free lance hunter. Such a situation was inevitable.

Landowner Dominates Situation.

For years hunters have considered that the game belonged to them. During the next few years we are going to see a different picture. The landowner who raises the game is now the dominant figure in future plans to produce more rabbits, quail, pheasants, etc.

He has an equity in the game bird crop which must be recognized. Furthermore it is his land that we want to hunt over. We sportsmen must play close to the landowner, encourage him to produce more pheasants, rabbits and quail and expect to pay him for it. It's time to make the landowner a true partner of upland shooting, have him tend game as a crop and pay him for the privilege of harvesting that crop with our shotguns. Michigan already has taken a step toward this idea with its shooting preserve law which is "an honest attempt to reconcile the rights of farm property with the pleasure of the hunter."

MAROONS MEET MINNESOTA TANK TEAM TONIGHT

University of Chicago's swimming team will open its campaign tonight at the Bartlett gymnasium pool in a dual meet with Minnesota. The Maroon water polo squad will play the Gopher representatives if they are brought along. Otherwise the I. A. C. water polo team will meet Chicago after the swimming events.

Curny Oker, who took second in the Big Ten 40 yard free style two years ago, is back in school on the Midway and should be the Maroons' main point getter again this year. However, his pet event, the 40 yard free style, has been dropped from the list of events and the 220 yard swim substituted. The free style races now are the 100, 220, and 440 yard distances.

Capt. Lowell Marsh of the Gophers is the best back stroker in Big Ten circles this year.

HENRY A. A. WILL HOLD ANNUAL ICE MEET TOMORROW

Al Kucera will be in the skating spotlight tomorrow when his club, the Henry A. A., twice winner of the Barrett team trophy, holds its annual Derby at Humboldt park.

Kucera, who won a place on the Chicago Olympic squad by his victory in the 10,000 meter race last Wednesday, will have plenty of fast company. The winner of the 1930 Tri-State championships usually sets out at a terrific pace from the start or else jumps the field with several laps to go, which makes for fast racing.

Kucera is expected also to make a strong bid for the state championship to be contended for in the annual Derby of the Elgin Lake View Skating club at Lord's park, Elgin, Sunday. The Planert Golden Skate trophy is to be awarded the winner.

North Central Beats Wheaton Five, 31 to 20

Naperville, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—North Central college defeated Wheaton here tonight, 31 to 20, remaining undefeated in the Little Nineteen conference. North Central led, 17 to 7, at half time.

Girl Discus Champion Sues Cubs for $10,000

Miss Evelyn Ferrara, 20 years old, daughter of John C. Ferrara, 1006 South Halsted street, national women's discus throwing champion, filed a praecipe in a suit for $10,000 damages against the Chicago National League Ball Park, Inc., in Circuit court yesterday. Miss Ferrara was attending a ball game at Wrigley field on Aug. 15, 1930, when a foul ball was knocked over the backstop into the grand stand near where she was sitting, her attorney, Frederick O. Jones, said. In the rush for the ball the crowd pushed over Miss Ferrara and she cut her hand on a broken bottle, he said.

BOOSTERS WIN 11TH GAME.

The Harry McKelvey Boosters basketball team won its eleventh straight game last night by defeating the 133d Infantry, 12 to 5, at the latter's court.

600 Ice Skaters to Compete in West Parks Meet

The ninth annual west parks ice skating championships will be held at Garfield park tomorrow. More than 600 skaters, the largest number of entries ever received, will compete. Sixteen parks will be represented.

FRESH SELLING TRIMS CHICAGO STOCK PRICES

Nearly All Issues Share in General Weakness.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Fresh selling developed in the late trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday sending leading stocks off a point or so from previous closing quotations. Earlier dealings had resulted in few significant price changes and the moderate amount of liquidation which came into the market late in the day was sufficient to steer the market down.

The trend in New York was the main factor in influencing the selling here. The tape moved slowly through out the day recording the meager transactions taking place on the floor. A niggardly volume of 117,000 shares was rolled up for the session. Bonds with a par value of $59,000 were traded in with only one noteworthy price change which occurred in Appalachian Gas 6s. The issue was marked up 3½ points to 77½ on small trade. Traction securities showed little change but held gains secured earlier in the week.

Pressure on Field Shares.

Utility stocks, motor and accessory shares and miscellaneous issues shared in the general weakness. Insull Utility lost the greater part of the gain made on Wednesday, closing at 33½. Middle West was off about a point from its previous close. Pressure was directed at Marshall Field, which retreated to 26½ on a turnover exceeding 1,100 shares.

Bendix and Borg Warner felt the weight of moderate selling and eased about a point each. Noblitt Sparks was a conspicuous exception to the trend with a gain of 1½. Similar recessions were sustained by other representative stocks.

Exchange officials see the opening of new field of business in the acquisition by a large southern house of an exchange membership. The seat was purchased by J. Marks, partner of the Chicago office of Jno. F. Clark & Co. The Clark firm will be the first strictly southern house to be represented on the floor of the exchange.

Main Office in South.

The firm's main office is in New Orleans with forty-six branch offices scattered throughout eight of the southern states. The house also maintains offices in Chicago, New York, Boston, Cincinnati, and Peoria.

Fred D. Sadler & Co., members of the exchange, claim to be one of the first firms to take an active part in stimulating bond trading here. One of the partners, John J. Murphy, is devoting all his time to the bond post. Since the first of the year the bond trading has experienced some broadening with an average of ten or a dozen issues being traded in daily as compared with three or four during most of 1930.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Combined shipments by Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiaries for 1930 amounted to approximately $54,000,000, against $42,796,587 in 1929, Dow, Jones & Co. reports. Combined orders on the books Jan. 1 amounted to $6,200,000.

Standard Oil Company of Jersey has cut its prices on automobile tires, the cuts ranging from 7 to 12 per cent.

The Fruit Growers' Express has ordered fifty steel underframes from the Greenville Steel Car company, Iron Age reports. The Seaboard By-Product Coal company has ordered repairs to 248 hopper cars from Standard Steel Car company, and the Bessemer and Lake Erie, which is in the market for 1,000 to 1,200 freight cars, is expected to place the order shortly.

The Southern Pacific railway has placed an order for 63,764 tons of rails. The order is equally apportioned between the Columbia Steel, Pacific Coast Steel, and Colorado Fuel and Iron.

Five billion dollars' worth of the nation's retail business was done through approximately 150,000 chain stores last year, according to a survey of the chain store field made by R. B. Horter, statistician of F. A. Brewer & Co.

An order from investors in Milan, Italy, to buy a list of high grade stocks and bonds of American railroads, industrial and utility companies was received yesterday by West & Co. The order totals approximately $160,000.

The Inland Steel company has placed an order for a four-high hot mill for wide strips and plates, L. E. Block, chairman of the board, announced yesterday. The new mill will be located at the company's Indiana Harbor plant and it is expected that it will be completed and ready for operation by the end of the year.

Canadian bond sales during 1930 reached a new high record of $705,990,856, as compared with $628,016,207 for 1929, a survey by Dominion Securities corporation disclosed. The total was the greatest volume of new financing of any year of Canada's financial history with the exception of the abnormal Victory loans years of 1917, 1918 and 1918.

The trend of lower tire prices continued yesterday with announcements of reductions by the United States Rubber company and the Kelly-Springfield Tire company. The reductions on first grade passenger car tires by the leading companies range from 7½ to 11 per cent, while reductions for second grade lines range from 6½ to 12 per cent. The average reduction for all passenger car tires is about 9 per cent.

PEOPLES GAS CO. PLANS INCREASE IN ITS CAPITAL

Advise $100,000,000 in Stock.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Preparation for future "melons" in the form of stock purchase privileges for its stockholders was announced yesterday by the People's Gas, Light and Coke company, which supplies Chicago with gas. The directors decided to recommend that the authorized capital stock be increased from $61,000,000 to $100,000,000 at the annual meeting on Feb. 24.

At the end of 1930 the company had $7,540,000 in stock outstanding and an additional $6,254,000 was subject to be subscribed for on the basis of warrants issued at a prior date. There are the total of $68,794,000 left only about $6,000,000 of authorized stock unissued. But with the proposed increase the company will have more than $31,000,000 of stock available for sale to its stockholders and employes.

"The purpose of the proposed increase obviously is to provide more 'elbow room' for the issuance of stock subscription rights by People's Gas as well when its business may necessitate additional capital investment to provide additional plant, equipment, or other improvements of its business facilities," an official announcement stated. "The last previous increase in the capital stock—from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000—was authorized in 1928.

Reserve for Employés.

"At the forthcoming annual meeting the directors also will ask the stockholders for authority to reserve an additional 10,000 shares of the capital stock for sale to employés of the company and its subsidiaries. The original reservation of 10,000 shares for this purpose was authorized in 1919."

It has been the custom of Peoples Gas to give stock subscription rights to stockholders every year or so and usually to the extent of 10 or 15 per cent of their holdings. If this custom is followed, the proposed increase in stock would permit such rights for several years to come. Because of the high market price of Peoples Gas stock, which sold yesterday around 70 a share, the custom of offering additional stock at par to stockholders has afforded valuable rights.

The decline in stock market prices in the last week, which followed the rally of the first week of 1931, was attended in a further decline in brokers' loans. With lack of buying by speculators for the rise and considerable short selling, brokers' loans dropped $59,000,000 to a new low level of $1,528,000,000. This total also is $345,000,000 under that of a year ago.

Interior Banks.

Interior banks increased their loans to brokers by $28,000,000, which reflected the slack commercial demand for money. But the New York banks reduced their own loans by $74,000,000 and nonbanking lenders, including corporations, withdrew $14,000,000 from the call money market.

Dwindling in the demand for credit for commercial purposes following the year-end requirements also was shown in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. Borrowings of the member banks declined $49,045,000 to a total of $243,340,000 and the reserve banks also absorbed credit by selling $69,276,000 of bankers' acceptances and $14,584,000 of government securities. Federal reserve note circulation receded $72,196,000. Deposits expanded $21,591,000. Gold and total reserves increased $65,061,000 and $84,107,000 respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 79.3 per cent, compared with 76.3 per cent a week ago.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 2 per cent rediscount rate. Its statement showed a decline of $18,331,000 in member bank borrowings, which stand at $51,161,000. Holdings of bankers' acceptances and government securities declined $19,789,000 and $4,150,000, respectively. Deposits gained $59,723,000. Reserves increased $61,573,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 82 per cent, compared with 78.8 per cent last week.

The Chicago reserve bank reported a decline of $3,990,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $26,028,000. Bankers' acceptances receded $10,976,000, but government securities showed little change. Deposits declined $9,258,000. Reserves increased $6,587,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 77.1 per cent, compared with 74.5 per cent a week ago.

Ask Equity Receivership for Richfield Oil of Cal.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The sensational rise of the Richfield Oil company of California from a small organization to one of the largest gasoline and oil distributors on the Pacific coast in a period of five years ended in a receivership in equity today.

The receivership climaxed rumors of the last week which sent Richfield common on the Los Angeles and San Francisco stock exchanges below $3 a share. It sold as high as $25 last year.

The petition for the receivership was filed by the Republic Supply company of California in the court of Federal Judge William P. James. It was granted almost immediately and William C. McDuffie, who took over the presidency of Richfield three weeks ago, qualified as receiver with a bond of $3,500,000, the largest ever set in federal court here.

Allege Large Debts.

The petitioner alleged Richfield, with assets of 120 million and liabilities of 35 million dollars, had insufficient cash on hand to meet its obligations and owed more than $19,000,000. The receivership will permit the company to continue as a going concern, whereas a receivership in bankruptcy would have necessitated liquidation.

The action was not opposed by Richfield and S. M. Haskin, one of the directors, said the company realized a receivership was advisable for the protection of bondholders, shareholders, and creditors.

Republic Supply said it was a creditor of Richfield and an obligation of $275,000 was long overdue.

The foundation for entrance of Richfield into the fore of Pacific coast oil producers was laid in 1926. Backed by bankers and others to whom it is heavily indebted now, it took over control in three years the United Oil, the old Richfield organization, the Pan American Western Petroleum, an E. L. Doheny organization, and the Universal Consolidated Oil Companies.

Slump in Shares.

New York, Jan. 15.—The appointment of a receiver for Richfield Oil company of California today was accompanied by heavy liquidation of the common stock, which broke to $2.75 a share, compared to its 1930 peak of $28.25.

Although the action was not announced until early afternoon, the stock was under pressure at the opening of the market. The initial transaction was a sale of 20,000 shares at $3.50, off $1. It closed at $2.87, off $1.62. The 6 per cent bonds dropped $13.50 to $41 per $100 par value.

The financial district had heard from time to time that Richfield, lacking adequate working capital, was seeking to merge with another company. When William C. McDuffie, president of Pacific Western Oil, came to the presidency of Richfield a month ago, it was reported that plans were afoot to fund the company's indebtedness.

Richfield was caught by the business deflation while in the midst of an ambitious expansion program. Among other things, it entered keen competition in the eastern marketing area, which the Shell-Union interests were at the same time ambitiously penetrating. Richfield is understood to have contracted large bank loans to finance expansion, deferring new financing for more favorable security market conditions.

Is Not Affected.

The Richfield Oil Company of New York, the eastern subsidiary, is not affected by the receivership, A. C. Woodman, president, said after a telephone conversation with Mr. McDuffie. The eastern subsidiary is solvent, he said.

Richfield is a complete unit in the industry, owning a large oil acreage in California, refineries, tank steamers, bulk distributing stations, and chains of service stations. Its balance sheet at the end of 1929 showed total assets of $142,696,735. Earnings in 1929 amounted to more than $4 a common share, but are said to have dropped off sharply in 1930, reflecting in part expenses growing out of expansion and unsettlement in the oil industry. Both common and preferred dividends were omitted.

CAMPAIGN FOR TARIFF BY INDEPENDENT OIL PRODUCERS PLANNED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Independent oil producers today prepared for a dual campaign for a tariff upon oil. The drive will be carried to congress and the White House by two committees appointed late today.

Senator Elect Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma heads the group that will lay the tariff plea before the house and senate, and Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum association, will lead the committee before President Hoover.

When the two committees will start their direct campaign remains to be determined, but their resolutions, which were prepared tonight at executive sessions of the committees, will be reported to the conference tomorrow.

Secretary Hurley, a member of the oil conservation board, of which Wilbur is chairman, appeared as a representative of the board.

Discusses Modern Trend to Concentration of Power

BY SCRUTATOR.

All the possibilities of power plants and power application have not yet been exhausted. On the contrary, numerous efforts are being made to make better plants and to render the application more in keeping with the necessities.

This civilization could not exist without the steam engine, and it would hardly continue as it is without the internal combustion plant. A constant lowering of power costs is proceeding.

At least one railroad president in the Chicago area believes that the Diesel engine will be perfected in the future to a degree that will make its use the answer to those who want to see smoky suburban trains ruled out. That may be the answer, if the Diesel can do comparable work to electricity as we know it in railroad operation.

Other schools of engineering thought see boiler improvement as a governing factor in keeping the steam engine constantly in advance of all internal combustion plants. From the Hartford, Conn., Electric Light company comes an assurance that excellent results followed the use of a mercury boiler and turbine, first placed in commercial operation in 1930. Burning 13 per cent more fuel than a straight steam installation of like capacity, it is stated the combination produced 52 per cent more power. Seven-tenths of a pound of coal suffices to produce a kilowatt hour of electricity.

This is in contrast to the average of 1.70 pounds of coal needed to produce a kilowatt hour in the average utility steam plant.

Build Locomotor.

Another method of attack, particularly directed at railroad problems has been used by two Chicago firms. They have built a steam power plant and installed it in a railroad car, with the claim that it will draw three other cars and operate at a speed up to 75 miles an hour at a cost of less than 33 cents a train mile.

This combined car and plant, known as the locomotor, uses only the front 12 feet of the car for the power unit. A 700 pound steam pressure at a temperature of 750 degrees is maintained, and condensing is so perfected that it is claimed from 20 to 30 gallons of water are sufficient to operate the plant a whole day.

The Milwaukee railroad now has two of these cars operating in passenger service in Iowa. In nontechnical language the attempt has been made to furnish a lighter and more mobile transportation unit which railroads can use at less cost than the small trains they now operate with only a few cars for passengers.

Some such device would seem to be required by the railroads if they are to take back much of the passenger traffic that has gone from them to buses. A steam locomotive dragging one, two, or three cars has some resemblance to shooting sparrows with elephant guns.

Cite Unnecessary Costs.

Mobils as distinguished from stationary engines logically should be fitted in size to the tasks they are to perform. From an engineering standpoint it is arguable that American railroads are carrying too many tons of car and locomotive to move each passenger, and that, as a consequence, costs are unnecessarily high.

The trend nowadays is to put the power, and just enough of it, at the place where it will do the most good. The electric utilities have extended the driving force of their steam engines and their energy from falling water to small motors that can be shut off when they are not needed. They have driven out thousands of small individual plants.

One electric company in the east has built and operates a generator ship that can move to properties along the seaboard where unusual amounts of power are required.

New York, Jan. 15.—The bears beat the stock market to its knees again today. Emboldened by a sizable budget of unfavorable news and a swarm of alarmist rumors emanating from heaven knows where, they opened up on a selected handful of leaders in the early trading and by dint of tireless pounding at first one and then another spot succeeded in turning the whole list—which has been in a hesitant mood—definitely downward.

Selling Hits Pivotals.

The net losses amounted to 1 to 4 points or more and extended to every department of the market. Some of the pivotals were among the chief sufferers of the day, American Can losing more than 3 points, American Telephone, 4½; Public Service of New Jersey, 4½; Eastman Kodak, 6; Western Union, 4⅝; New York Central, 2½, and United States Steel, 2⅝ points. Allied Chemical and Dye, leader of the chemical group, outdid them all, plunging more than 8 points to a new low of 156¾ and closing

Sound Bonds yielding from 6% to 7%

WHEN bond prices are low, bond yields are correspondingly high. And the present depressed condition of the security market offers many unusual opportunities to obtain a high yield without sacrificing soundness.

Our January list includes many well-secured bonds priced to yield from 6% to 7%.

One of our officers will be glad to go over this list with you and help you in selecting bonds particularly suited to your requirements. And before investing a single dollar, before making any definite plans, be sure to read our new booklet, "Building Financial Independence."

69 Years of STEADY GROWTH

AGE . . . is a factor of importance in any great institution only as it is accompanied by steady, consistent growth. ¶ 69 years . . . plus a growth to world prominence . . . is a factor of genuine importance in banking. ¶ For with age comes the priceless attribute . . . experience. And with growth comes the accumulation of great resources. Yet even years of experience and millions of dollars in resources could not alone have placed this bank in the foremost ranks of world banking institutions. ¶ Experience and resources reach their supreme significance only when translated into their deeper value . . . real public service. ¶ And the ability to serve in an effective way has contributed much to this bank's 69 years of growth.

PLAN $100,000 SHOPS BUILDING FOR EVANSTON

On Orrington Ave., Next to Library Plaza.

BY AL CHASE.

Evanston's first good sized building project for 1931 is to go ahead at once at 1629 Orrington avenue, just south of and adjoining the Library Plaza hotel building, according to an announcement yesterday. The new structure will be two stories in height for the present but will have foundations for additional floors when needed. The minimum cost is placed at $100,000. Maher & McGrew of Evanston are the architects.

The site, 66x210, is improved with old buildings, a residence and an automobile display room, both of which are to be wrecked at once. Completion of the new building is scheduled for June 1. The fee is owned by the Kline estate.

Corporation Leases Site.

The Kline Building corporation, of which Ralph D. Shanesy, attorney; Christian J. Golee, realtor, of the firm of Smart & Golee, and Roy W. Cooley are the principal figures, has leased the site for ninety-nine years. The lease is dated Jan. 10, 1931. Herbert L. Lucas states that he is the only broker in the transaction.

The Cooley Stores Building corporation, controlled by the same interests that comprise the Kline Building corporation, has leased the entire building for an undisclosed term of years and will sublease to individual tenants. If tenants can be found who will occupy more than two floors the building will be erected high enough to accommodate their needs.

Harry and Arthur Alter have purchased from I. Schuman the 50x165 one story building at 34-36 South Washington street, Hinsdale, for a reported $57,500 cash. E. C. Sumerfield was broker.

Starts Work on Bungalows.

F. D. Bredehorn, builder, has begun construction of five bungalows, five and six rooms, at 1725-27 New England avenue and 3011-17 Menard avenue, on 30x125 lots; from plans by G. E. Pearson, architect. The reported total investment will be $50,000.

The general contract for the University of Chicago's new International house, to be erected on the site of the former Del Prado hotel at 59th and Dorchester, has been awarded to R. F. Wilson & Co. Excavation is now under way. Completion is scheduled for about April, 1932. The structure, designed by Holabird & Root, will cost, including land and equipment, more than $2,000,000.

Mrs. Frances I. Hunter has purchased the three apartment building at 6447 Bosworth avenue from William C. Tackett through John J. Ready & Co.

PLAN TO MERGE CANADIAN RAIL WIRE SYSTEMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—Reports of proposals for a merger of Canadian telegraphic interests were confirmed here today by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways.

Commercial telegraph systems are operated in Canada by the Canadian National railways and the Canadian Pacific railway. The National lines connect in the United States with the Western Union Telegraph system and the Canadian Pacific with the Postal Telegraph company.

"In regard to current reports relating to consolidation of Canadian Telegraphic interest," Sir Henry Thornton stated today, "in so far as the Canadian National railways are concerned, the expression of any opinion would be premature, as obviously before any action approaching a definite nature could be taken there would have to be a careful examination by the technical officers of the company, a discussion by the board of directors, and a consultation with respect to a matter of such major importance with the government of Canada.

"The subject has been broached and is receiving appropriate consideration with regard to the procedure outlined above."

Newsprint Output in Dec. Falls to 62½% Capacity

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Production of newsprint by United States and Canadian mills in December declined to 284,031, or 62½ per cent of capacity, from production of 294,040 tons, or 67.7 per cent of capacity in November and 342,591 tons, or 83.6 per cent, in December, 1929, the Newsprint Service bureau reports. Production by Canadian mills in December amounted to 184,755 tons, against 201,702 tons in November and 230,008 tons in December, 1929. United States mills produced 99,276 tons in December, against 92,337 tons in November, and 112,583 tons in December, 1929.

SLUMP IN CLOTHING TRADE HITS ALFRED DECKER & COHN SALES

The depression last year resulted in a demand for lower priced clothing and lower sales volume and reduced margin of profits for clothing manufacturers. Because of these factors, Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., Chicago clothiers, incurred the first operating loss since the business was founded 28 years ago, according to the annual report of President Alfred Decker.

The operating loss for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1930, was $268,181, although this was more than offset by special revenue of $442,289 and discount on preferred stock purchased of $6,710. However, the company paid dividends totaling $236,575 and the net result was a reduction of $55,756 in surplus, which now stands at $1,876,759.

Net income for the preceding fiscal year was $102,924 equivalent after preferred dividends equal to $2.62 a share on the common stock.

TELL HOW INVESTORS ABSORB SHARES OF UNITED STATES STEEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—Absorption of shares of the United States Steel corporation by investors last year is indicated by statistics on distribution of the stock issued by the corporation today.

They show that investment holdings of the stock were larger on Dec. 31, 1930, than either three months or a year ago, despite the fact that more stock was outstanding at the end of 1930 than on either the other dates.

On Dec. 31 last investors held 7,280,258 shares of common stock of the company, or 83.69 per cent of the total amount then outstanding, which was 8,687,435 shares. That was an increase of 123,579, compared with Sept. 30, when the total amount of stock in the hands of investors was 7,056,679 shares, or 81.40 per cent of the total issue of 8,669,278 shares outstanding at that time.

Holdings of investors on Dec. 31, 1929, were 6,407,390 shares, or 649,289 shares less than on Sept. 30, and 272,868 shares less than on Dec. 31, 1930. The holdings a year ago were only 78.79 per cent of the then outstanding total of 2,132,840 shares.

United States Steel shares in the hands of brokers show a decrease corresponding to the increase in holdings of investors.

Stock in brokers' names, generally termed the floating supply, amounted to 1,407,177 shares, or 16.31 per cent of the total issue on Dec. 31, which was a decrease of 205,422 shares since Sept. 30, when 1,612,599 shares, or 18.60 per cent of the total issue, were outstanding. On Dec. 31, 1929, the amount of stock in brokers' hands was 1,725,450 shares, or 21.21 per cent of the then total.

BULLISH WHEAT TREND COMES TO AN ABRUPT HALT

Selling and Profit Taking Break Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The bull movement in the wheat market ended abruptly yesterday after prices had advanced ¼@¾c over the finish of Wednesday. All futures were carried to a new high on the present upswing, old May touching 55¼c, the highest since Oct. 24, while the July swept up to 70c, the best since Dec. 16.

Selling of May credited to farm board agencies and profit taking through commission houses and local selling of the July caused a break of 2@2¼c from the top and the close was at net losses of ¾@1¼c on the old crop months and 1¾c on the July. March finished at 82¼c; May at 83⅞@84c, and the July at 67⅝@67¾c.

There have been rumors of late that the Stabilization corporation might have been operating in the July wheat but, according to persons who should be in a position to know, the corporation has done nothing in the July future whatsoever, and no specific consideration has been given to an effort to stabilize the new crop month. The policy has been to bring about a reduction in the present large supply from the old crop at a price regarded as fair to the consumer and not ruinous to the producer. It is intimated that there is little possibility of the new crop being given consideration for at least 60 days, if then.

Foreign Markets Weaken.

Foreign wheat markets were again on the downgrade with Liverpool closing ⅝@⅝d lower as the result of easier offerings from Argentina, which has commenced to ship on a larger scale. Exports for the week were estimated at 2,205,000 bu, compared with 970,000 bu the previous week. Buenos Aires dropped 1⅛@1⅛c for the day with the February delivery quoted at 47⅝c, while Rosario was 1@1¼c lower, February in the latter market being 45½c. Prices in Buenos Aires were within 1c of the lowest figure of the season and around 20c lower than when the farm board agency started its stabilization operations in American markets in the middle of November. March wheat in the Argentine market was 33½c under Chicago at the last.

While Winnipeg messages reported a good class of buying of wheat futures there the close was ⅛@1c lower with only a small export business passing. The late weakness in Chicago had some effect on sentiment in the Canadian market, although the July there was around 10c under Chicago.

Liquidation in Corn.

Corn prices were on the downgrade with a lack of aggressive support. With liquidation by longs prices dropped rapidly and closed at the bottom with net losses of 2¼@2⅝c. March finishing at 68¾@68⅝c, May, 70¼@70⅝c, and July, 71⅝@71½c. Trading started in the September delivery during the day and, after opening at 73½c, it declined to 71⅝c when it closed. According to pit gossip a local professional went out of a line of long corn during the day. Support came largely from shorts and from holders of bids, although the sellers of the latter had to protect themselves on the way down.

Selling by scattered longs was in evidence in oats and the close was at net losses of ⅝@⅞c with March, 33⅝c; May, 34½c, and July, 33¼c. Shorts were the best buyers. Owing to low prices prevailing in Argentina with February in Buenos Aires closing at 15c per bu the trade feels that there is little prospect of export business in North American oats.

Rye was dull and easier in sympathy with other grains, closing trades 1¼@1¾c the March delivery finishing at 41¼c; May, 42⅝c, and July, 42¾c.

INCREASE IN LARD SMALL

Lard stocks in Chicago are 21,519,000 lbs against 21,493,000 lbs Jan. 1 and 29,748,000 lbs last year. Stocks of new bellies decreased slightly and are materially less than last year. Trading in provisions was light, with a little changing from January to May and liquidation by holders of both months. The close was at net losses of 5@12½c. March lard was unchanged to 5c lower, the latter on May. Exports were 808,500 lbs of lard and 106,000 lbs of bacon. Deliveries of lard on January sales were 450,000 lbs. May bellies were 10c lower. AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO INSPECT

CHICAGO'S FINEST USED CAR STORE

WHERE A GOOD USED CAR CAN BE BOUGHT FOR LESS MONEY

In our mammoth building at 26TH AND MICHIGAN there are 192 dandy used cars assembled from which to make a selection. With such a tremendous stock in our big place, it is not necessary for you to visit 4 or 5 places in order to make a used car purchase. A trip to our headquarters will save you time and also money.

BUICK VICTORIA. This car must be seen to be appreciated. It's a 4 pass., equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, cowl lights, heater, bumpers, etc. It's in splendid all-around condition and the motor runs smoothly and quietly. A remarkable buy at $595.

CHRYSLER ROADSTER. Here is a sporty car that never left the Chicago district. We do not believe you can duplicate this Roadster any place else at twice the price. Has 6 whl. brakes, rumble seat, and many extras. Sweet running motor, $695.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. 1928 Commander 4 pass. with expensive mohair upholstery, and the finish is in dandy condition. The motor was checked by expert Studebaker mechanics. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Will not main 24 hours at our price of $195.

FORD ROADSTER. 1929, with rumble seat. It's in new condition today. The finish sparkles like a new dollar. The upholstery, tires and motor are in wonderful condition. Very fully equipped. $225.

PONTIAC SEDAN. A recent model that was oiled and greased every 500 miles by a regular owner. Now a careful checkup will reveal that it looks and runs as though direct from the factory. 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $325.

PLYMOUTH SEDAN. 1929 that was owned by a wealthy family in conjunction with a Studebaker and a Pierce-Arrow. It was therefore given very little use, so it looks and performs like a brand new car today. Has new tires and a wealth of extra equipment. Only $395.

CHANDLER 8 SEDAN. This was one of the very latest models manufactured. It has imported cloth from bumper to bumper and then takes it out for a trip if it agrees with us that it's topnotch in every respect. The performance is sparkling and the appearance is beautiful. Many extras. $465.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1928 str. 8 President 7 pass. The original owner died a few months after taking possession, and the car was put in private storage for a year. Now it's in remarkable condition. First cost was over $2,000. Special today for $750.
